We've got recovery

A large group of people supporting recovery in Northern Michigan pose for a photo in East Park before they begin the first Charlevoix Recovery Walk on Saturday.

CHARLEVOIX — Attendance at Saturday morning's Recovery Walk might have been reduced by the rainy weather early that day, but the clouds gave way to sunshine in what turned out to be a glorious morning overlooking Round Lake.

Approximately 55 people came out for the first Bay Area Substance Education Services Recovery Walk on Sept. 17, where people began to line up at 10 a.m. in East Park at Odmark Pavillon to begin the 1.3-mile path that took them down Belvedere Avenue to Ferry Beach Park for a day of camaraderie, food and fun.

The walk and picnic was among many events scheduled during the month of September that are being hosted in Charlevoix in recognition of National Recovery Month which is designed to help reduce the stigma of drug and alcohol addiction.

"We hope to make this walk an annual event," said Scott Kelly, BASES director. "There's such a stigma attached to drug and alcohol addiction and events like this help people talk about what's happening in our communities in a friendly and open venue."

FOX motors Charlevoix sponsored the event and provided a Gem Car that offered walkers a ride to the park if they were not able to make the trek to Ferry Beach and rides back to East Park after the walk.

After the Charlevoix Recovery Walk participants gather under the pavilion at Ferry Beach Park for a picnic lunch together.

It's official: Charlevoix hospital CEO to retire

CHARLEVOIX — Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital CEO Lyn Jenks announced her retirement in a news release issued early Wednesday.

Jenks made the decision official during a meeting of the hospital's board of directors Tuesday night, during which she said she will retire shortly after a replacement has been hired.

Officials estimate that a search process will begin within the next few weeks and may take up to six months to complete.

"As long as I've known Lyn, she has been an unwavering champion for Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital," said Ed Ness, president and CEO of Munson Healthcare. "Throughout the process of our initial partnership and then full integration, she has always effectively fostered constructive discussions and advanced a spirit of collaboration."

Persuaded by hospital leaders to come out of her previous retirement, Jenks began working for Charlevoix Area Hospital Foundation in 2005 and was appointed CEO of the hospital on June 1, 2012. Board members agree that she has been instrumental in helping to greatly improve the hospital's financial condition and reputation in the community, turning around financial, strategic and operational performance.

"This has not been an easy decision for me," Jenks said. "It's been a great personal honor to serve in this capacity and to support all the moving parts that make Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital a thriving, successful team. Together we have accomplished great things for our hospital and I want the community to know how very proud I am to have worked with these professionals. It has been a real privilege."

In a letter to the hospital staff, Jenks pointed out that no success or failure in business can be attributed to a single individual.

"Working alone will never result in the kind of joy we have felt as we watched our work conclude in high patient, staff and physician satisfaction," Jenks wrote. "Together, we have assured our hospital's financial viability through efficient operation, successful recruitment of physicians and other important staff, service and facility initiatives."

In her retirement announcement, Jenks thanked the board members for their CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix native Bob Bergmann has a desire to see Charlevoix flourish while keeping the basic ideals of the community he loves alive on the Charlevoix City Council.

"I have been interested in politics for several years and I want to keep moving the community forward without losing the basic essence of the town — our small town values," Bergmann said.

The 68-year-old businessman is seeking to represent the residents of Charlevoix's 1st ward when voters cast their ballots in the Nov. 8 election.

The political newcomer is an alternate member of the Charlevoix Zoning Board of

Bergmann, a 1965 graduate of Charlevoix High School,

Bergmann said his background makes him a "common man" in politics and he will give his ward a representative voice on city council.

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix political newcomer Janet Kalbfell has aspirations to see the city thrive. She hopes the residents of Charlevoix's 1st Ward will see that and choose her for City Council in November.

"(I have) a desire to see a thriving, energetic and positive Charlevoix," Kalbfell said. "I believe I can contribute to making this happen."

Kalbfell, 61, has been a city homeowner since 1992 and became full-time resident in 2015, after retiring from the state of Michigan after 31 years with the Department Health and Human Services. Her last 12 years in the department had her working as an appeals review officer.

Public access to Charlevoix County building restricted

STEVE FOLEY

(231) 439-9397
sfoley@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix County officials implemented a series of safety measures Sept. 1 in response to a security audit performed that found several vulnerabilities in the county building on Antrim Street, which houses courtrooms, the clerk's office and other public services.

Public access to the building is now restricted to just one entrance adjacent to the main parking lot, while the building's security camera system was updated from a 12-camera system to 36 cameras.

Also, a full-time Charlevoix County Sheriff's deputy, Jim Spires, has been added to work security at the building along with handling bailiff duties.

Kevin Shepard, Charlevoix County administrator and human resources coordinator, said the security measures went into effect earlier this month.

"We have a security audit done about a year ago and we've been planning on doing it," Shepard said. "I think it's been fairly well received for the most part. We've had some complaints from people who weren't aware of the changes, but in today's day and age we've had to take steps like this."

Joel Evans, Charlevoix County Board of Commissioners chairman, said discussion of limiting public access to one entrance and adding to the security camera system originated when commissioners discussed what was going on across the country regarding public safety.

"There's too many entrances," Evans said. "When we have night meetings, we don't know who's coming in and going, it didn't give us a real secure feeling. We decided to put cameras in all the hallways, changed the doors to one for public entry, which makes it safer."

Evans said in the future, a metal detector may also be installed at the public entrance, but further research into detectors along with cost will need to be completed.

"It's a very expensive detection system, but we're not going to be doing that yet," Evans said. "We might need to do it someday, though."

Gates along with security cameras have also been installed near the parking lot for judges and law enforcement staff, Evans said, while several offices in the building have been outfitted with bullet-proof glass.

"We've stepped up to be proactive," Evans added. "We're hoping there will never be an incident, but you just never know."

All entrances which were formerly available to the public will still be available as exterior exits in the case of emergency, while employees at the building may now access entrances via magnetic key cards.

Shepard said the cost of the building improvements — which came from the counties building improvement fund — was $17,000.

"We had our own IT guys install the software and hardware," Shepard said. "We're always looking at different ways of making the building more secure."

Evans said building staff have been working hard getting the added security cameras installed including the commissioners room, and it's his hope the added security measures will make the public, judges and law enforcement officials feel safer.

"As you know, when you have a court day in the building there's a lot of people in the building that are hurting, are in trouble or are very mad," Evans said.

Film offers glimpse of life in recovery

CHARLEVOIX — Anyone who likes to watch movies understands the capacity some movies have to connect with the viewer, and this is what often makes a film great.

Though there have been several great movies over the years that have given us a glimpse into the life of an addict, a recent film by Cindy Joy Goggins was viewed on Saturday as part of the month long recovery events for National Recovery Month in Charlevoix sponsored by Bay Area Substance

Education Services.

Goggins' film Grace gave viewers insights to alcohol addiction and recovery, and helped viewers see the destruction addiction causes, while allowing viewers to experience what the addict and their families feel along with having hope for the character's recovery.

After the film Goggins, answered questions about the movie and sold autographed copies of the DVD to those attending the film's showing at the Charlevoix Cinema III.

CROP Hunger walk sees good turnout

CHARLEVOIX — Having faith and living it can be considered two different things among those who practice religion. A famous quote in the Bible says, "Faith by itself, if it does not have works, is dead" (James 2). So to demonstrate faith publicly hundreds of the Charlevoix County faithful on Saturday walked the walk, literally.

In the 33rd annual Charlevoix CROP Hunger Walk, people in Charlevoix, Boyne City and East Jordan people hit the pavement to raise money to help eliminate hunger, thirst and poverty in the area and around the world.

The walk started at St. Mary's Catholic Church and continued three miles through downtown to the north end of town before coming back down to East Park.

Participants in the 33rd annual CROP Hunger Walk in Charlevoix gather in a large circle at St. Mary's Church in Charlevoix before they start the walk on Sept. 24.

"It's important to the local community because of the money that we're able to raise for the local food pantries and for the awareness that we hope to raise about the issues of hunger, about the issues of food deserts, for heaven sakes," said John Young, Charlevoix CROP Walk contact.

One-quarter of the funds raised by the walk serve the food pantries in Charlevoix County, organizers said. The rest are distributed to help with the national CROP Walk mission around the world.

LETTERS to the editor

Campaign slogan insults Charlevoix's hardworking people

Editor:
Wow. "Positive Charlevoix?" One article in this past Courier, that reflected inayoral candidate views, is an insult to the already positive professional men and women in Charlevoix who work tirelessly for all residents, tourists, businesses and recreation all year long.

We already have a positive and forward thinking city manager, chamber director, Charlevoix Convention & Visitors Bureau director, streets, water and electricity directors, Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board and a host of other city employees doing a positive job for us.

Not to mention the business owners who have spent years investing their time and money for us. They aren't positive?

We had one of the best summer seasons financially, that isn't positive? We had successful events promoting our town and businesses - they weren't positive?

When we elect a new mayor is he or she going to be changing our city professionals because they aren't positive? The mayor doesn't run the city. The mayor runs city government meetings.

When we vote, we are responsible for making a responsible choice. Responsible choice means voting for the people who look out for our collective best interests. Responsible choice means knowing who really is promoting Charlevoix versus who is simply promoting themselves.

Our city leaders should be talking about having the best education and schools in Michigan for our kids. That would keep more people and families in town year-round. Our city leaders should be investing in our old and frail infrastructure, not expanding our finished-but-not-yet-paid-for marina. Our city leaders should be protecting our public lands because they are to be enjoyed by all of us, not for a new business. A conservation easement cleans up a vague City Charter and protects our already positive-impact parks.

Positive Charlevoix already exists. What is needed is a mayor to run our meetings, not our town. Do the right and responsible thing this voting season and stop insulting people who already work hard.

Poverty simulation made a point

Editor:
On Friday, Sept. 16, Char-Em United Way, following the Human Services Collaborative Body's Informatinn Summit, put on an interactive poverty simulation. With over 70 people in attendance, the simulation was a great success and helped community members begin to understand what life is like with a shortage of money and an abundance of stress. A goal of this activity was to raise awareness of the struggles that people in our community are facing.

We would like to use this opportunity to thank Jet's Pizza for generously donating lunch for the many volunteers needed for this simulation. We also thank the United Methodist Church of Petoskey for providing the space for the event. And, of course, many thanks to the volunteers whose roles were crucial, they all did a wonderful job of making this simulation feel real. It was rewarding to see so many participants in the simulation; we hope you gained a new insight about the struggles so many of our neighbors face each month.

Wildflowers and starry nights pinnacle times during warm weather

Before the snow had completely melted and the inland lakes were flowing smoothly again, I had written down some warm weather "goals." The idea of warmer temperatures and green leaves filling the landscape is very therapeutic at that time of year—when we are anxious to shed the heavy jackets and feel warmer breezes blowing.

Ever the optimistic Mom, I had written down: eat outside picnics, take daily walks, and find one new undiscovered place each week.

Well, we did have a lot of picnics, sometimes just us, other times a neighbor to join us. Daily walks? I wish I could say that we carved out the time to take them, and even though we did do a lot of walking other places this summer, our daily neighborhood walks were sporadic among the whirlwind of summer activities. We did find many places, new to us, that we had not ventured to before, but probably not on a weekly basis.

I also had: farmers market, identify wildlife around us, and star gaze.

We did, in fact, visit the farmers market, a great mix of smells and music and wonderful wares. Friendly local vendors had fresh, delicious and, quite honestly, beautiful products. Jams, honey, soaps, cupcakes, homemade dog treats were just some of the stands that I could not pull my kids away from. What a lovely representation of innovative, creative and very down-home vendors to grace our city each Thursday.

Learning the names of local wildflowers was really lovely, since we have so many in our neighborhood, and we could combine our walks and wildflower education. I noticed that different flowers that were predominant in different parts of the season, the trillium starting the ball rolling, and passing the baton to the sweet Queen Anne's lace and beach pea, then August let the black eyed Susan's and purple aster. It was a great opportunity to take note of the more specific life around us, and a great lesson in leaving all wildlife alone.

As for the star-gazing, this subject begs the question: Can you possibly star gaze enough? In the case of living in one of the premier areas of our country to have such few city lights to obstruct the mind-boggling sky of stars about us, I don't think you can. Even though we had cloudy nights during most of the talked about meteor showers, on the clear nights, being outside and seeing such a stunning display as our northern night sky just takes your breath away. An incredible aspect is that there is no end to our season for viewing the stars, so get your sweatshirts out, and enjoy.

What is one thing you look forward to doing in the warm weather, dear neighbors? Share your answers with me on my Facebook or Instagram page.

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

Exactly 100 years ago, the city transformed downtown State Street, always the widest street in town since it was laid out on our first plat map in 1866, into a stately boulevard. Tall cement light posts holding classy glass lanterns presided over flower beds that adorned the grass islands. Some who remember these lane separators have suggested an historic restoration, but that is wishful thinking considering today's demand for Sunday angle parking to accommodate three groups of churchgoers. In their day these islands were a beautiful adornment to the valley cityscape when the pace of life was slower and State Street was not so much abuzz with traffic as it is today. The boulevard lasted until well past the middle of the century. This photo, looking north, was taken near the Mason Street intersection.

Leif Eriksson Day proceeds to help orphan ministry

CHARLEVOIX — To celebrate Leif Eriksson Day and Viking heritage Challenge Fitness of Charlevoix has organized a 1-mile rowing and 5K running event to take place at 9 a.m. on Saturday, Oct. 1. The 1-mile boat race goes from Depot Beach to Ferry Beach in Charlevoix.

The event was originally created by Jon Purdy of Charlevoix to celebrate Leif Eriksson Day with his friends and family. After he had a bounty of friends participate in his reenactment of a raiding party on Susan Lake, he realized he could give back to the community and share his Nordic pride as well.

Proceeds from the land and sea event go to FACES Orphan Ministry of Charlevoix. He joined forces with FACES Orphan Ministry and Challenge Fitness to bring his historical fitness event to the masses. Over the past three years the event has raised over $4,000 toward assisting the aid of orphaned children.

The 5K will traverse along a road course in the city of Charlevoix. Participants will have to bring their own kayak/canoe and wear a United States Coast Guard approved life jacket. Anyone interested in joining the Nordic ranks should visit www.facebook.com/rowandrun.

FACES Orphan Ministry was developed in 2012 as a result of an overwhelming awareness of the needs of the vulnerable children that live within the local community and throughout the world. Founders feel that God has been working through FACES and churches across the country to spread his message of caring for the fatherless.

Boyne City health provider receives $96,250 grant

BOYNE CITY — Munson Healthcare Boyne Area Health Center, a clinic operated by Munson Healthcare Charlevoix in Boyne City, was awarded $96,250 to hire a full-time behavioral health therapist to address behavioral health issues during patient's primary care visits and ensure continuity in care between the therapist, patient's psychiatrist and primary care physician.

"Michigan residents who are underinsured or lack health insurance often depend on safety net providers to receive primary care," said Lynda Rossi, executive vice president of Strategy and Public Affairs at Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan. "This funding will help providers expand that care to identify and address mental health and substance abuse concerns, so patients get the full range of care they need in one setting. Grants like this support Blue Cross' ongoing commitment to strengthening the safety net, which ultimately leads to improved long-term health and lower costs for all."

Munson Healthcare Boyne Area Health Center was among six Michigan-based safety net providers that received a combined total of $535,000 to help develop, enhance or Other safety net providers that received partnership funding: Baldwin Family Health Care in White Cloud was awarded $96,250 to address the shortage of mental health providers in the community.

Catherine's Health Center and Health Intervention Services in Grand Rapids were awarded $96,250 to develop a system of resource and staff sharing.

"Each of these providers are using the grant funding to invest in projects that will have a positive, long-lasting impact on individuals suffering from addiction and mental illness in communities across Michigan," said Audrey Harvey, vice president at Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan and executive director and CEO of the Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan Foundation. "These grants are designed to carefully measure and, eventually, model their success in other areas of need across the state."

The funding for all the safety net providers is provided through a unique partnership between Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan, the Blue Cross Blue Shield of Michigan Foundation, the Ethel and James Flinn Foundation and the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services.

"This public-private partnership is another great example of how foundations, Michigan-based companies and the state can team up to have a long-term, positive impact on the health of Michiganders," said Matt Lori, innovations grant coordinator for Michigan Department of Health and Human Services. "Low-income Michigan residents who have limited health insurance or no coverage at all depend on these providers, and these grants support a new avenue for treatment."

Andrea Cole, executive director and CEO of the Flinn Foundation said increasing access to integrated care is a top priority for the foundation.

"Because of the difference it can make for the patient's future success and well-being," Cole said. "Integrating behavioral health care improves the likelihood of treatment and early intervention."

Groundbreaking for new I-500 building

LANSING — State Senator Wayne Schmidt, R-Traverse City, was presented with a shovel used during a ceremonial groundbreaking of a new, state-of-the-art, multi-purpose building project at the site of the

I-500 snowmobile race.

Organizers of the Sault Ste. Marie-based race held the ceremony in the rotunda of the state capitol on Thursday to celebrate the groundbreaking, that was in August.

Each year the I-500 attracts thousands of attendees and millions of dollars to the community, and the new building will feature VIP rooms and a kitchen area to feed the hundreds of volunteers who work to make the race a success.

The project, which received a $250,000 grant from the state and additional local funding, is expected to be complete in time for 49th annual race in 2017.

Boy Scouts seek new recruits

BOYNE FALLS — The Michigan Crossroads Council, Boy Scouts of America is inviting families in the Boyne area, to register for Scouting from now until Oct. 8, at local elementary schools.

This will give boys the opportunity to participate in a local event from 10 a.m.-3 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 8. Blast Into Scouting in Boyne Falls will be at the Northern Michigan Antique Flywheelers, 145 U.S. 131, in Boyne Falls. There, youth and their families will shoot off water bottle rockets.

The Blast Into Scouting campaign is aimed at introducing families to the Boy Scouts of America's positive and fun focused program called Cub Scouts, which is open to boys in first through fifth grade.

In Cub Scouts, the organization aims to help boys learn leadership and life skills while participating in adventures ranging from building pinewood derby cars and assembling robots to enjoying the outdoors and helping others through a strong focus on community service.

"We know that our young people have a variety of extracurricular activities to choose from," said Greg Dunn, vice president of membership for Michigan Crossroads Council. "While these activities, such as athletics, each address a specific area of a child's development, Scouting provides programming that focuses on the total child. We offer age-appropriate activities at every level so that by the time a Scout leaves high school, they are prepared to lead and succeed."

For more information, call Jane Parikh, at (269) 275-3544.

The Michigan Crossroads Council, Boy Scouts of America provides a variety of youth development and camping programs that promote character, leadership, and life skills to nearly 68,000 Michigan boys and girls. More information on the Michigan Crossroads Council can be found at michiganscouting.org.

For more than a century, the Boy Scouts of America has helped build the future leaders of this country by combining educational activities and lifelong values with fun. The Boy Scouts of America believes — and, through more than a century of experience, knows — that helping youth is a key to building a more conscientious, responsible and productive society.

Let there be LED lights

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

New and improved LED lights have been installed in the trees of downtown Charlevoix. The tree light removal, upgrade, replacement and expansion to include side streets and the north and south hill of U.S. 31 costs the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority $44,840. Some of the costs to bring lights back to downtown were offset by donations.

Grandpa Shorter's shopping day to benefit camp scholarships

PETOSKEY — There will be a shopping day event to benefit Camp Daggett from 9 a.m.-7 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 1, at Grandpa Shorter's Gifts, 301 E. Lake St., Petoskey.

Each year, Grandpa Shorter's Gifts dedicates two Saturdays to raise money for area youth for camp scholarships. In 2015, they donated $2,231 to the camp. Twenty percent of all purchases will go to the C.G. and Ruth Shorter Memorial Scholarship fund at Camp Daggett.

"Jennifer Shorter has been nothing short of terrific to work with," said Camp Daggett's executive director, Brent Mariatt. "She has a big heart and truly understands what summer camp means to local families and their children."

For more information about Camp Daggett, call (231) 347-9742 or visit www.campdaggett.org.

Latest grant will assist with new operating room

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital a grant in the amount of $11,613.

The gift will assist with renovations of the surgical and laboratory service areas at the hospital, as well as the addition of a third operating room. This proposal received wide support from funds within the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

"We are so grateful for the continuing support of our local communities and the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for their generosity and commitment to the positive impact of the health and well-being of all who work and play here," said Lyn Jenks, Charlevoix Hospital CEO. "We appreciate that everyone is fully behind us in our efforts."

The last few years have seen the development of a Chemotherapy Infusion Center within the hospital, an expansion of the hospital's primary care facility in neighboring Boyne City, and a newly centralized registration area including a private reflection and consultation room, the last of which was funded by a previous grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation. Each of these improvements have been completed and funded by donor contributions. The final component is the expansion and renovation of the surgical suite and laboratory.

With the addition of a third operating room and an expanded surgical suite, Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital will be positioned to accommodate the increased demand for outpatient surgeries (an estimated 550 additional procedures each year) and will facilitate faster procedure times. A renovated laboratory will better accommodate the hospital's busiest department, which handles more than 43,000 patient visits and 125,000 tests each year. The hospital believes both components translate to a more positive experience for the patient.

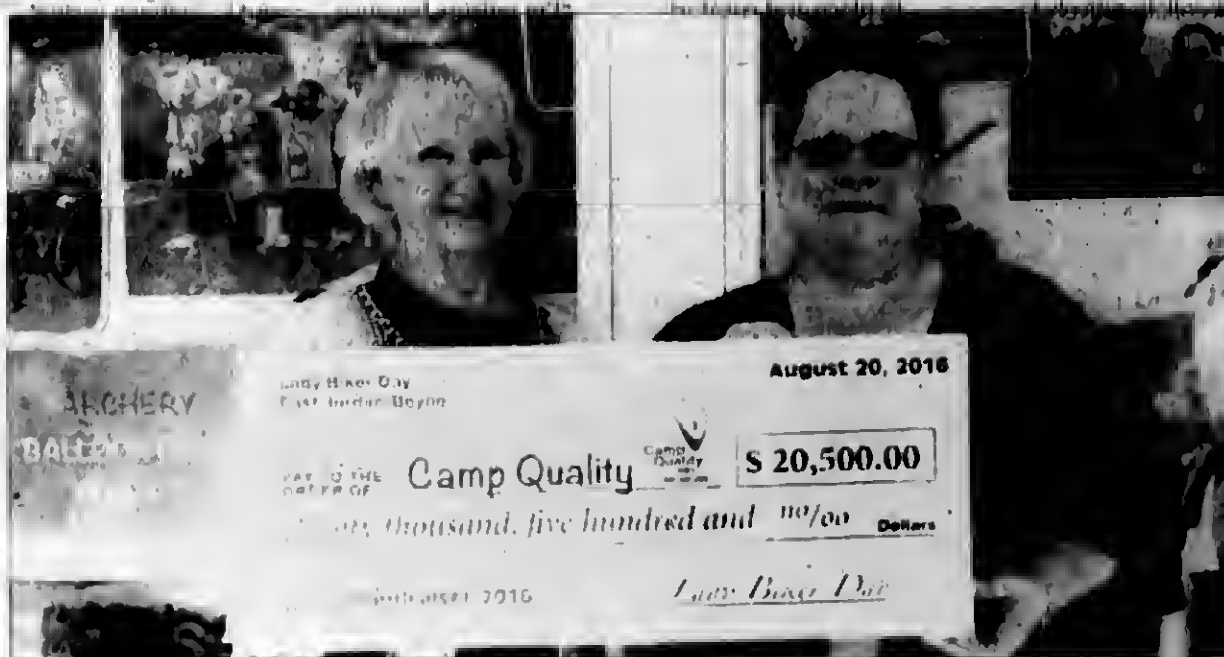

This last phase of the campaign is the lengthiest and the most costly. To date, the Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital Foundation has raised $2.95 million of the $3.4 million goal through philanthropy and gifts have come from throughout the region.

"We're very fortunate to have such a strong history of giving from the many towns we serve," said Chelsea Platte, executive director of the hospital's foundation. "Without grants and other donations, we wouldn't be able to accomplish the updates and renovations needed to keep local health care on the cutting edge. Joining Munson Healthcare was a strategic first step toward a sustainable future, but health care is changing at such an unprecedented rate that philanthropy will continue to make the difference in delivering top notch care throughout the region."

zens of Charlevoix and give each of my constituents a voice on city council by listening to them to move this city forward."

Bergmann said a priority of his, should he be elected, would be to emphasize economic development at the airport by supporting the Airport Advisory Committee's suggestion to change lease agreements to create more hangar construction at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport.

"This would be a great way for the city to add revenue by allowing individuals to lease property, build their own hangars in accordance with approved design requirements," Bergmann said. "By allowing owners to keep their hangars this would allow the city to add additional revenue from the land leased property, taxes and utility fees. Hangar owners would be responsible for building maintenance, which would save taxpayers money and improve the aesthetics at the airport."

Bergmann does not support the previous dock expansion project debate.

"I feel that it will not be approved at the state and federal levels again, besides most residents are against it," Bergmann said. "The use line from Pine River SW to the South shore of Round Lake is there for safety reasons and should not be violated. There has already been a study done on this and several safety concerns were found with this project. The U.S. Coast Guard, DNR and U.S. Army Corps of Engineers have already stated that this expansion is not feasible."

Bergmann also supports the conservation easement ballot initiative for Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park. He believes this course will keep the city's beloved parks protected for Charlevoix's future generations.

"This is needed to protect this beautiful natural area in its natural state for future generations, since the current city charter does not protect it completely from division or sale," Bergmann said. "The city will retain ownership of the property. The conservation easement brings more control over the potential use of the area without ending current uses. The parks are a resource our future generations cannot afford to lose."

Bergmann wants to see the downtown thrive, but believes filling empty storefronts are not the responsibility of local government.

"This is not a legislative concern," Bergmann said. "Council should remain supportive of the Main Street program. This program is helping to resolve our downtown economy and other issues that area. This program will continue to work with building owners and businesses to find a solution to grow our downtown into something we all can be proud of."

The top priority city council should be concerned with after the election is a government that represents Charlevoix residents equally, Bergmann said.

"City council should work together to keep our great city moving forward in a way that helps all citizens," Bergmann said. "We need to stay the course of improving our infrastructure while remaining fiscally responsible when it comes to the taxpayer's money. I will do those things as a representative of the 1st Ward."

Circle of Arts announces fall class registration

CHARLEVOIX - The Charlevoix Circle of Arts is currently accepting registrations for upcoming fall classes with topics ranging from textiles, jewelry, printmaking and painting. New to the Circle this year is a dance/yoga series that looks to build in offerings as the season progresses.

"We are thrilled to have in place a new dance floor made possible by the support of private donors and a grant from the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs," said Gall DeMeyere, executive director for the Circle of Arts. "Now we can open our programming to a larger audience and bring more experiences to our wonderfully creative space on Clinton Street."

Heidi Dietrich began teaching yoga classes on Tuesday evenings and Wednesday mornings and brings to the Circle her enthusiasm and experience in the yoga arts. Dietrich taught in the park near the marina during the summer months. Jeannine Sladick offers Irish light shoe and clogging.

Rosemary Gould will offer a jewelry making class this fall at the Circle of Arts.

The education series at the Circle of Arts also will include lectures and performances throughout the fall and winter season. On Oct. 10, the artists from the current exhibition, Myths of the Northwoods, will give a Monday Morning Coffee Instructional about their work in the show. Mary Fortuna, Meredith Kreil and Fred Ward will be in the gallery for an informative talk. This series is being sponsored in the fall months by a gift from Castle Farms.

The Charlevoix Circle of Arts is expanding their programming and is looking forward to new ideas to better serve the community. For more information, classes and events, visit www.charlevoixcircle.org.

reading to preschoolers, sponsored a boat for the Boyne Thunder poker run for the past two years, has participated with the annual petunia planting and has been a longtime Venetian Festival volunteer.

She considers her employment at a downtown business an asset to the Charlevoix community that gives added experience for the elected position.

"(I) Work in downtown Charlevoix, which includes being an ambassador for the community," Kalbfell said. "Visitors on a daily basis ask for restaurant recommendations, directions to the mushroom houses and suggestions of sites to visit."

Kalbfell supports the Charlevoix Airport Advisory Committee recommendation to city staff to make changes to hangar leases.

"From what I know, the city benefits from the revenue and is not responsible for building, maintaining and the selling/leasing of those hangars. And the city would have the right of first refusal should the hangar go up for sale," Kalbfell said. "If we are serious about economic development, this seems to be a logical step toward that goal."

The former proposed dock expansion project at the Charlevoix City Marina has "a right to be heard and considered" by the city council, Kalbfell said.

"All issues brought before the city council have a right to be heard and considered. That's part of the democratic process," she said. "Therefore, if the dock expansion issue/project is brought before the City Council, then yes, it should be revisited, especially if the facts have changed. Once all the new and current facts have been presented, it is then council's obligation to make an informed decision."

She does not support the conservation easement ballot initiative to protect the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park because the city can offer better protection, she said.

"I support protecting those areas, but not by handing over city assets to a third party," Kalbfell said. "I believe the best way to protect the city residents' assets is through proper zoning and/or changing the city charter to specifically designate those areas as city parks which could not be developed without a vote of the people. I believe we can accomplish the same protection of these beautiful areas without gifting them away forever."

The City Council alone does not have a role filling storefronts in the downtown area, but should work collaboratively to boost downtown economic climate, she said.

"I am a land owner rights person, so I believe council's role is to work collaboratively with the DDA, business owners, property owners and the Main Street Initiative groups to address the issues of empty storefronts. With all stakeholders involved, outcomes are always better," Kalbfell said.

Some of the top priorities the city council should focus on after the November should include the update and repair of city infrastructure and economic development, Kalbfell said.

"Focus on bringing young families to town and retaining the ones we have," she said. "Continue to develop strategies for a year-round community."

support, especially during the partnership and integration process with Munson Healthcare.

Jenks plans to retire as soon as a new CEO is in place and comfortable in order to allow a smooth transition. She intends to continue living in the area and spend her retirement time enjoying friends and family, traveling, and pursuing some of the service opportunities she is passionate about.

"I'm retiring because it feels like the right time," she said. "I had a unique opportunity to serve as CEO during what was a 'crossroads' for our hospital. I am confident that the relationship with Munson Healthcare secures a solid future for the 'world-class healthcare and hometown caring' that we have a history of providing."

Camels wait to be moved by volunteer "camel jockeys" during the inaugural Charlevoix Camel Cup on Sept. 24 in Bridge Park. The Camel Cup event was hosted to help raise money for the annual Charlevoix Bridge Drop event on New Year's Eve.

Inaugural Camel Cup combines action, fun for all

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Kentucky Derby, the Preakness and the Belmont Stakes collectively make up the prestigious Triple Crown, an event that is steeped in tradition mixed with exhilarating action on the track and plenty of pomp and circumstance in the stands.

The residents of Charlevoix may not have the Triple Crown, however, they now have a race all their own — the Charlevoix Camel Cup — that looks to become an annual tradition each September with its own unique action, fanfare and prestigious trophy.

On Sept. 24, the place to be was Bridge Park in Charlevoix where members of the Charlevoix Bridge Drop committee hosted its inaugural Charlevoix Camel Cup to raise money for New Year's Eve annual bridge drop party. The event brought about 300 to 400 guests to the park to watch 24 camels race in different heats for the coveted top trophy — Camel Cup.

"It was a blast," said event creator Rick Randall. "A complete success for everyone involved."

For those of you who may not have heard of this event, no, the desert animals were not brought to Charlevoix for a race. These were wooden camels that were decorated and sponsored by local businesses. Guests not only got to place their bets on which camel would win the races, but they also got to pick the best dressed camel of them all.

"The crowd was very enthusiastic during the races," Randall said. "It was a great afternoon of fun entertainment for everyone there."

Each participating business had the option of decorating its camel with a theme chosen by each sponsoring business.

"We gave prizes to the most creative looking camels," Randall said.

Doug Labelle, Landscape Logic and Dr. Jay Balazz each placed in the most creative camel dress.

The afternoon proceeded as camels took their places, moved forward by "camel jockeys," as dice throwers tossed soft pillow-sized dice against the wall. Six camels competed at a time.

Although it was an afternoon of fun and entertainment, the racing was proven to be the favorite with all the betting and excitement of each race narrowing down camel competitors to the final heat.

The Charlevoix Elks Lodge took home the prestigious "Camel Cup" trophy Saturday where members will hold onto it for a year until the 2017 Charlevoix Camel Cup.

The race was so successful that many more ideas are already being discussed to improve on the event.

"The camel race turned out to be a great fundraising event for the year," said Dan Barron, Bridge Drop committee member. "We raised several thousand dollars for our Bridge Drop event. There is great potential to expand on this event in the future."

Race organizers also appreciate the support from residents and business community to make this inaugural race successful.

"A heartfelt thank you to everyone who sponsored and came out to our event," Randall said, "... and for everyone in the community that supported it, it would not have been what it turned out to be without them."

Rayders down Grayling 8-0 by halftime on special night

EVAN SASIELA

CHARLEVOIX — Two years after welcoming his son into the world, Charlevoix boys' soccer coach Jon Boss honored him for the first time at the helm.

The Rayders defeated Grayling 8-0 on Thursday in a mercy-rule game that was over by halftime.

Despite the Charlevoix drubbing, both teams met on the field after the game as Boss addressed the community, thanking them for their support for remembering his son Noah, who passed away in March 2015 at six months.

"It's nice that we're able to do something like this in memory of Noah," Boss said. "The timing of the year is where this is something we can do in honor of him and Charlevoix kept the Noah's Ark trophy, which was first established last year. The Rayders won 2-1 in 2015, with Boss in attendance watching during his leave of absence.

The 2016 contest proved to be all Charlevoix, as the Rayders struck first within the first 10 minutes when Danny Nesburg dished to Wesley Crandell for the early 1-0 lead.

After unassisted goals by Noah Carson and Kevin Pearl, the latter added his second goal as he darted up the middle of the field off a pass from Christian Matye to make it a four-goal lead for the Rayders.

Rayders humbled by Glen Lake 49-7 in battle of state-ranked teams

MAPLE CITY — Charlevoix's best start since 1991 had the Rayders dreaming big about what they could accomplish this season.

There's still plenty for the Rayders to aim for, but a 49-7 road loss on Friday night to a strong Glen Lake team showed Charlevoix that to reach its dreams, it's going to have to get back to work.

The Lakers controlled Friday's contest from start to finish, jumping out to a 28-0 halftime lead and not letting up until the final whistle in the victory.

Junior tailback Nick Apsey scored four times and finished with 251 yards of total offense to lead Glen Lake's high-powered offense.

Charlevoix coach Ron Blind had plenty of credit for the Lakers after the loss, calling them an excellent football team, but was disappointed in his own team's play in what was their biggest game of the season to date. "All the fundamentals that we work on, tackling, blocking, executing our assignments, we couldn't do any of it right," Blind said. "(Glen Lake was) bigger, faster, stronger and tougher than us, and we didn't play with the focus and the intensity we needed to have a chance of making up for that.

"We just gave up too many big plays on both sides of the ball, and that goes back to not being there physically or mentally in the way we needed to be."

The Rayders' lone touchdown came on a 12-yard reception by Colin Smith from quarterback Brad Klinger in the fourth quarter.

Klinger finished 6 of 13 with 46 yards passing, and added 11 carries for 64 yards on the ground, while Malcom Williams chipped in 61 yards on nine carries.

Smith led Charlevoix's receivers with 33 yards on three catches, and Caleb Hart chipped in five tackles and Oliver DeYoung four tackles to lead the Rayders defensively.

CHARLEVOIX — Progress is coming every week for the Charlevoix volleyball team.

After losing every match at the Bay City Invite two weeks ago, the Rayders traveled to Morley-Starwood for an equally tough invite on Saturday and put together a better performance, splitting three matches before falling to Bay City Central in bracket play.

Charlevoix split close matches with Chippewa Hills (25-23, 23-25) and Lakeview (19-25, 25-21), and also took a set off of defending Class D state champion and third-ranked Leland (22-25, 25-22) to finish second in its pool.

That sent the Rayders to bracket play, where they won the first set over the Wolves 25-21, but Bay City Central rallied to win two close sets 25-18, 15-

Rayders face packed schedule as girls golf season winds down

JAMES CHRISTENSEN
(231) 439-9343
jchristens@petoskeynews.com

CHEBOYGAN — Only inclement weather has kept the Charlevoix girls golf team from taking on a whirlwind schedule over the last week.

With regionals just under two weeks away, all the area golf teams are scrambling to get as many competitive rounds in as the rough fall weather in Northern Michigan will allow to be as prepared as possible.

That includes a Monday tournament in Cheboygan, where the Rayders brought home third place behind defending Division 1 state champion T.C. West and Harbor Springs.

The Rayders shot a 390 overall, beating fourth place Petoskey by 10 strokes.

Charlevoix got a great round from Abbey Scholten, who shot an 89 to lead the Rayders, and teammate Rylynn Sladek chipped in a season-low 92 as well.

Emily Sabsook also broke the 100 mark with Charlevoix's Emily Sabsook had a consistent week to help the Rayders finish in the top four at both events they attended.

a round of 97 for the Rayders, who also got a 112 from Annie Joy, a 113 from Maddie Lee and a 117 from Jane Keily in the tournament.

Monday's performance was an improvement over Charlevoix's performance at the Harbor Springs Invite last Thursday at Harbor Point Golf Club, where the Rayders battled through rain and wind to shoot a 424 and take fourth overall behind the Titans, Rams and Northmen.

Scholten shot a 97 to lead Charlevoix, with Sabsook carding a 102, Olivia Jeakle a 111, and Lee a 114.

Joy shot a 116 and Sladek a 131 as well for the Rayders.

Charlevoix also had a match with Harbor Springs and Petoskey scheduled for Tuesday at Wequetonsing, but more rain made the course unplayable and forced them to move it to Thursday.

The Rayders play in the LMC Championship on Wednesday at Grayling Country Club, take on that makeup match on Thursday at Wequetonsing, and wrap up the regular season at the T.C. Central Invite on Monday.

The regional tournament is on Oct. 7 in Manistee, where Charlevoix will be one of a few schools in contention for a top 3 spot and the program's first trip to the Division 4 state finals at Forest Akers West in East Lansing.

JV Rayders top Rams in Pop Warner action

CENTRAL LAKE — Charlevoix's JV Pop Warner football squad rolled to a second-straight win over the weekend, beating Harbor Springs 23-0 in Central Lake on Saturday.

Running back John Sauer had a standout performance for the Rayders in the win, scoring rushing touchdowns of 45, 35 and 25 yards to help Charlevoix pull away for the victory.

Max Ostrum kicked two extra points and teamed with Sauer, Dmitri Bell, Isaac Moar and Patrick Sterrett to help the Rayders put up big numbers on the ground in the victory.

Up front, offensive linemen Jack Herzog, Jake Claflin, Max Dixon and Joshua House played their best game of the season, opening holes for Charlevoix's rushing attack.

Defensively, the Rayders pitched their second straight shutout, led by solid tackling from Bell, Claflin, Ostrum, Sauer and Adam Streeter.

The Peeewe Rayders were also in action over the weekend, traveling to Boyne City to face Kingsley III.

Charlevoix fell 19-0 to a strong Stags outfit, though coaches said the kids played hard to the final whistle and had fun throughout.

The JV Rayders travel to Petoskey's new Northmen Stadium this Saturday at 2:30 for their next contest against the Petoskey Wildcats, while the Peeewe Rayders head to Central Lake to take on Kingsley I on the same day at 1 p.m.

off the bench to score back-to-back goals with assists from Matt Good and Matye, respectively.

Nesburg capped the scoring on an assist from Pearl with 8:25 to play in the half.

"We spread the scoring out — we were able to work the ball around and got a lot of through-balls going through," Boss said. "We've been working on our finishing. The guys had fun, and it makes a difference when you're having fun playing."

Boss said he expected a full game against the Vikings, but added it was good for his bench to gain some valuable game action.

"We've had a few other games that we played really well," Boss said. "It was good to get a lot of the bench players in there to get them some quality minutes, and some experience because we're going to need that experience as we get later in the season."

The Vikings spent more time trying to defend the Rayders' offense as opposed to using their own. Despite the mercy loss, Grayling head coach Brad Wagner said he is happy to be a part of such a meaningful game.

"It reminds that sometimes there are more important things that happen on the pitch and actually, lots of times, there's more important things that happen on the pitch," Wagner said. "We talked to the guys beforehand that it's a good reminder that everything's a gift and you should celebrate it accordingly."

Boss said his return to the sidelines for this game was a little different than last year, and was happy to get the team win and have the community support for

"A lot of time has passed and everything but it's just good to be again with Grayling and to be able to participate is really the biggest thing," he said. "We just hope to continue this memorial game for years to come."

Charlevoix (10-4-2, 3-2 LMC) returns to the field next Thursday, Sept. 29, at Boyne City.

10 to end Charlevoix's run.

It's a step forward for Charlevoix, but Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said the team still has more work to do to get where they want to be.

"Our biggest obstacle is to be consistent and persevering in tight matches," Randall said. "The girls are working on keeping the communication going as we head deeper into tournament and our season."

"Our mental focus also is going to be a key component to our longevity in tournaments as well."

Setters Kenzy O'Leary and Becca Moon had big tournaments for the Rayders, with O'Leary finishing with 16 kills, five aces, one block, 30 digs and 38 assists, and Moon adding 14 kills, six aces, 34 assists and 38 digs.

Elise Stuck led Charlevoix at the net with 24 kills, seven blocks, seven aces and 29 digs, Beth Veenstra chipped in 10 kills, six aces, four blocks and 12 digs, and Ellie Louiselle added four blocks and three kills.

Julia Doskoch led the Rayder back row defensively with 16 digs, Ali Jarema chipped in 12 and Kealey Grandell-Marfuta added 10 digs and six aces.

Chumming is helpful for fishing in the fall and winter, when steelhead metabolism slows and fish are less likely to bite. Guides like to use it to ensure visiting anglers have success.

Ban on baiting trout with chum stirs controversy

MARIE OTTENBURGER
Capital News Service

LANSING — Many anglers and guides are unhappy about the Natural Resources Commission's new ban on scattering fish parts and eggs to lure fish on trout streams.

"It kind of drives me nuts," said Chad Betts, owner of Betts Guide Service and Outfitters in Newaygo.

Known as chumming, the practice has long been controversial. Critics say it can cause disease and that it's an unfair way to catch more fish.

But some anglers don't think those are reasons enough to categorically ban the practice on trout streams, as the commission did in July. They argue that the ban will deal a blow to Michigan's fishing tourism economy.

Chumming is helpful for fishing in the fall and winter, when steelhead metabolism slows and fish are less likely to bite. Guides like to use it to ensure visiting anglers have success.

"These people might have one day a year to fish," said Eric Richards, owner and operator of Richards River Guide in Montague. Chumming "is not a magic bullet by any means, but it is a nice tool to have in your arsenal."

Betts anticipates a 40-50 percent decline in fall and winter clientele.

"We have customers who are saying they're not going to come back" after hearing about the ban, Betts said.

The reason for the commission ban is chumming's potential to harm the health of trout and salmon.

"There's a lot of uncertainty around chumming," said Nick Popoff, manager of the Department of Natural Resources Aquatic Species and Regulatory Affairs Unit. "Generally, conservation decisions err on the side of safety."

Popoff cited two studies as key contributors to the commission's decision. One 2011 study investigated potential negative impacts of using commercially cured eggs as bait. Curing eggs preserves them for longer use but can involve chemicals that increased mortality in juvenile salmon and trout. The other study, published in 1995, investigated the potential for disease transmission through eggs in Japan.

"There are other diseases that we currently don't have in the Great Lakes that could be transmitted by eggs," Popoff said.

Supporters of chumming feel the studies don't substantiate the ban. They prefer to see more region-specific scientific evidence that proves chumming is harmful.

"I don't think those are representative of our ecosystem," Richards said of the earlier studies.

Chumming was banned in Michigan once before, from 2007-12. The concern then was that fish eggs used for chumming in the Great Lakes could transmit viral hemorrhagic septicemia (VHS), a fast-spreading disease that could quickly obliterate an entire species of fish. In 2012, the Great Lakes strain of viral hemorrhagic septicemia was found not to be transmittable via fish eggs, and the ban was lifted.

The practice came back into question after a recent increase in chumming to catch steelhead, followed shortly by an influx of complaints about it. State officials began considering how to regulate the practice in 2014.

For Michigan Trout Unlimited, it's a matter of fairness.

"We want the largest percentage of anglers going out to get steelhead to have some degree of success," said executive director Bryan Burroughs. Unregulated chumming allowed some anglers to go home with 10 to 12 steelhead, he said, but others without a bite.

Chumming supporters compare it to using more effective tools in hunting. Those who choose more challenging methods will have more of a challenge.

For example, Richards, the guide, said. "Just because it was more successful, is that really a reason to make it illegal. You chose to fly fish. Fly fishing is a challenge."

Richards and Betts both advocate restricting how many eggs can be used to chum, which was one of five options for regulations discussed in commission meetings. The others involved banning chumming on some or all trout streams. No options suggested specific regulations on egg origin or cure ingredients.

"It was an all-or-nothing approach basically," said Amy Trotter, deputy director of the Michigan United Conservation Clubs. "I don't fault the commissioners. I think they had some valid concerns about disease and about the cures. What I would have liked was a little more creative thought as to how we can address those concerns rather than banning it."

"But if we don't have the information and data ready to go, then banning it was the only way to address those concerns at this point," she added.

Trotter said she hopes that in the two years before the next Michigan DNR Fishing Guide is published, chumming supporters will help come up with solutions, and that the commission will remain open to adjusting the regulation.

"We have to think through some mechanisms to actually enforce knowing where your eggs are coming from. Other states have done it. I don't think that is insurmountable," she said. "It certainly requires a little more work though."

The practice is still allowed on other bodies of water.

In other Great Lakes states, chumming regulations center on the disposal of fish parts into bodies of water as litter. Wisconsin prohibits chumming unless anglers can retrieve the fish parts once they're done using them, by using a mesh bag, for example. Ohio has similar restrictions.

"It's the unsanitary nature of disposing of those things," said Jeff Collingwood, supervisor of the Ohio Department of Natural Resources' Lake Erie Law Enforcement Unit. Disposed fish remains, he added, are unsightly, attract nuisance wildlife and eventually smell. But anglers can chum in any body of water if they clean up after themselves.

In Pennsylvania, "excessive" chumming is considered illegal littering. The practice is completely banned in Minnesota and New York.

Federal grant aids seniors' transportation

ANTHONY D'ARNEY
Capital News Service

LANSING — Seniors will be one step closer to independence with the help of a $1 million federal grant to assist them in getting to doctors' appointments.

U.S. Sens. Gary Peters and Debbie Stabenow, both Democrats, announced that a grant to the Michigan Department of Transportation would allow more access to transportation to and from physician visits, appointments and other tasks. The grant would assist non-emergency transportation services that use buses or vans to accommodate seniors.

MDOT sponsored a grant application from the Michigan Transportation Connection, a statewide nonprofit, under a federal program called Rides to Wellness Demonstration and Innovative Coordinated Access and Mobility.

"We were the supporters of the grant for the Michigan Transportation Connection. But the Michigan Transportation Connection will implement the structure of the Rides to Wellness programs," said Tim Fischer, director of communications for MDOT.

The demand for such services increases as the nation's aging population grows. In Michigan, seniors account for nearly 16 percent of the state's population. Those numbers become more concentrated in northern counties.

Some health care facilities already see benefits of senior independence.

"We take our seniors twice a week to shop at store like Meljer on their own to gain a sense of independence," said Dawn Van Koevering, transportation coordinator of Georgetown Senior Transport in Ottawa County.

"Being able to shop on their own is an important aspect of gaining their independence and healthy lives," she said.

resources already to help senior citizens reach healthy, independent living.

Ottawa, Allegan, Muskegon and Kent counties teamed with Pioneer Resources, a nonprofit based in Muskegon, to form the Lakeshore Ride Link, which provides a list of providers to get seniors to their medical appointments.

Non-emergency transportation services assist those who live in health care facilities, as well as those who live at home.

According to Family Caregiver Alliance, a national community-based nonprofit organization, more and more baby boomers seek the comfort of their own homes compared to long-term health care facilities.

It estimates that 80 percent of elderly people receiving assistance, like the non-emergency transportation services, live in private homes.

"I never wanted to live in a (health care facility). I feel more comfortable in my own home and getting the services I need when I ask for them," Detroit resident Lucy Edwards said.

Edwards also uses non-emergency transportation services to get to her doctor's office for monthly visits.

Bills would add time to driver's ed, make bicyclists safer

ALEXANDER SMITH
Capital News Service

LANSING — Bicyclists may be safer when riding on Michigan roads if new driver's education bills are passed by the Legislature.

The proposals would require vehicles to be at least 5 feet away when passing a cyclist and create harsher penalties for injuring or killing a rider. They would also require three hours of instruction on bicycle and motorcycle awareness as part of driver's education.

According to the Office of Highway Safety Planning, crashes between motorists and bicyclists rose 57 percent from 2014 to 2015. Between Jan. 1 and Aug. 30 this year, 18 bicyclists died from crashes with vehicles.

Some cities have local laws about how close a car can pass a bicyclist, but according to bill sponsor Sen. Margaret O'Brien, R-Portage, a state law needs to set a uniform standard.

"We've seen 3 feet, we've seen 5 feet, we've seen nothing at all," O'Brien said. "It creates a patchwork of laws that confuses drivers and expects them to know how the laws change between municipalities."

Many people don't know bicyclists have an equal right to be on the road, O'Brien said. One of the bills would make that clear by adding safe road-sharing in the additional three hours of driver's education.

Not everyone agrees with adding class time. The Secretary of State does not support the legislation due to the potential costs, according to Fred Woodhams, the communications manager.

"Drivers education courses are 24 hours at a minimum, so if you're adding hours to that, you're cutting out other critical components or you're expanding hours and increasing the costs to parents," Woodhams said. "As you increase the cost, that will result in fewer teens taking driver's ed, waiting until they turn 18 to take the driver's test and not going through driver's ed at all."

The curriculum already dedicates two hours to sharing the road, Woodhams said.

Cyclists have the same right to use public roads, but sidewalks are often much safer, said Julie Baesch, co-owner of City Bike Shop in Traverse City.

"I think sometimes we bikers want exactly the same rights as cars, but we really shouldn't be riding in some places," Baesch said.

Still, drivers shouldn't think bicyclists don't belong on public streets, said David Bucholtz, the store manager of McLain Cycle & Fitness in Traverse City.

"I think bikes should be able to go everywhere. Should we have our own bike lanes off to the side? Absolutely, but motorists should learn that I pay taxes too, I have the right to be there too. If it means slowing them down a little bit and they have to give me a wider berth, well yeah golly, I'm sorry, but it's for our safety," he said. Bucholtz, an avid group rider, said he hopes the bills will boost awareness.

Ignorant drivers are a common danger to his team, he said.

"No accidents yet but there's always a close call, there's always some sort of exchange with a motorist who will tell us we shouldn't be on the road or ask why aren't we on the sidewalk," Bucholtz said. "It's a usual occurrence."

The bills have been reported by the Senate Judiciary Committee but have not yet been scheduled for a vote by the full Senate.

With rain clearing early last Thursday, Sept. 22, the Charlevoix downtown Farmers Market paid special tribute to local veterans and service people with Farmers' Market shoppers and community members turning out in the hundreds.

School children, teachers, parents and all veterans had been invited to participate in the event that honored their service. The event began with a special reciting of the Pledge of Allegiance at 10 a.m. by fifth-grade student Justin Whisler and was followed by the playing of the Na-

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix County Road Commission had a busy summer as crews were awarded a trio of projects, which included repairing and resurfacing Deer Lake Road, Korthase Road and Ellsworth Road.

Commission manager Pat Harmon said the next project to be tackled will be repairing Marion Center Road, which at 7.12 miles is the second longest project the commission will undertake after having recently completed an 8.14-mile Boyne City-Charlevoix Road total reconstruction project from Pincherry Road to Western Avenue.

The repairing (wedge and 2-inch overlay) of Marion Center Road is part of a 15-year one-mill tax levy to pay for road repairs in the county, which passed in the 2008 election.

Construction is slated to begin at the south end of Marion Center Road in 2018 coupled with federal funding coming in that same year.

"It hasn't been officially decided yet because the steering committee hasn't made the official recommendation," Harmon said. "Right after the millage was passed, I made a recommendation to the

Apple Fest a core event in Charlevoix

SEAN MILLER
(231) 439-9378 smiller4@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — With fall underway, many Northern Michigan apple orchards are busy harvesting their many types of apples just in time for the 38th annual Apple Fest in Charlevoix.

"Apple Fest is our fall harvest festival. It is a real community based event with lots of different things going on," said Shelly Ferguson, event coordinator.

"The agricultural community participates and we will have five major apple orchards coming and setting up right downtown on Bridge Street for the festival with their apples and all sorts of different apple related products like baked goods, pies, caramel apples and more. It is just a great thing for them and the community," she said.

Olesky seeks to be a voice for Charlevoix's 2nd Ward

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix native and retired St. Marys Cement employee Tom Olesky wants to be a voice for the people on the Charlevoix City Council.

Olesky, 72, is challenging incumbent Bill Supernaw to represent the citizens of the 2nd Ward in the Nov. 8 general election. Olesky said he will bring a trustworthy and unbiased approach to governing that moves the city forward by bringing all voices to the table.

"I have always had an interest in serving on our city government," Olesky said. "I have no conflict of interest or personal agenda. It will be an honor for me to serve the city with honesty and fairness that includes the people of the 2nd Ward and our entire city."

Olesky graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1963 and enlisted in the U.S. Navy after graduation, serving for four years aboard the USS two Jima LPH-2 as an electricians mate, which included two tours in Vietnam. He returned to Charlevoix after receiving an honorable discharge in 1967, where he was hired at the Medusa Cement Company.

During the next 40 years Olesky remained employed as CHARLEVOIX — First-term Charlevoix City Councilman Bill Supernaw seeks to be re-elected by his constituents, saying there is more to do as he continues working through concerns from the neighborhood level to citywide.

"My first term on the council has been interesting, rewarding and occasionally disappointing," Supernaw said. "A lot goes on down there (and) much was accomplished. Those new streets don't just happen. And 'frozen pipes' will hopefully be a thing of the past. I'm learning and would really like to continue serving. We don't need to put the brakes on now."

Supernaw, 73, is a lifelong resident of Charlevoix. He is mostly retired, but volunteers for a medical transport company that transports people to and from doctor and hospital appointments.

"I meet lots and lots of interesting people and when I tell them I'm from Charlevoix they all say 'Oh, Charlevoix, what a fantastic town,'" Supernaw said.

For 15 years, Supernaw has been a board member of the Charlevoix County Junior Golf Association, an active member of the St. Marys Catholic

Signed petition requests voluntary landing curfew at airport

LOUISE ALLEN
(213) 547-4558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A group of community members turned in a signed petition to members of the Charlevoix City Council Monday requesting them to implement a noise abatement curfew at the airport.

The curfew would be of voluntary compliance, but would increase landing fees on aircraft owners who choose to land in Charlevoix between the hours of 11 p.m. and 7 a.m.

Mostly residents in the 3rd Ward who are seeking relief from jet noise late in the night signed the petition, said resident Del Terrill.

"You should recognize many of those signatures," Terrill said. "Almost 25 of those families have been homeowners 20 years or more. That is at least 500 years of tax paying to this city. We deserve some relief."

The curfew exempts medical transport, law enforcement, federal and state flights and would not affect the operations of Island Airways and Fresh Air Aviation, said resident Don Exelby.

"This curfew is the same as the voluntary landing pattern that is in effect now," he said.

Residents hope to end late night jet noise at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport with voluntary landing curfew that would impose higher landing fees after 11 p.m.

"The airport advisory committee passed this curfew petition request on to the airport manager and we do not know what became of it. We would like to see some action on it."

It is a seasonal problem that starts in mid-May and goes to mid-September that the city has attempted to deal with for about eight years, Exelby said.

"The main problem is the city council changes and city staff change. Ever since this city has decided to be part of the jet-set this problem has only gotten worse," Exelby said. "It was a problem in 2008 and has only increased over the past years. We would like the city council to give the airport manager direction to get this done by the end of the year."

Airport advisory committee member Don Seelye does not think raising fees on aircraft coming in after 11 p.m. is a good idea.

"We can't make loud trucks on U.S. 31 driving through town at night pay extra fees," Seelye said. "You can't shut down a federally funded state trunk-line at night because of noise and you can't shut down a federally funded airport at night for noise."

The airport advisory board has been working through the noise issue at that airport by suggesting the airport manager do more education and outreach, Seelye said.

"We have had a lot of discussion about this during the past year," Seelye said.

"We've directed the airport manager several times to complete our requests. We are waiting on action from her."

The airport manager, Liz Myer, has reached out to the Federal Aviation Administration to get guidance about the advisory committee requests and the petition request from residents, said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"The city has taken the airport advisory committee recommendations and petition request to the FAA to get feedback," Heydlauff said. "Before we go any further on this we want to see what the FAA recommends."

Apple Fest Fun Run promises good time in downtown Charlevoix

LOUISE ALLEN
(213) 547-4558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — On Saturday, Oct. 15, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club will host its fifth annual Apple Fest Fun Run. This event coincides with the family-friendly Charlevoix Apple Fest in downtown Charlevoix from Oct. 14-16.

The Fun Run includes both a 1-mile and a 5K option. All participants are invited to arrive between 7:30 a.m.-9:15 a.m. on race day to receive a goody bag at check-in, which is located in the bandshell.

This year, the bags will include a retro-style lunch box and coupons to lots of the local establishments and a free swim pass at the community pool.

The run benefits the Charlevoix Kiwanis Youth Foundation and all funds stay in the community to support kids and their activities. Each year the race features hay bale mazes, an apple toss, corn husking and one new surprise obstacle on the course.

"We want kids and adults of all skill levels to come out and enjoy fall, the Apple Fest, and to get some exercise," said Leah Olson, Kiwanis Club member. "Each year we look forward to some creative family teams and even teams of friends who come out to have fun."

The 1-mile and 5K races begin at 9 a.m. and 9:30 a.m., respectively, at the corner of Bevedere Avenue and U.S. 31.

The 1-mile race is $10 per person, and the 5K is $15 per person, or $50 per family of four or more.

Overall, the annual fun run has been a huge success in previous years and is a great way for families to bond and have fun. The run has slowly grown from the original 45 participants to an expected group of more than 150 participants this year, Olson said.

"We have lots of folks who come back year-after-year and we also have some new people out enjoying the fall," Olson said. "We have great local sponsorship including our 'HoneyCrisp' sponsor, Charlevoix State Bank, whom without we wouldn't be able to offer the scholarships and discounts that we do for families and kids."

Each year race organizers send out more than 700 coupons to the schools so that anyone who wants to come out and participate can even if they can't otherwise afford to do the race, Olson said.

Race organizers also will provide Johan's doughnuts, Kiwanis' treats and coffee and cocoa at the end for everyone who participates.

Individuals and teams can register online prior to Oct. 14 for an early bird registration race by going to www.CharlevoixKiwanis.org.

Charlevoix Public Schools board trustee spotlight: Matt Peterson

CHARLEVOIX — Matt Peterson has been a trustee on Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education for two years. He and his wife, Karen, have been married for 18 years and have two sons, Ben, 16, and Sam, 12, and two dogs Grace and Zoe.

When Peterson is away from work and school board activities he can be found spending his free time with his family, attending his children's sporting events and participating in most outdoor activities. His favorite childhood memories relate to the small town values Charlevoix and Northern Michigan.

"(I enjoy) being able to walk/ride bikes to friends houses and around town, enjoying all that our little town has to offer — skiing, beaches, sports and more," Peterson said. "Northern Michigan is truly a great place to grow up."

Peterson said what he likes best about serving on the school board is the "positive and caring dialogue" that takes place when discussing student education.

"The positive, caring dialogue that occurs among the board members related to helping the kids in our schools is helpful," Peterson said. "It seems that every board member brings something different to the table...and all of these things help to make our schools a great place."

A few of the things Peterson loves most about Charlevoix Public Schools is the caring and quality staff, the supportive community and the Rayder school pride.

His wish for students and school staff is to continue to see positive experiences for each of them in the school system.

"Although this sounds like a cliché... what I wish for our staff is that they "do what's best for kids" and I truly feel like this happens," Peterson said. "What I wish for our students is that they leave Charlevoix schools and feel that they have had good academic and co-curricular experiences that provide a good foundation for their futures. Lastly, that they look back on their K-12 experiences with pride."

LETTER to the editor

Grateful for business support

Editors:
On behalf of the Chain O' Lakes Disc Golf Club, I am writing today to thank all of the businesses that sponsored the club this summer. At the risk of accidentally omitting someone, I am not going to name all of you here, but the overwhelming support of the city enabled this season at Mount McSaubia to be very successful from start to finish.

We are pleased with the course improvements that we made this summer, including adding several benches near the tee pads and installing some wooden stairs to help negate dune erosion. As a relative newcomer to Charlevoix, I found the club itself to be very welcoming, a great group of people who value competition and camaraderie just as much as they value the continued conservation of the Mount McSaubia area. As good as it was, the 2016 season is nearly in the books, so here's to a great 2017.

Fall is in the air, join us for Apple Fest

Fall is in the air and Northern Michigan orchards are busy harvesting bushels of fresh, ripe apples in preparation for the 38th annual Apple Fest taking place in downtown Charlevoix Friday through Sunday, Oct. 14-16. I look forward to seeing all the area orchards that will be set up downtown in East Park with more than 30 types of apples and a variety of fall harvest items and apple related goods.

Local nonprofit organizations also will be onsite to tempt festival visitors with delicious, hot food such as chili, hot dogs, apple flappens, Irish apple cake and kielbasa. The special Fall Market is the perfect place to pick up your fresh bagels, mustard, honey, meat, baked goods, granola, soup, maple syrup, cider, mums, pies, jam and fall veggies — all locally grown and produced.

You also won't want to miss the expanded Art & Craft Show taking place all three days. More than 125 artist booths will be located in East Park. Head one block north to Bridge Park to check out an additional 40 more booths. In total, there are more than 165 exhibitor booths bursting with unique, one-of-a-kind creations. The show offers the work of artists and craftsmen from around the country and is the perfect venue to kick off the holiday shopping season, so be sure to check out both locations.

The children's area will be located on Mason Street on Saturday and Sunday only. Bring the family for a variety of child friendly activities including a petting farm, real live camel, face painting, Twister Joe Balloon Artist and more.

New this year, children can ride and play with the interactive trains provided by Castle Farms. The train area will be located in East Park in and around the Odmark Pavillion. Trains will be running on all three days of the festival (weather permitting). Also new this year on Saturday afternoon, The Pine River Jazz Band will perform a free swing dance concert from 3-5 p.m. on the east end of Mason Street.

The Kiwanis Apple Fest Family Fun Run is on tap for Saturday morning and you can learn more about the run at www.charlevoixkiwanis.org.

Join us for all the festivities and show your support for our local farmers, orchards and nonprofit organizations while celebrating the season in scenic downtown Charlevoix that weekend. For a full list of event activities, visit www.charlevoix.org.

Domestic abuse awareness month: every action, every day

Autumn is here and Domestic Abuse Awareness Month has rolled back around in what seems like record time.

Yet in that short time, a more open national and global conversation about this issue has helped create a greater awareness — almost an awakening — of the issue of domestic abuse and its long reaching effects on survivors, their families and entire communities.

Incidents of domestic abuse continue to make national, state and local news headlines. Individuals, groups and institutions across the country and in our community are standing up to end violence against women and girls by publicly supporting survivors and taking action to create change.

All community members can be part of this change. We can take action in our everyday lives to create the change necessary to end this prevalent problem affecting those we love: mothers, sisters, daughters, partners, friends and coworkers.

Are you ready to take action? We firmly believe positive change can happen through seemingly small, everyday actions.

These actions can be personal, like avoiding language that may minimize the value and contributions of women. Some actions might seem basic, such as following the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan on Facebook or simply taking the time to be a helpful neighbor.

CHRIS KRAJEWSKI

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan

You can take public action, like donating to the annual Harvest Food Drive, or contacting your congressperson about legislation that supports survivors of domestic violence. No matter the action, however big or small, making ending violence against women part of your everyday life, through your kind words and respectful actions, is how we will change the world.

With every action, you are choosing to be part of the solution in ending domestic abuse and helping create a better, safer community for all of us. So make a pledge today to help end violence against women through your everyday actions.

If your business, group or organization would like more information on how to help end violence against women and girls in our community, contact the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan's main office at (231) 347-1572 or visit wrcnm.org.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

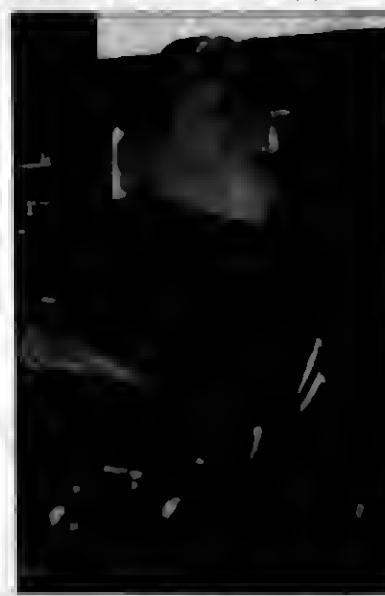

The Farmers and Merchants Bank of Charlevoix was founded in 1883.

The Farmers and Merchants Bank of Charlevoix was founded in 1883 by local resident Archibald Butters, then state senator for the 28th District; A. R. Upright, county clerk and register of deeds after whom Upright Street is named; and a man named Thomas. One year later, four more men came aboard and reorganized the enterprise into the Charlevoix Savings Bank. On Jan. 2, 1890, it was renamed the Charlevoix County Bank, and in 1903 moved up to the Clinton Street corner where the North Seas Gallery is today.

The old building then saw a number of businesses pass in and out. After the move, a dealer in candy, fruit and cigars occupied the premises. By the 1930s, the building gained the identity with which it is associated to this day — a seller of spirits. The second photo, circa 1935, shows it as Jimmy Bracken's Tavern. By the 1940s, with a refurbished facade, it had become Scotty's, and not long after that reached its present incarnation as the Town House Bar.

A number of businesses passed through the old building. It became Scotty's in the 1930's the site has been the location The Town House Bar for many years.

COMMUNITY

Voter registration deadline, November general election nears

Tuesday Oct. 11, is the last day to register to vote in the Nov. 8 presidential election.

Voters may pick up a State of Michigan voter registration application at a local Secretary of State branch office, local county, city or township clerk's office, offices of several state agencies such as the Department of Human Services, Department of Community Health and Department of Labor and Economic Growth, and military recruitment centers. Michigan does allow online voter registration.

To register, voters need to confirm they are a U.S. citizen and will be 18 years old by Nov. 8 and provide a Michigan driver's license or personal identification number. Individuals who don't have one, must provide the last four digits of their Social Security number. People who have none of the above must indicate that information. In addition, registrants must provide their full name and residential address, their gender and date of birth. If the mailing address is different, provide it and then sign and date the form.

Those who are registered outside of Michigan or with a different name, must provide the name and/or address where they were registered.

Voters also will have to present an official Michigan identification card or driver's license, or another generally recognized photo identification. People without one, must sign an affidavit. Michigan law states that the same address must be used for voter registration and driver's license purposes. That means, if the residence address registrants provide on the application differs from the address shown on a driver's license or personal identification card issued by the State of Michigan, the Secretary of State will automatically change the driver's license or personal identification card address to match the residence address entered on the form. Registrants must then return the voter registration application to the local city or township clerk by Oct. 11.

Computer users may also download and print the State of Michigan voter registration application from the Michigan Secretary of State website at www.Michigan.gov/vote. Complete the above steps and mail or return the voter registration application to a local city or township clerk by Oct. 11.

When registering by mail, if registrants don't provide their Michigan driver's license or personal identification number and don't provide the last four digits of the voter's Social Security number, they must provide a copy of one of the following with their registration or when they vote: current photo ID, paycheck stub, utility bill, bank statement, or a government document with their name and address.

First-time Michigan voters who register to vote by mail or through a voter registration drive, can not vote absentee in their first election. They must vote in person on Election Day. However, if voters register in person at one of the registration locations listed above, they will be able to vote absentee in their first election.

A group of Charlevoix Middle School 5th and 6th grade students in Kristle Robarge health class took a field trip to the Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Wellness Workshop at 411 Bridge Street to make green smoothies in early September. "They loved them," Robarge said. The health class is new this year, and is being offered as a "Specials" class to students. The class offering is part of the School Nurse Initiative through Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital.

Changing season has Charlevoix Farmers Market changing locations

CHARLEVOIX - The Charlevoix Farmers Market will have three major changes starting Oct. 13, the Thursday before Applefest weekend.

The market will run from 3-6 p.m. on Thursdays at the fall Charlevoix Public Library location instead of the summer's morning schedule in East Park. Organizers said email orders will be assembled for quick pickup via chx-farmersmarket@gmail.com.

Market officials determined that afternoons is a time people will be out picking up kids from school or leaving work and would offer the opportunity for quick market shopping before going home to make dinner, said market manager Chris Leese.

Charlevoix students may take the bus to the library and enjoy an after school snack while parents shop for fresh, weekly staples. Charlevoix Farmers Market coordinators feel that this offers a brief, three hours each Thursday and are hoping for good public support.

The fall location, 220

W. Clinton St., in the library's community room will keep shoppers warm in bad weather. Promoters stressed that there are a lot of products and fresh baked goods to enjoy the late season.

Products can be searched on Facebook, com/CharlevoixFarmersMarket and shoppers can send a list while providing at least an hour lead time. Purchases will be waiting for approval and payment upon customers' arrival.

For questions contact, Chris Leese at (231) 330-0968.

A small group of Young Americans recently visited Charlevoix Montessori Academy for the Arts as a promotion for the upcoming workshop.

Young Americans to host workshop, performance at Charlevoix Middle/High School

CHARLEVOIX - Local students in grades 3-12 will have the opportunity to participate in an upcoming workshop provided by The Young Americans, an international cast of performers, Oct. 9-11, at the Charlevoix Middle/High School auditorium. The intensive performance building workshop will culminate with a performance beginning at 7 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 11, at the auditorium.

The Turn Up the Music national tour will be available to registered students for the three-day workshop. According to Young Americans promotions, the high-energy performance workshop covers vocal techniques, dance, and comedy improvisation, stage movement, sound, lighting and more. Learning a show in three days helps students learn to work together, to respect each others strengths and to discover their own potential. There will also be tutelage for students in the areas of voice, dance, song writing, and performance.

Performance night will feature a cast of 45

Young Americans performing the first act. After that, local students will get the chance to show the audience how fast and well they were able to learn the routines and variety show. The community will get the chance to view Northern Michigan kids as they perform center stage solos and more.

Tickets will be available as the doors open at 6:30 p.m. on performance night. Adults pay $10 and students get in for $8. For more information, visit youngamericans.org.

Back Porch Coffeehouse to host concert Saturday at senior center

CHARLEVOIX - The Back Porch Coffeehouse will feature Carry It On, a Peter, Paul and Mary tribute band, at 7 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 8, at the Charlevoix Senior Center building on the corner of Carpenter and Sheridan streets.

Band members Johnny Hunt, Mike Giffin and Lee Anne Whitman will play classics like Puff the Magic Dragon, Blowin' in the Wind and Where Have All the Flowers Gone in addition to other less familiar tunes from the Peter, Paul and Mary repertoire.

Learn more about Carry It On from their Facebook page, www.facebook.com/CarryItOn.

The Back Porch Music Series is a community event for all ages, and is at the Charlevoix Senior Center. The music begins at 7 p.m., and donations at the door ($10 suggested) are for the scheduled performers. Soups, cookies, coffee and tea are available at no additional charge. A circle jam will follow the performance.

The facility is fully accessible. For more information, call (231) 622-2944.

VOTE NO!

I fear some Charlevoix citizens do not fully understand the ramifications of turning over our recreation areas to the Little Traverse Bay Conservancy. Presently The City Counsel can never change the use of the property in question without a vote of the citizens.

If we do approve the proposal it can never be reversed if we are not satisfied with their stewardship. We would be turning control of a vital City asset over to an outside board, most of which don't even live here. Recreational activities would be frozen as is. We could not change or introduce new activities or expand the recreational activities that we currently have. For example if we wanted to replace the old rope tow at McSauba with a small two person chair lift so young and old could more easily access the hill, it would not be possible. If the City had placed McSauba in the Conservancy when we first got the property we would not have the ski or sledding hills we have now. I don't think any of us have that kind of crystal ball. We all agree that we don't want the property divided or developed. But there are other ways to ensure that won't happen. Please call your council person and ask them to look into other solutions that won't also be so limiting on our future generations.

I believe the next generation, millennials, will be better stewards of our environment than we have been. The petitioners apparently believe our generation must protect future generations from themselves.

Please vote NO on the City of Charlevoix Easement Referendum and keep the decisions about Charlevoix in Charlevoix.

Hearts of Holly settles in at new location

ANNE KELLY

Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Hearts to Holly, a well-known shop for fabric and sewing and quilting supplies in the area, recently moved its location from the former Rose Cottage on Mason Street to Ferry Avenue across from Foster Boat Works condominiums. The added square footage is one of the most notable benefits of the new location.

"We felt the other location to be too small with limited parking," said Emily Miller one of the daughters of Hearts to Holly owners Mike and Sue Miller, who works there. "We will be getting a bigger, more colorful sign soon, so that newcomers can find us more easily."

The Ferry Avenue store has 21 parking places for use by summer shoppers as well as quilters who come to shop and/or take classes all year round.

The Millers have always been a "crafting" family, according to Emily. When the Millers lived in Pennsylvania they made ceramic ornaments. She remembers her parents' home business when she was still in high school.

"In the 1990s we made wooden crafts, 'we' being my parents and three sisters, Leslie, Val and Shelly," she said. "My parents would set up home parties, where participants could order things we made at home. Dad cut the wood needed for the crafts, ornaments, displays and signs in his workshop."

It was Leslie who started everyone quilting, according to Emily. Val, Shelly and finally Sue followed suit. It was then that the Millers got out of their craft business and concentrated on quilting. Leslie had originally given the name "Hearts to Holly" to their enterprise and when, in 2007, the family decided to rent a storefront in the former Rose Cottage building on Mason Street, the name followed.

The name signifies the year in holidays and the quilt shop follows the seasonal sequence with their classes and material selections to this day. Today Hearts to Holly is still very much a family business although the Millers employ additional help throughout the year.

Mike handles the books and does supportive material cutting on their die machine. Sue manages the day to day activities of the shop. Valerie (Miller) Krueger who now lives in Las Vegas, Nevada designs all their holly bunch quilt patterns. Leslie (Miller) Knoop does long arm quilting out of her home business, "Mason Creek Quilting." Shelly, who is an art teacher in Las Vegas comes home in the summer to teach classes and Emily teaches and works in the Charlevoix shop.

A highlight for the business came in 2011, when Hearts to Holly was featured in an article in a Better Homes and Gardens' magazine called Quilt Sampler.

Leslie had designed a quilt that had been constructed out of a Minnick & Simpson fabric line called "Charlevoix" incorporating a nautical and cherries theme. All the family had a part in its execution. Much to their delight, the quilt became the cover for the Spring/Summer 2011 edition of Quilt Sampler.

Hearts to Holly features a weekly Friday Morning "Chatter Time," a meeting place for quilters and sewers to bring their projects, work on them, share ideas and enjoy friendships with other creative people. Vivian Shearer, Sue Miller's sister, provides treats during Chatter Time.

Specialty classes are offered throughout the year: Quilting by Sue and Leslie, sewing projects by Joy Halverson, bags and purses by Dawn Fletcher.

Other instructors are often brought in for demonstrations; Emily has a clothesline basket project made from hand dyed clothesline to share.

The Hearts to Holly web page and newsletter keeps those interested informed of current classes and contests.

"You have to just come in and feel the difference," Emily said of their fabrics. We also have quilting supplies, notions, patterns and books," she said.

Mysteries of the Night Gallery celebrates Halloween

CHARLEVOIX — Armchair Theatre at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts will offer a program to get viewers ready for Halloween. Mysteries of the Night Gallery will showcase two experienced performers at 6:30 p.m. on Sunday, Oct. 9. Jim Ribby, a bard, and Abbey Adler, an actress will bring their talents to the Circle of Arts.

Jim Ribby said "bard" is the Celtic word for story teller. He has more than 50 works committed to memory, with tales and poems that span centuries from the bronze age to modern times. He uses his art to preserve history. Ribby ties writings of different authors together in programs that celebrate major holidays of Western culture such as Halloween. Jim has been involved with performance poetry and stories since 1992. Armchair Theatre audiences enjoyed his program of Civil War stories and poems in 2015.

Mysteries of the Night Gallery will include writings from Edgar Allen Poe, Robert Service, and King David of the Old Testament performed by Ribby.

Caroline Lewis, historian from Old Mission Peninsula, said "when I first heard Jim I felt I had happily entered the doors of a time machine."

Actress Abbey Adler was seen in "Under Milk Wood" at Armchair Theatre this season. She has performed major acting roles in Ireland, England, Italy, Spain, Portugal, and Greece. Her range includes classics, mime, improvisation, comedy. At Queen's University, Belfast she played Masha in Chekov's "The Seagull" and Salome in Oscar Wilde's "Salome." In Hamtramck, she appeared as Mrs. Zero in "The Adding Machine." Adler toured as the Cook in "From Hell" in an adaptation of Aristophanes' "The Frogs" with the University of Detroit Summer Theatre.

Adler taught English literature and theatre at the London Oratory School.

She has worked as a radio journalist for the BBC, has written film scripts and documentaries, and was the news editor for WAIR in Petoskey.

Adler will play Lucy, an art lecturer who ponders the mysteries of Easter Island, the Pyramids, and pre-historic cave paintings, in the contemporary play "A Narrow Bed" by Ellen McLaughlin.

A $5 donation is suggested for the Armchair Theatre programs.

an industrial electrician at the cement plant, where he worked under five different companies before retiring from St. Marys Cement in late 2008. Olesky also is the past president of Local Union 480 United Cement, Lime and Gypsum Workers International Union, a lifetime member of the Knights of Columbus and helps provide the communication annually for the Pine Stampede Race as a ham radio operator.

If elected to the city council, Olesky said he would support changing lease agreements at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport to provide added incentive for private hangar construction.

"I believe the airport is an asset to this community and it will be in the best interest of the airport and city in the long run to add more revenue by leasing land for airport hangars," Olesky said.

There is no need to revisit any expansion of the docks at the Charlevoix Municipal Marina because the people have already made their intentions known on the issue, Olesky said.

"The voters have already answered the question about the dock expansion project," Olesky said. "They are not in favor of it. The dock expansion was not a good idea in regards of safety that would cause overcrowding in the Round Lake waterway."

As a lifelong resident of Charlevoix, Olesky said having access to the wooded areas and dunes at Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and the scenic views of Lake Michigan in a natural state is a must for future generations to experience.

"I grew up skiing, swimming, hiking, et cetera and always enjoyed the natural beauty of that area and it should remain that way for generations to come," Olesky said. "I support people's petition to put this to a vote in November."

At the heart of Charlevoix is the downtown, which provides the iconic landmarks and distinctive features that reflect storied history and a unique vibe for tourism. But to have a vibrant economic base that will support downtown businesses the city should work to grow the population and bring young families to the area by growing industry outside of the downtown, Olesky said.

"The city should work with the Main Street/Downtown Development Authority for the revitalization of the downtown. I also believe the city should do what it can to promote new industry to locate to the Charlevoix area," he said. "Without year-round employment and decent paying jobs, our town will not grow and prosper as it should. You got to have industry and good paying jobs to have a vibrant community that benefits us all."

One goal the city council should focus on after the November election is to find common solutions that can be shared with the city's neighbors, Olesky said.

"Together we are Charlevoix and the city council should work closely with our city manager and the surrounding townships to make us all stronger and resolve any future issues that may come up," Olesky said. "We need to listen to all residents for innovative ways to move Charlevoix forward while keeping the values that make us proud to call Charlevoix our home."

SUPERNAW

Church parish and active with the Charlevoix Alano Club. He is a former business owner in Charlevoix, having been involved with the movie theater — Cinema III — for 39 years. During that time Supernaw was active with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, the Venetian Festival, Charlevoix Recreation Department and he served on the board of the Downtown Development Authority.

So much is controlled at the airport by the Federal Aviation Administration that Supernaw was unsure if lease changes at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport would allow private ownership of hangars rather than becoming city-owned property. But he supports allowing people to build new hangars.

"If interested parties want to build new hangars, why not?" he said. "They can be attractive buildings with a special use and can enhance the overall usefulness of our fantastic airport, by far, the best airport between Traverse City and Pellston."

Supernaw says the city council will not revisit the dock expansion project at the Charlevoix marina.

"It's complete. No one is considering revisiting any more expansion, and no one is considering selling the Charlevoix Municipal Golf Course," he said.

The people of Charlevoix will determine the future of the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park, Supernaw said.

"Voters will be deciding the conservation easement question for Mount McSaubia and Lake Michigan Beach as for the future (of those properties)," he said. "No matter how the vote goes those two areas will be in good hands and available to residents of Charlevoix to enjoy forever."

The city council plays a small role keeping the storefronts filled in downtown Charlevoix, but also residents have a responsibility to promote their town, he said.

"The city council needs to be involved in most all happenings within the city, but to a limited extent," he said. "I represent Charlevoix's 2nd Ward. While downtown seems like it's 'downtown,' it's very important that all wards keep an eye on and promote what happens down there."

"In my first few months on council there was open resistance to some new businesses that wanted to open up in town," Supernaw added. "We overcame that and as a result dozens of people are working at new jobs in town. It's really quite simple — as downtown goes, so goes Charlevoix and the 2nd Ward."

As for the top priorities for city council after the November election Supernaw says it depends on what happens, but there is a good city staff in place to direct council.

"They just seem to come on their own," Supernaw said. "We have some fresh new minds and bodies that have taken interest in our town and that is encouraging. Our new city manager is a real wizard when it comes to overseeing operations within our town and he's a great guy. My hope is that every citizen of Charlevoix gets the opportunity to meet him. But we also need a blend of experience to maintain this fantastic quality of life we have in Charlevoix The Beautiful."

Challenges, solutions facing the Great Lakes

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Area Garden Club and Lake Charlevoix Association will offer a jointly sponsored presentation by Dr. Alan D. Steinman at 6:30 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 11, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

Steinman, a Grand Valley State University professor and director of Annis Water Resource Institute, will give an overview of the importance of the Great Lakes to Michigan economy with his "Challenges and Solutions Facing the Great Lakes" presentation. The event will review the facts about Michigan and its relationship with the Great Lakes, its interconnected ground water presence, regional trade and future aspects of industry and job creation. The event will stress challenges and solutions facing the Great Lakes. Some of these challenges include fresh water supply for more than 40 million people, the importance of commerce and jobs supplied by Great Lakes aquaculture for the state and ecosystem stressors such as invasive species, harmful algae blooms and loss of habitat. Refreshments will be served at the event.

Luther Kurtz for Charlevoix Mayor

What I am doing now

I want to be Mayor of Charlevoix so I can help continue the progress we are making, working together and building our town into a community environment that we can all enjoy. As Mayor, I will also continue working hard as a volunteer in the community. Currently I am volunteering my time for Charlevoix in the following ways, along with serving as a First Ward Council Person:

- Chairman of the Charlevoix Trail Ambassador Committee.
- Charlevoix Alano Club Board of Directors.
- Member of the Main Street Economic Restructuring Committee.
- Co-Leader of Live from Charlevoix Winter Concert Series.
- Charlevoix 4th of July Flag jump.
- President of the Top of Michigan Trails Council.
- Chairman of the Outdoor Dining Committee.
- Co-leader of the Charlevoix to Harbor Springs Marathon Committee.

My response to the letter to the editor:

I want to thank the Charlevoix Courier for printing the letter last week about my Positive Charlevoix message in my campaign to be Mayor of Charlevoix. It can be disappointing when a message is taken differently than intended. The author and I agree on many ideas she presented in her letter to the Editor. I do think we have amazing staff at the city and that we have a new city manager doing an excellent job working with many interested city groups and citizens. I agree that we have a great team of Chamber and CVB Directors, pushing Charlevoix to be better every year. Additionally, we have fantastic Police, Fire, and EMS personnel, keeping our city safe. And I also believe, as a city, we are moving in the right direction for a more Positive Charlevoix. And finally, I agree that the Mayor is going to run the City Council meetings and it is in this context that the Positive Charlevoix message can be most effective.

Actually, the person I should, and will, spend the most time trying to instill the Positive Charlevoix message is in myself. After all, the only person's actions we can really control are our own. And I promise to work for you, and to do the work necessary, to keep my own attitude and actions positive during Council meetings and while representing the city in other business. This is only one component of my campaign but it is very important and many of you have expressed this in my door to door discussions with you. With that in mind, I promise to wake up every day and ask myself, what can I do today to have a positive impact on the City of Charlevoix? We must embrace different opinions and learn from each other as we make decisions about how the city moves forward. So, thank you, Julie Roth, for helping me clarify my message to the community and for helping me keep my focus on why the Positive Charlevoix message is so important and how I need to continue building that into everything I do for the city.

What I will continue working on as Mayor

I believe we have made a lot of progress over the last two years in Charlevoix. The community connectivity is building and our storefronts are filling. We are all working together on the Main Street Committees to continue building our community together, with a balanced approach toward Historical Preservation, Economic Vibrancy of the Downtown, and Local Connectivity Year-Round. As Mayor, I would like to continue working on:

- Developing an economic atmosphere to promote year-round jobs.
- Building a community that young people want to raise their families in.
- Improving the economic vitality of our shoulder seasons.
- Building the vibrancy of the downtown atmosphere for locals and visitors.
- Increasing activities and community connectivity for our senior citizens.
- Improving the walking and biking atmosphere in Charlevoix and the surrounding areas.
- Developing our relationships with our neighboring townships, Charlevoix County, the Charlevoix school board, the Charlevoix Hospital, and the many other non-profit and for-profit entities that make our community, truly, a Charlevoix the Beautiful.

county board they set up a steering committee from different folks throughout the county. The road commission would supply them with all the information because I knew with all this millage money coming in, regardless of where the money was going to be spent there would be people that wouldn't be happy.

"The most important road in anybody's eyes is the one they live on or the one they drive on every day back and forth to work," Harmon added. "So I made a recommendation to the county board of commissioners when that countywide millage passed to set up a steering committee and they would go out and drive all the roads and comprise a list of roads to spend all this money on."

The committee along with Harmon's recommendation came up with a list of 61.34 miles of county roads to repair, of which currently more than 75 percent is completed. Marion Center Road along with Six Mile Lake and Norwood Road are the three remaining projects on the list.

"I'm sure it's (Marion Center Road) our next step," Harmon said. "It has way more traffic on it than the other two. It will cost a lot of money to do this."

Harmon said the project will cost between $350,000 and $450,000 per mile.

"The problem is we owe the county board a lot of money," Harmon said. "They advanced us money to do the Boyne City-Charlevoix Road and until Deer Lake, Korthase and Ellsworth roads are completed, I won't know exactly what the numbers are, but they loaned us half which is $2 million there."

"We have roughly seven or eight years left of this millage and depending on what the end dollar amount is when they're done this year, we're probably looking at owing the county board around $500,000 or $700,000 for the remainder of the millage," Harmon added. "Our share of that millage is approximately $1.4-$1.5 million, so we'll have around $700,000 left plus the federal funds will be added to that."

Harmon said he's hesitant to add federal funding to the millage money.

"When you do that, you have to come up with a full-blown set of plans," Harmon said. "You have to meet Davis-Bacon wages and then jobs will be let in Lansing. I won't be able to let those jobs locally because MDOT (Michigan Department of Transportation) administers the federal funds. I was trying to avoid that."

Hannon said he may not have a choice in how the job is to be completed, but believes the scope of the work will be completed in-house.

"I don't want to piecemeal it, it would be nice to do it full length," Harmon said. "Realistically I don't think that's going to happen because we've borrowed so much money already we have to pay back."

Harmon said the south end of Marion Center Road near the Antrim County line is by far worse than the north end near U.S. 31.

"Chances are we'd start there (south end) and work our way to the north end," Harmon said. "I've talked to Burt Thompson (Antrim County Road Commission engineer) about it and he'd like to do their end at the same time as ours."

When completed, Marion Center Road would look very similar to Thumb Lake Road or Boyne City-Charlevoix Road, Harmon said, and the road will likely have to be crushed and shaped the full length of the seven-plus miles.

"When we're done, we'll have no weight restrictions on it in the spring," Harmon said. "Now, there are restrictions. When we're done, we'd like to see it be a Class A road and would not be subject to frost laws in the spring."

Harmon said motorists should expect to see delays in travel once the work begins, but no detours are planned.

"There may be a couple of spots where we'll have to do an undercut because of bad soils," Harmon said. "If that's the case, we can still build it under traffic control. It will just take a little longer."

Harmon also mentioned when the project gets to Veenstra Road and near Charlevoix High School, the shoulders will be paved full length.

"It has to be done," Harmon said of the entire Marion Center Road project. "We only have such a small window to do it."

APPLE FEST

Alongside the orchards, local nonprofits like the Charlevoix Kiwanis and Lions Clubs will be out selling different hot food items like chili, hotdogs, cakes, and kleibasa to help raise funds for their clubs and causes.

The Charlevoix Farmers Market and its vendors will also be participating in Apple Fest selling all of their different wares such as baked goods, dressings, honey, meat, maple syrup, cider, and more.

The Charlevoix Apple Fest is a family friendly event and to complement the different vendors and apple orchards, multiple kids activities will be taking place mostly on Mason Street.

"There are plenty of kids activities and for the most part they will take place on the Saturday and Sunday of the festival on Mason Street," Ferguson said.

According to Ferguson, numerous kids activities will include a petting farm where kids can feed the animals, face painting, balloon animals by Twister Joe, and the American House Senior Living Community will be doing a pick an apple pond that kids can pick apples from and win prizes. Castle Farms will also be bringing its trains that kids can ride and will set up around East Park throughout the weekend.

This year, the coinciding art and craft show will return and has grown in size. Now with over 120 artist booths, the show will take place in both East Park and in Bridge Park.

"This year it has expanded and there will be over 40 booths in Bridge Park next to the Tap Room," Ferguson said.

New this year to the Charlevoix Apple Fest will be the Pine River Jazz Band and a swing dance that will happen right on Mason Street near the kids activities. Anyone who enjoys music or dancing can listen to the sounds of jazz or swing dance along to the band between 3-5 p.m. on Saturday.

According to Ferguson, with everything going on its bound to be a weekend filled with fun. "I really love Apple

Rayder defense keys homecoming victory over East Jordan, 27-0

CHARLEVOIX — There's no place like home.

It's true for alumni who make the annual return to their hometown to celebrate homecoming, and it's true for football teams as well, especially ones coming off an unusually lengthy road trip.

Charlevoix showed that during its homecoming celebration on Friday night, as it ended its first home game of the season following a four game road trip and a forfeit win looking like a team with new life in a 27-0 defeat of visiting rival East Jordan.

That was especially true on the defensive side of the ball, as the Rayders rebounded from giving up 49 points in a loss to Glen Lake last week to shut out the Red Devils for the third time in as many seasons.

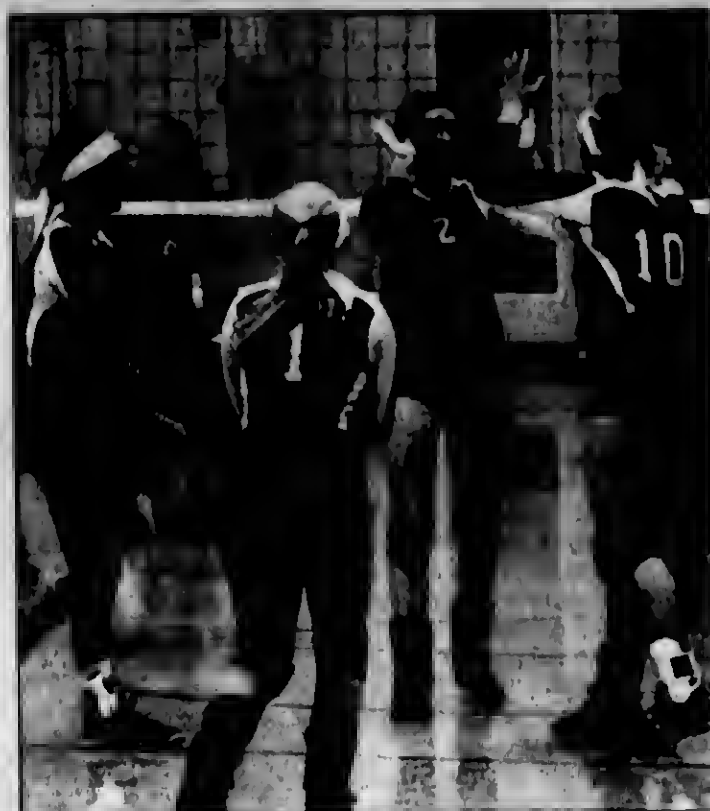

"Our coaches were worried that homecoming might be

BOYNE CITY — History could have repeated itself for the Charlevoix varsity volleyball team on Thursday night. The Rayders got off to a 2-0 set lead over host Boyne City, but the Ramblers took set three. The last time these two teams played, the Ramblers won games three, four and five to upend the Rayders' quick start.

Charlevoix head coach Audra Randall said when her team was faced with the same situation again after three sets on Thursday night, it was about mentally resetting.

"Coming off that loss, getting in your huddle, how do we mentally reset? That's our big thing that we've been working on and it's paid off in different matches," Randall said. "I think that's what they did here today."

Charlevoix answered Randall's call and won the fourth set, 25-18, to win the match 3-1. The Rayders won set one, 25-16, and set two, 25-18, before dropping the third set to the Ramblers, 25-22, in Lake Michigan Conference action.

The Rayders got off to a hot start, and Randall felt she saw a different energy from KALKASKA — "Every game matters" isn't just a cliché, but a reality, for the Charlevoix boys soccer team.

After two early season losses, the Rayders can't afford a single slip-up in Lake Michigan Conference play if they want to have any hope of defending their league crown.

So far, Charlevoix has done just that, and the Rayders continued to move forward with a 4-0 win over host Kalkaska on Monday that doubled as revenge for one of those early season losses.

Charlevoix took the lead quickly on a goal by Graham Kroon, assisted by Noah Carson, but couldn't find another one in the first half, and that brought back memories of a 2-0 lead that the Rayders blew against the Blazers the first time around.

But Monday was a different story, as Charlevoix got stronger as the second half wore on and scored three times in the final 20 minutes to pull away.

Noah Carson and Nick Bradley each scored once for the Rayders, each assisted by Christian Matye, and Kevin Pearl scored the final goal of the game with an assist from Bradley.

Jacob Harrod recorded his third straight shutout in net for the Rayders.

"I'm really happy with the focus we showed tonight; we gained strength throughout and by the end we were putting together some really nice passing combinations to create scoring chances that we were able to put away," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "Kalkaska's a solid team with a lot of speed and their goalkeeper was impressive once again, seeming to hover up everything we threw at him for most of the game.

"This was a quality win and one we needed."

Charlevoix will get another opportunity at revenge in another crucial game on Thursday as arch-rival and LMC leader Harbor Springs hosts the Rayders (11-4-2, 5-2 LMC) in a must-win contest for Charlevoix's title hopes. The Rams hold a two-game advantage in the standings and a loss would make that gap insurmountable for the Rayders, but Charlevoix can also pull within a game with a victory.

"Playing Harbor Springs is something both teams look forward to every year, because we know it's going to be a high-quality game,"

TRAVERSE CITY — Just three seasons into its existence as a program, the Charlevoix girls golf team has what it takes to make its first Division 4 state finals appearance.

But in order to reach that goal, the Rayders will have to get back to the form they showed early in the season.

Charlevoix hasn't played badly in its past two tournaments, shooting a 414 at the first-ever LMC Championship meet last Wednesday at Grayling Country Club to finish runner-up and a 425 at the T.C. Central Invite at Traverse City Golf and Country Club on a distraction, but honestly I think it just fired us up," Charlevoix junior Ray Cunningham said. "It's been so long since we played at home, to go out there and see the crowd and hear the support, that had us ready to go tonight by itself."

Cunningham, a defensive tackle, played a big part in the shutout, finishing with five tackles and 2.5 sacks in the victory, and linemates Caleb Hart (four tackles, three for loss) and Joe McCraney made several big plays in the East Jordan backfield as well.

That disruptive line play helped force East Jordan, which was starting backup quarterback Jared Plechan in place of the injured Collin Shepard, into several mistakes.

Jared McLean and Collin Smith picked off passes for Charlevoix, the Rayders recovered a fumble, and East Jordan was forced into numerous 3 and outs.

"We went after the quarterback, got him scrambling and feeling the pressure, and made him uncomfortable," Cunningham said. "When we did that, I think it affected their entire offense."

East Jordan had its worst yardage total of the season in the loss, and head coach Greg Kitson said that Charlevoix deserved the credit.

"(Charlevoix's) front four won them the game," Kitson said. "We couldn't get a push up front all night in the run game, and they brought tremendous pressure on every play that we struggled to handle."

The Red Devil defense had a strong night of its own to keep East Jordan in striking distance for most of the game.

East Jordan forced four turnovers, including interceptions by Jake Skrocki, Ryan Graham and Ryan LaVaway, and stopped Charlevoix on downs inside the red zone twice to keep the Rayders from adding to their lead.

But the Red Devils couldn't overcome their offensive struggles, as the Rayders took advantage of short fields to score each of its first three touchdowns.

"We tried to stop runs up the middle and force them to run outside to our speed and throw the ball, and we got some big plays," Kitson said.

"Our defense played well, but our offense just put our defense in bad situations over and over again, and it came back to bite us."

Charlevoix quarterback Brad Klinger threw three interceptions, but shook off his mistakes and matched those errors with touchdowns to help the Rayders pull away.

Klinger was 11 for 17 with 139 yards, threw 22 and five yard touchdown passes to Smith and also connected with Cam Alden on a 35 yard touchdown throw to help Charlevoix jump out to an unassailable 21-0 lead in the third quarter.

The Rayders' Malcom Williams finished with 48 yards on nine carries and added a three yard run for a touchdown on a bruising fourth quarter drive that helped Charlevoix run down the clock and finish off the game.

Klinger finished with 84 yards rushing on 15 carries, and McLean added 58 yards on eight carries for Charlevoix.

Keegan McDuffie led the Red Devils with 12 tackles and Graham and Trey Peterson each chipped in 11.

With the win, Charlevoix improves to 5-1 and is one win away from returning to the playoffs after missing by a game last season.

The Rayders face another strong program in 5-1 Onkama on the road next Friday, and will look to carry the lessons that got them the win this week forward.

"After the loss to Glen Lake, we told the kids that they haven't practiced with game-like intensity since Boyne City week, and it came back to bite us," Blndi said. "This week, playing at home, we had that energy back and we had a great week of practice."

"It showed on the field. We feel like this group has the talent to play against any team that's not twice our size and compete, but we have to keep this intensity and the work ethic we have right now up and not let it slip again moving forward."

her team right out of the gate. Charlevoix never trailed in the first set, and fell behind 6-2 in the second set before taking a 10-9 lead. The Rayders never trailed again to take a 2-0 lead into the third set.

Boyer City battled back in a back-and-forth set three. The Rayders had a 17-12 lead before a Boyne City timeout, and after, the Ramblers came back to tie the game at 22.

A mistake by Charlevoix and a kill from Boyne City's Tyla Coates gave the Ramblers a two-point advantage, forcing a Charlevoix timeout. Boyne City ended the set quickly, scoring off the timeout to cut the deficit to one, 2-1. After mentally resetting, Charlevoix came out with revenge, quickly building a 10-1 lead in the fourth set, en route to the seven-point victory.

Charlevoix and Boyne City will meet up again in districts, so Randall knew how vital the win was to her team.

"That was a big win — a very important win I think for us," Randall said. "We needed to win this one. For us to come away with this win and play as well as we did, and pretty much get everybody an opportunity to be on the court, I think was really important."

Kenzy O'Leary recorded 12 kills and 21 digs for Charlevoix, while Julia Doskoch added six aces and 13 digs. Becca Moon notched 19 assists, while Elise Struck posted 10 kills and 10 digs.

On the Ramblers' side,

Abby Gardner led the way with seven kills, while Annabelle Seelye tallied three assists.

Boyer City head coach Mallory Slate said she was pleased with her team's ability to fight back against Charlevoix in each set, but added the Rayders' veteran group was too tough this time around for her inexperienced roster.

"We cannot get that far behind and keep making errors and expect to come back," Slate said. "Charlevoix's a really great team this year. They were picking our defense apart like defense. That makes it difficult for my girls to adjust and cover when they're just picking apart every hole."

The Ramblers (7-4) next host Saak Sie, Marie on Wednesday, Oct. 5, while Charlevoix (12-13-3) travels to East Jordan on Thursday, Oct. 6.

Rayders compete in Carson City

JAMES GONTERBLUM

CARSON CITY — Charlevoix's girls cross country team made a strong showing in a race that included both the defending Division 3 and 4 state champions on Saturday in Carson City.

The Rayders took fifth overall, with 132 points, finishing behind D4 state champion Mount Pleasant Sacred Heart and D3 state champion T.C. St. Francis, as well as two other ranked squads.

Michelle Bollini took seventh to lead the Rayders, finishing in a personal best time of 19:25 against one of the fastest fields Charlevoix has seen this season.

Freshman Megan Scholten also ran a personal best to take 27th overall (21:40) for Charlevoix, and junior Anna Zahner was close behind in 31st (21:48).

Kaitlin Schwenke finished 33rd (21:59), Katie Mousseau 34th (22:01) and Emmaline Peterson 36th (22:14) as the Rayders used a tight pack after Bollini to move up the standings and finish well.

Rachel Nesburg finished 66th (24:39) for Charlevoix, who was competing without its usual No. 2 runner in Isabel Hess on Saturday.

In the boys race, only two runners made the trip for Charlevoix, but both had strong races, as senior Ben Peterson took 33rd overall in a season best of 18:30 and junior Camden Muslek finished 63rd in 20:09.

Charlevoix had the week off following the Boss said. "The stakes are even higher this year, because they can move a lot closer to a conference title with a win, while we've got our backs against the wall trying to stay in the hunt."

"We've been a little bit lighter in practices recently trying to keep our guys fresh, but with big games on the horizon we're revving up the intensity again for the stretch run, and I'm hoping to see that from our guys on Thursday."

Charlevoix 5,

BOYNE CITY — With a big week coming up and no margin for error left, the Charlevoix boys soccer team couldn't afford to overlook its road match against Boyne City on Thursday.

The Rayders didn't fall into that trap, calmly taking care of business on the road with four first half half goals in a 5-0 win over the Ramblers.

Freshman Blaise Snabes scored twice in the first half, once assisted by Nick Bradley and once unassisted, and also assisted on a goal by Bach Milan to lead Charlevoix offensively.

Nate Pearl scored the Rayders' fourth first half goal, assisted by Christian Matye, and Matye capped off the game with a second half score, assisted by Bradley as well.

"We were moving the ball well in the first half, controlling the pace and creating chances, and everything was just clicking," Boss said. "We slowed things down a little bit in the second half, focusing on playing to feet and keeping possession, and it was a much more back-and-forth game."

"Our guys were focused on keeping the score sheet clean and making sure (goalkeeper) Jacob Harrod was able to get the shutout."

The win helps keep Charlevoix's (10-4-2, 4-2 LMC) hopes of a repeat Lake Michigan Conference title alive.

Before that big contest, however, the Rayders travel to Kalkaska on Monday for a revenge match after the Blazers upset Charlevoix in a shoot-out early in the season.

That low point might have been a turning point for the Rayders, who have gradually regained their form and head into Monday's game looking like the team they were expected to be at the beginning of the season.

"Our players came into that (first game against Kalkaska) thinking that we were a strong team and we'd be able to easily impose our will, and Kalkaska really played a great game and put us in our place," Boss said. "It was the wake-up call these guys needed that wins don't come easily under any circumstances, and it takes focus and discipline in every game to be a great team."

"Honestly, it was exactly what we needed at that time, and while you never like a loss, I'm happy it happened early in the season and that we could build off it the way we have so far."

For one of the Charlevoix Pop Warner squads, it was a bounce-back week, while the other kept on rolling.

The Rayder Pee-wees rebounded from a shutout loss to Kingsley III last week by beating Kingsley I 50-0 in a blowout victory on Saturday in Central Lake.

John Paul Culver led the Rayders with two touchdowns, and Troy Nickel, A.J. Spiegel, Landon Swanson and Hudson Vollmer each found the end zone as well for Charlevoix.

Nickel completed a two point conversion to Vollmer, and Brady Jess completed another conversion to Dylan Clapp.

The Rayder defense had a dominant showing in the victory, holding Kingsley to one first down and negative yardage.

In the other game, at Northmen Stadium, the Charlevoix JV squad beat host Petoskey 25-6 for their third win.

Fullback Dmitri Bell scored three touchdowns in the victory, including a 25 yard run for a score on the second play from scrimmage, tailback John Sauer added a 10 yard rushing touchdown, and Patrick Sterett also contributed on the ground.

Up front, Rayder offensive linemen Jake Claflin, Jack Herzog, Max Dixon and Joshua House dominated again, opening holes for Bell, Sauer and Sterett throughout the game.

Adam Streeter, Bell, Claflin and Dixon led the way defensively for the Rayders.

The Charlevoix Pee-wee squad travels to Boyne City on Saturday for its next game, against the Traverse City Wolverines, with kickoff at 1 p.m., while the JV Rayders travel to East Jordan to take on the Traverse City Warriors at 10:30 a.m. on the same day.

Monday, but it's going to take scores more in line with the 390 they shot in their season opener to finish in the top 3 at the regional meet this Friday at Manistee Country Club and earn a state finals slot.

Rylynn Sladek carded a 113 to round out Charlevoix's scoring golfers at the meet, and Maddie Lee shot a 126 and Jane Kelly a 130.

At Monday's T.C. Central Invite, Scholten again had the low round, shooting a 101, with Sabsook carding a 105 and Olivia Jeakle a 108.

Sladek shot a 111, Joy a 112 and Lee a 116 as well for the Rayders.

Next up is Friday's Regional meet, which will decide whether Charlevoix gets a trip to the state finals on Oct. 14-15 at Forest Akers West in East Lansing.

Mount Pleasant Sacred Heart, ranked fifth in Division 4 in the MIGCA poll, and Harbor Springs figure to battle for the regional title, leaving one spot up for grabs between the Rayders, host Manistee and T.C. St. Francis.

Last season, Manistee took the third and final qualifying spot with a score of 393, while the Rayders finished in sixth place with a 416.

Pool plans for 21st century renovations

Lonnie Allen
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

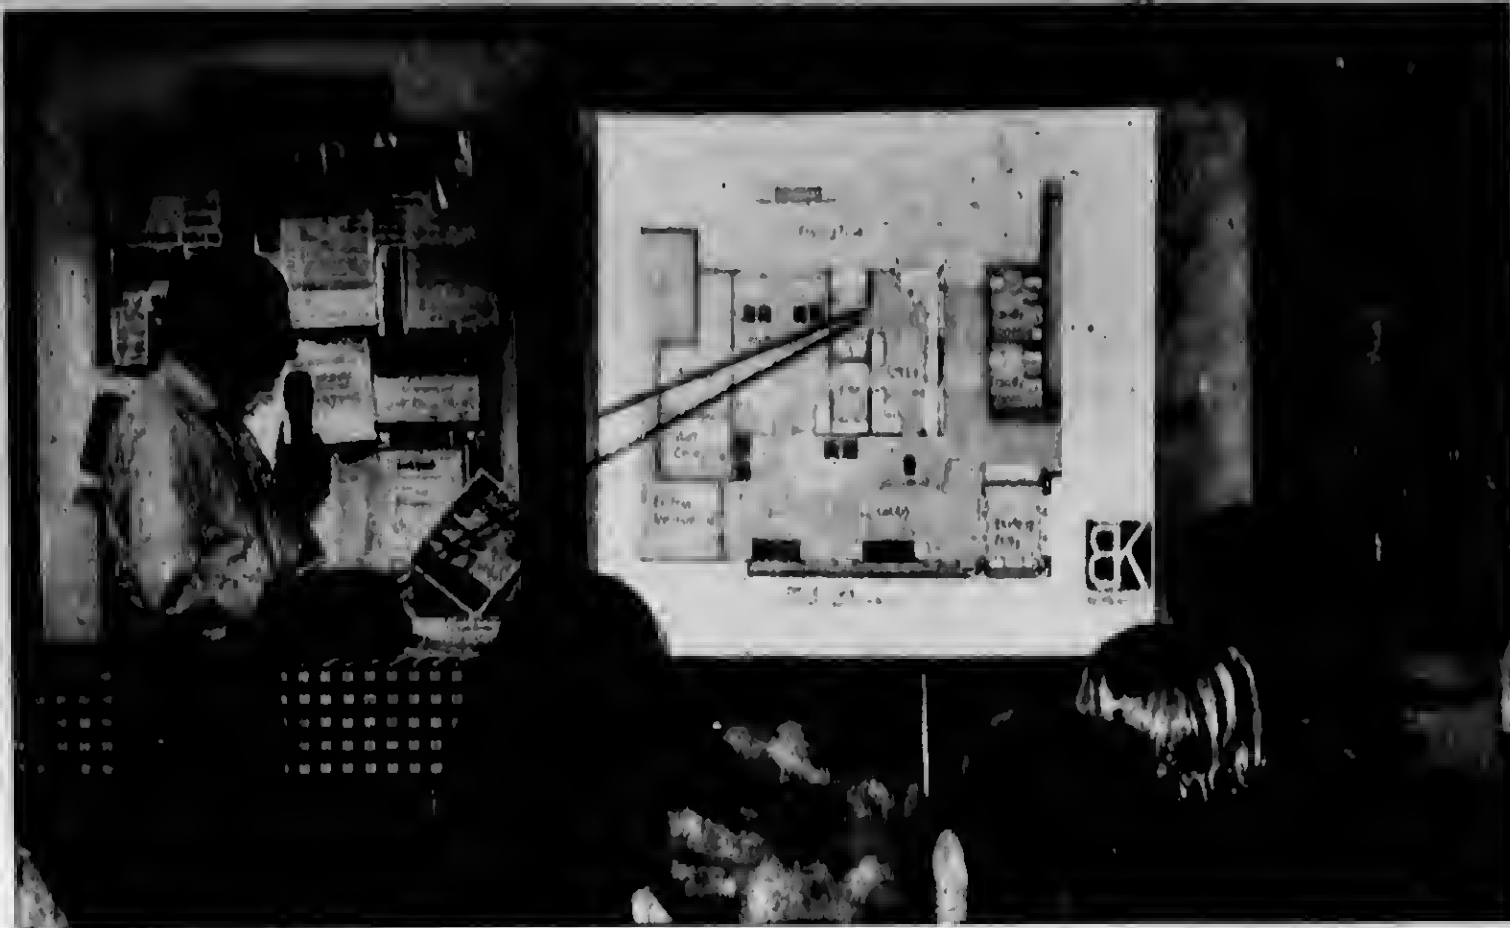

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Area Community Pool kicked off a new "pool renewal capital campaign" during its annual meeting Thursday night.

The $970,000 campaign, announced to a crowd of about 40 people at the First Congregational Church in Charlevoix, aims to raise funds for a building addition, numerous renovations and improvements.

After 20 years of popular use, the pool is ready for a renewal to bring it up to the standards of the 21st century to meet the needs of its patrons and community for many more years to come, said Naomi Singer, president of the pool's governing board.

The building enhancements include: new air handling system to control moisture, redesigned office space, new storage facility, and a new multi-purpose room to accommodate community events, private parties and CHARLEVOIX — The future of three Charlevoix Public Schools facilities was the topic of discussion Wednesday at the Charlevoix Elementary School library as part of a community forum conducted by superintendent Mike Ritter and a facility study committee.

Ritter, who's been the Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent for just over a year, helped create a facility study committee in February to look at viable solutions for the Charlevoix Elementary School, Round Lake Education Center and Charlevoix Middle/High School.

"It's my job as superintendent to look at the facilities," Ritter said. "I knew there were some issues coming in because we went from a three-building district to a two-building district. In CHARLEVOIX — Former Michigan State University basketball player Anthony Ianni brought his anti-bullying message "Relentless Tour" to Charlevoix Elementary School fourth- through sixth-grade students on Oct. 5.

Special education teacher Kristy Powell organized the hour-long inspirational visit for students to learn the importance of treating others with respect.

"Anthony Ianni inspired all the kids and he especially inspired me to follow my dreams and keep going no matter what they say. He also inspired me to be nice to others and to treat people the way you want to be treated," said student Nish Denhof.

Lake Shore Drive boat launch reopens to public

Lonnie Allen
(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Township boat launch on Lake Shore Drive officially reopened last week after the installation of newly constructed launch pads.

Charlevoix Township officials said reconstruction of the boat ramp was completed Friday.

The construction work at the boat launch included removing existing concrete and asphalt ramps, installing new concrete ramps and installation of the former dock that used to be at the ramp before water levels dropped a few years back, according to officials.

The new concrete ramp also angles slightly more to allow boats to lift off trailers more easily.

"This project to re-construct the boat ramp on Lake Shore Drive could not have been done without the help of St. Marys Cement," said Chuck Center, township supervisor. "Our board is thrilled our residents are now able to enjoy improved access to Lake Michigan just in time for the fall salmon run." In May, township officials approved spending $20,000 to repair the crumbling boat ramp on Lake Shore Drive.

The reconstruction price remained low because St. Marys Cement covered the costs of installation that was performed by MDC Contracting.

"The men at MDC did a very professional job for us and worked hard to complete the project in a timely manner," Center said. "We are very grateful for everyone who helped us complete this ramp."

Township officials are now considering some type of lighting at the launch because most fishermen tend to put boats in before daylight, Center said.

"We have spoken to the city about lighting, but we are not sure who actually provides electricity in that area," Center said. "It could be Great Lakes Energy or another entity. We are considering all options to have lighting in that area."

Wastewater treatment plant upgrades complete

City wins 2016 Quality of Life Award for project

LONNIE ALLEN

allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — An infrastructure project that's been in the works since 2012 is now officially complete.

Project manager Mark Prein of Prein & Newhof, located in Grand Rapids, showed off the finished project to city council members during their meeting on Oct. 3.

Charlevoix's wastewater plant cost the city approximately $11 million. The state-mandated upgrades by the Michigan Department of Environmental Quality were required to lessen the amount of effluent ammonia discharged into Lake Michigan following treatment.

"The discharge limits drove the need to make the improvements at the plant," Prein said. "Because of the plant's age, equipment needed upgrading to meet performance and new safety standards."

In 2014, Charlevoix City Council members approved in its coming budget a 24.5 percent sewer rate hike each of the next three years, followed by a 2 percent jump for two years afterward specifically to raise funds to pay for the upgrades.

Mark Prein, of Prein & Newhof presents Mayor Gabe Campbell with the 2016 Quality of Life Award from the American Society of Civil Engineers as council members Leon Perron and Shirley Gibson look on.

"City leadership hosted public meetings to explain the need of the project to build support for rate increases," Prein said. "The coordinated efforts to educate and engage the public helped gain support to move ahead with the improvements at the plant."

Prein also announced to council that the city received the 2016 Quality of Life Award from the American Society of Civil Engineers because of the plant upgrades.

Mayor Gabe Campbell accepted the award on behalf of the city.

"I'm proud of the city's commitment to make these much needed upgrades for improved treatment of water that will reduce risk to the water of Lake Michigan," said Campbell.

"Infrastructure improvements similar to what we accomplished at the wastewater treatment plant directly improve the quality of life for our residents."

City council also approved the purchase of 200 tons of road salt for the upcoming winter season. The city purchases road salt through the MiDeal program, which competitively bids the salt purchase for communities who participate in the program. The city will pay $51.32 per ton for a total purchase of $10,264, which was less than the previous year, said Pat Elliott, Department of Public Works superintendent. "This is little more than $15 per ton less expensive than what we paid last year," he said. "The funds to pay for the material is budgeted through our major and local street fund."

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Public School board member Mike Moon was raised in southern Ohio where he met and married his wife, Karen.

In 1988, two weeks before he "married the girl next door," Karen's parents bought a cabin on Lake Marion just south of Charlevoix and Moon said that is where "our love for the town and the area began."

The Moons have three children, Anna and Nate, who are recent Charlevoix High School graduates, and Becca, who is expected to graduate next spring.

Moon said the best thing about being a school board member in Charlevoix is the ability to serve the community and school that has been instrumental with his children's educational development.

"The chance to serve and give back to the community and school that was so important to my children's development; and that is part of so many of our family memories," Moon said.

One of the things Moon loves about Charlevoix Public Schools is the strong community support.

"The school in our small New Hampshire town was only K-6 and we actually moved here in part because of the school," Moon said. "We saw the new high school (being constructed) during our visits here and could tell that there was great community support (for the schools)."

Moon wishes students and staff "fondly remember the time they spent with one another as productive and happy during the school years."

Moon's favorite childhood school memory is reaching higher grades where he had different teachers for different classes including social studies that was taught by his grandmother.

Moon spends his free time doing things with his wife and spending time outdoors.

"(I go) hiking with my dogs, golfing with my son and anything my wife wants to do — well ... most things anyway," he said.

Charlevoix residents are invited to meet local candidates in upcoming forum

CHARLEVOIX — A candidate forum has been scheduled for 6:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 18, in the Charlevoix High School auditorium. The public will have the opportunity to meet and listen to candidates for local offices.

The forum will feature Bob Bergman and Janet Kalbfell running for council for Ward 1, Thomas Oleksy and Bill Supernaw running for council in Ward 2, and Shane Cole who is running unopposed for Ward 3. It also will feature both mayoral candidates, Luther Kurtz and Shirley Gibson.

The candidates will be answering three prepared questions as well as three questions taken from the audience before the forum begins. Ken Winter will be moderating the forum and the Northern Michigan Review will provide live video stream of the event on the Charlevoix Courier Facebook page.

"Informing the community and the electorate is always the focus of the Charlevoix Courier in any election," said Lonnie Allen, Charlevoix Courier editor. "By working with the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Public Library we are able to provide a detailed candidate forum that will provide Charlevoix city residents with the necessary information to make an informed choice on election day."

Alison Hubbard, president of the Charlevoix

Area Chamber of Commerce, said the forum is one of the many programs the chamber offers to the community.

"A vital role of the chamber is to provide educational opportunities to our membership and our community," Hubbard said. "Partnerships with the Charlevoix Courier and the Charlevoix Public Library are essential to our success and our ability to offer more like programming."

Charlevoix Public Library Director Linda Adams said the forum is in alignment with library goals for the community.

"We are excited to be able to partner with the chamber of commerce and Charlevoix Courier to help bring this about," Adams said. "One of the library's goals is to help disseminate information to the community and this definitely fulfills that."

The idea for a candidate forum came about by the desire from all three participating organizations to inform voters of each candidate's stances on a variety of topics affecting the city. With the mayor's office open, this year it is more important than ever to get a firm grasp of the issues from each of the candidates.

For more information about the forum or other library events, visit www.charlevoixlibrary.org or call (231) 237-7340. For more information about the forum or other city events, visit www.charlevoix.org or call (231) 547-2101.

The double edge sword of social media

Social media sites like Facebook and Twitter are considered powerful tools that have many professional and personal advantages, which is why we use them.

Social media also is a double-edged sword. It can be an effective tool to stay connected with family and friends; and share ideas, photos, videos and also elevate your profile, but it also exposes you to negative comments or false information.

Often I am discouraged perusing my Facebook news feed because of posts that contain false facts and innuendos.

I have often tried to correct people and ask them to seek all the facts before making judgments about a person or topic.

But that approach usually leads to the dark side of social media — the personal attack.

When you're attacked on social media, it can feel like the community has already made its mind up about you or a subject until you can prove your innocence.

Often the attack cannot be defended because the people being attacked have no clue about the rising storm brewing on social media until the mass, online hysteria of misinformation boils over to them.

I believe the personal attack is a way used by those who do not agree with a person or group to cause harm without being held accountable.

People would rather spout what they have heard from the rumor mill using the "I am hearing defense" behind their computer screen than take the time to actually research and debate face-to-face.

Hiding behind a computer screen to sway people is a growing trend used quite frequently in Charlevoix.

Two recent examples are the events in Hayes Township surrounding Camp Sea-Gull and the conservation easement ballot measure in the City of Charlevoix.

I cannot believe the amount of misinformation being repeated as fact. It is a shame that no one takes the time to research these topics.

Right now, people in our community are online using their reputation in a prominent Christian ministry to spread untrue rumors as facts. They are repeating statements that create a frenzy of anger and hatred toward others, which only divides our community instead of bringing us together.

In this environment of instantaneous outbursts of micro-messages, the damage is done the instant something is posted online.

In the past, traditional media typically filtered mass messages to particular audiences, limiting the likelihood of the harm as well as the effects of false information.

Now, anyone is a publisher to unlimited, worldwide audiences, without nearly as many filters. This greatly increases the potential for harm.

The form of the harm can be much more complicated, too. People can take a comment you make out of context; they can share hurtful opinions; or people can just be downright mean.

Everyone has a right to free expression of opinions and views, but when views and opinions are used as facts on a public issue the public loses.

LETTERS to the editor

What to know this election

Editor:
In just a few short weeks I will be passing the gavel on. Before this happens, I thought this would be a good time to thank my family and friends and voters who have supported me. It has been a terrific honor to serve.

I also thank the employees of the city of Charlevoix who really run this town. We sure are lucky to have you, thank you.

Most people know who I support and why in this election. What you may not know is that we really need to protect our parks and pass them along to our kids and grandkids and future generations. Our charter needs some work, that's why you are voting in this election on a conservation easement. A YES vote protects our parks and allows upgrades to facilities already established. A no vote allows for commercial development.

Something else to consider when you vote — the mayor's job isn't to bring more year-round jobs. We have an economic planner and downtown development authority director for that. Nor is it in the mayor's job description to improve the economic vitality of Charlevoix. We need more affordable housing (not low cost; there is a difference) for our hospital workers and teachers — not low to medium income housing which we have in sufficient supply.

The mayor doesn't improve our downtown atmosphere or create better walking areas. We have a planning commission for that. A mayor is an ambassador and a reflection of our community. Not someone with conflict of interests and a personal agenda. When you know the job description you will know who to vote for.

I have lived here since 1967 and been to many wonderful places. Nothing is better than here — let's keep it that way.

Sincerely,
Gabe Campbell
Mayor

Fear of losing park control

Editor:
Why would anyone choose to give away their right to vote? Our vote is our voice. Without our voice, we lose control. But, isn't that exactly what we are doing if we let the Land Conservancy take our parks?

Right now, the City has ownership of the parks, and we the public have a voice with the City. Although unsubstantiated rumors of "possible development" have run rampant, causing fear and panic in voters, one fact is being ignored. Action by the City can be controlled by the public ... a good example is what happened with the fire-place downtown.

My fear is that, if the voters let the Land Conservancy take city parks, public control will be lost irreversibly. According to the Conservation Easement, "The Conservancy has the right to prevent any activity on or use of the property that is inconsistent with the purposes of this conservation easement or detrimental to the conservation values of the property."

So, although the City will still "own" the property, the final say will be in the hands of the conservancy, a private entity, not the public.

It is my understanding from the open meetings that the Land Conservancy supports letting the small piece of City property along Lake Michigan on Park Street, which is a deeded, designated park, to grow naturally as a forest. As such, I fear that brush would be allowed to grow wild, expanding the abundance of deer ticks, mosquitoes and even more poison ivy in the city. If dead trees are not removed, fire hazards and the spread of carpenter ants would increase.

We should be proud that this land was deeded to the City for use as a park by the public. We need to keep it as it was intended with well maintained trails, steps, and controlled growth. We cannot allow the Land Conservancy to hide this scenic park beneath a forest of trees and brush. To let this property grow into a forest, without receiving proper care that it is entitled to as a designated park, would mean letting it become overgrown, inaccessible and unenjoyable. Our beautiful Charlevoix sunsets, enjoyed here by residents and tourists alike, would be hidden from view.

The City needs to step up and reassure the community that it intends to uphold the original deed, maintaining the property as a park, so there is no need for a conservancy. As full-time, year-round residents of Charlevoix, we want to continue to have a voice in what happens with our City parks. We will be voting No on the Land Conservancy. Placement in a Land Conservancy goes too far. We are in favor of protecting our parks, not neglecting them.

Bridging our past with our future

LOOKING BACK...

The decrepit and abandoned, once classy, Beach Hotel, located at the far end of West Dixon Avenue and the last of Charlevoix's big three resort hotels, burned during demolition in a spectacular all-night fire on Oct. 16, 1967. Even before its demise, plans had been formulated to replace it with the circular Holiday Towers Resort Hotel. This unique format had begun to become popular across the United States after World War II. Two designs had been drawn up, one for eight floors of rooms, the other for six, shown here, with 12 pie-shaped rooms per floor. The seventh floor held a banquet hall that could be divided into three rooms, one holding 160 guests, the other two 80 each, total capacity 320, plus two small meeting rooms holding up to 16 people each. Above this, the eighth floor dining room had a capacity of 240. Crowning the building was a "cocktail lounge mezzanine" that could hold 170. Its centerpiece was a revolving ring on which 64 chairs around 16 tables were placed, called the Ship's Wheel, that circled once every 15 minutes for a spectacular view of Lake Michigan around to Little Traverse Bay and inland to Lake Charlevoix. The fixed bar area was called the Crow's Nest. At ground level appeared two tennis courts, a 9-hole putting green, and a 30 x 60-foot glass-enclosed swimming pool plus men's and women's saunas. But this luxury existed only on paper. The planners were never able to pull the financing together, and their dream hotel remained on the drawing board. The ground was filled in and landscaped after the Beach's ashes and fire-scarred cement foundations were removed, until the La Croft condos occupied the area in the early 1970s. The Holiday Towers idea was designed by Begrow-Brown Architects of Bloomfield Hills. Jack Begrow later moved his architectural practice to Charlevoix where he became one of Northern Michigan's most respected and prolific architects.

An open letter to Donald Trump

Editor:
Dear Donald Trump, As a lifelong Democrat, it's unlikely I would ever vote for you. However, I think everyone deserves an explanation for a remark you made during the (first) debate.

When Hillary Clinton made the accusation that you will not release your tax returns because you pay no taxes, you did not deny it. Your answer was not "that's a lie" or "you can't prove that." Your answer was "that makes me smart." You literally admitted you don't pay taxes and you're proud of it.

I was deeply offended by that because I pay taxes just like millions of working Americans. My money goes to support our troops. It buys tanks and planes and equipment, everything they need to defend our country from people who would like to tear it down. My money goes to buy roads and bridges, sewer and water systems, and schools to educate our kids. It pays for a fire department to protect my house and police that make my neighborhood safe so I don't need to own a gun. A small part of it even helps the disadvantaged get back on their feet. It pays for everything that makes this country the best on earth. Sure I don't like paying taxes and I don't always agree on what the money gets used for, but I pay my fair share and I don't complain.

Yes, Mr. Trump, I am offended. I'm offended because you're a greedy billionaire who will not buy even one bullet for the men and women who are laying their lives down for you. I'm offended because you won't pay one cent for the infrastructure and services that makes your life and your business possible. If you're not willing to support your country, why should we vote for you?

Downtown lights will have a special unveiling during Apple Fest

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Main Street will have a special Grand Relighting Celebration at 7 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 14, during Apple Fest by the downtown clock tower to officially unveil the new lights on downtown's street trees.

This partnership's efforts will again bring light to the downtown and continue the Main Street cause of attracting visitors and residents to the downtown beyond the prime summer season.

"These lights are more energy efficient and will be long-lasting," said Main Street Design Committee chair John Campbell. "We believe this will be a nice improvement to our downtown and will encourage evening activities in our already beautiful downtown."

'Pizza Girl' secures niche in local market

ANNE KELLY

Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Take a girl trained as a French chef, who has worked as a bartender, restaurateur, owner of a bed and breakfast, realtor and who has dabbled in glass blowing and you have a profile of the owner of Pizza Girl.

Located among the cluster of buildings in Olson's Plaza, this latest pizza parlor has been operating for a year-and-a-half and now seems to be getting a handle on the local pizza market, according to owner Tamara (Tammie) Watson-Small.

"We have increased our clientele mainly by word of mouth," Watson-Small said. "I have learned from running restaurants for over 25 years, that it (success) starts slowly. It takes a couple of years before a business takes off and we're right on schedule."

She also attributes the growth of her business in Charlevoix to her friend and employee Paul Andrzejewski, who has worked side-by-side with Watson-Small from Pizza Girl's start in Charlevoix.

"I'm real fortunate to have a friend who has pitched in to work with me from the very beginning," Watson-Small said. "Paul does so much to help Pizza Girl's success here."

Before hand tossing pizza dough into crispy, tasty pizza pies, Watson-Small worked her way up in the restaurant business by starting as a line cook. Then she took a summer job working under a Navy chef who made her realize how much fun a cooking career could be.

So, she moved to Chicago, got married and started cooking school. After school she found it to be a challenge getting her foot in the back of the house (kitchen), she said.

"At first, as a woman, it was really hard to get a job in a kitchen," she said, "but I was fortunate enough to get one in a French restaurant that had been advertising for a while."

Following that experience, she bought a bed and breakfast with a friend she had met working in the French restaurant and maintained that for a few years.

Next she opened three restaurants in the Chicago suburbs. Receiving reviews in

The Chicago Tribune and The Sun Times, this effort was a highlight in her multi-faceted career, she said.

She added that her personal and professional life has been a trial-and-error undertaking.

Originally from Saginaw, Watson-Small moved back to Michigan from Chicago in 1998 and opened a deli in Union Pier.

A few years later, she became a real estate agent for properties along the western Michigan shoreline. After 10 years, a friend from Saugatuck who appreciated her desire to re-enter the restaurant world, suggested they open a pizza parlor. So "Pizza Mambo" was born.

"I have always loved pizza," she said. "It seemed like the next logical step to take. In 2014, she brought the business to Charlevoix and renamed it "Pizza Girl."

Pizza Girl is a carry-out only and customers picking-up their food often tell Watson-Small that her place is the only establishment in the area to get good pizza.

Watson-Small attributes the compliments to her efforts to make everything she can in house and ordering high-quality meats and cheeses.

"Everything is from scratch to make sure its fresh and good for our customers," she said. "We make our own cooked sauce, our own raised dough (a two day process), and use only quality ingredients. Our cheese is from a contact in Wisconsin. It costs twice as much as regular pizza cheese, but that's the difference in taste when you eat our pizza."

In my estimation, it was a brilliant decision with our K (kindergarten) through sixth population to stay here.

"This (Charlevoix Elementary School) was suited for and meant to be an elementary school."

Ritter said the focus of the facility study committee is to generate a 20-year plan moving forward.

"You can't always Band-Aid things as you go," Ritter said. "You need a plan that is long-term and we have a nice elementary school, but it's a different setting compared with the middle and high school. This building was built in 1969, the middle/high school in 2002."

Ritter said the timing of the facilities options is great because in 2015 county voters passed a roughly $5.4 million bond, of which $458,000 was to be spent at the elementary school.

"You don't want to spend that until you have a plan moving forward and until you decide which facility you're going to use," Ritter said. "We need to figure out what to do with the buildings we have and we're doing the best we can with the facilities we have."

Ritter also discussed the impact of the three facilities to the school's operating budget and whether it's sustainable to continue to operate three facilities.

"We're really not set up at this stage of the game nor do we anticipate needing a third facility," Ritter said.

That thought process has led to the facility study committee, which has researched all the facilities, provided tours and engineering studies and then selected four options which they along with committee member Ben Muladore and Ray Kendra of Environment Architect presented to the public Wednesday.

Those options included remodeling the current elementary school and adding a new gymnasium, an enhanced remodel of the Round Lake Education Center for an elementary school, constructing a new elementary school at the Round Lake campus and constructing a new elementary school at the middle/high school campus.

Muladore, who addressed what the facilities team committee has learned over the past several months, said the goal is to ultimately make a prudent recommendation to the board of education moving forward.

"We want our recommendation to be prudent and feel we've listened to the staff and to community involvement," Muladore said.

Muladore mentioned the committee, which he along with Chuck Center, Douglas Bergmann, Krista Jarema, Mike Hinkle, John Martin, Dick Joseph, Jacq Dupert, Lisa Meyer, Mike Moon, Suzanne Klinger, Doug Drenth, Shelly Novotny, Lucas Porath, Jim Marsh and Ritter, looked at what the school system has right now.

"Our elementary has 479 students in addition to preschool, Round Lake on average has about 40 students and the middle/high school has 506 students," Muladore said. "It's clear and obvious we don't need three facilities. Moving forward, when we think of Round Lake, it's an 80,000 square foot facility that's being used to house 40 students. With rising maintenance costs and costs where we roughly broke even last year, looking forward I don't know if that's sustainable."

Muladore said the Round Lake facility can't simply reopen as an elementary school because of restroom facilities amongst other issues, and cost to renovate Round Lake to an elementary would be roughly $6.6 million.

Kendra then discussed the options which were developed including key areas of concern at both the elementary school and Round Lake facility.

At the existing elementary school, key areas Kendra addressed included adding a gymnasium, updating site work including the ongoing stormwater issues, energy improvements including upgrading single pane windows and additional roof insulation, ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) improvements and needed kitchen ventilation system needs.

At Round Lake, Kendra spoke of key areas including ADA improvements, energy improvements, roofing modifications and mechanical and plumbing upgrades.

"These options are very crude and not meant to be solutions per se," Kendra said. "We haven't spoken with teachers, it was mostly work of this committee and I applaud the committee. It's a committed group that've met several times and I applaud the community for offering feedback."

Discussion of what would happen to school property should one facility be vacated, new gymnasiums and school population followed presentations by Ritter, Muladore and Kendra.

Mike Moon, a facility team committee member and board of education trustee, said he was encouraged by the support of the community at the forum.

"It's nice some folks came along and gave support with what we're doing," Moon said. "This is my second year on the board and I'm kind of wide-eyed as to what we're talking about, but Ben Muladore joined our facilities group asked some good questions as to why we weren't thinking long term and bigger. That really started to make sense."

Moon said the issue is the school district has two aging facilities and it doesn't make sense to pour money into them.

"We want to do it right," Moon said. "My concern with a new superintendent was there may be some pushback from the community, but I've been here eight years and that's an unfounded concern."

"We have three buildings and the funding we have available for them wouldn't work," Moon said. "We had to cut over a million dollars out of the budget, it took a lot of work to get that done and it's been tough, but it's worked out well."

Helps cancer support services at Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently awarded Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital a grant in the amount of $9,500. This gift, funded by the proceeds of the Charlevoix Mother's Day Walk, Run, Cure event, will be used for mammography assistance for low-income women and for cancer support services for the hospital's oncology patients.

The Charlevoix Cancer Patient Needs Fund helps women pay for mammograms who do not have insurance or the ability to pay for these important screenings. One in seven women will be diagnosed with breast cancer at some point in her life. When breast cancer is found early, the five-year survival rate is 98 percent; when found in a more advanced stage, the five-year survival rate drops to 23 percent.

In addition, the Charlevoix Cancer Patient Needs Fund provides financial assistance for supportive care for local cancer patients, when other means have been exhausted. Supportive care includes, but is not limited to, such things as transportation, childcare and utilities during treatment, as well as prosthetics. This type of assistance has been growing in recent years. Even though better insurance coverage has funded more preventative screenings, high deductibles for diagnostic tests and subsequent treatment once diagnosed continue to put a strain on individuals and families who are battling cancer.

With assistance from Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital Foundation's Cancer Patient Needs Fund, the hospital is able to assist local residents in need with the burdensome costs associated with cancer services.

"We are grateful for the opportunity to make a difference in the lives of those we serve in our community," said Chelsea Platte, executive director of MHCH Foundation, "as well as for the generous gifts from community groups like the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the dedicated organizers and participants of the Walk, Run, Cure event that help make it possible."

October is Breast Cancer Awareness Month, a national campaign to raise awareness of this disease. According to the American Cancer Society, breast cancer is the most common cancer among women in the United States, other than skin cancer. However, with the help of early detection and improved treatments, many women are surviving the disease. Gifts from advocate groups like Walk, Run, Cure, who host a remembrance run each spring in Charlevoix, help to bolster support for local women facing a cancer diagnosis.

Dress for Chill gets head start on winter

BOYNE CITY — Boyne City Eta Nu women's organization plans to be ready for cold weather this winter and has used the beginning autumn color change as a starting flag for the annual Dress For Chill program.

The Dress For Chill program is working with the Head Start Program for Preschoolers and the Boyne City Elementary School. A group of 20 committee members will work to distribute new winter outerwear for students in need. This is the ninth year Eta Nu women have worked on this community project, fitting more than 100 students each year.

The Dress For Chill committee members work together in the month of October to raise money in the community. They shop, organize, distribute and fit the students in new outfits in coordination with the Boyne City Elementary school system.

Last year, the Chill committee outfitted 163 preschool and elementary students with new jackets, snow pants, boots, hats and mittens.

Although October is the busiest month for this program, committee members work all year long, especially during department store sales in November and December and end-of-season sales in January and February to purchase garments at the best prices possible.

"We have reduced the cost for a total outfit from when we started by 40 percent," said chairperson Denise Holmes.

Funds are raised through donations from community organizations, businesses and individuals. Fund donation canisters are also distributed to several area businesses in Boyne City.

"Dress For Chill is one of the most successful community projects Eta Nu is involved with," said Penny Dietz, president. "It is a true community effort and we need the continued support of the community to make it work."

Fund donations are tax deductible. Checks may be made out to Eta Nu Charities and sent to P.O. Box 133, Boyne City, MI 49712.

Harvest festival to raise funds for Lynn Coors

PETOSKEY — There will be a harvest festival fundraiser for Lynn Coors from noon-6 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 15, on the grounds of the Agape Baptist Church, 3003 E. Mitchell Road, Petoskey.

The event will feature a bounce house, hayride, pumpkin games and activities, face painting, cider and doughnuts and a raffle.

Admission is $5 per person and $20 for families up to six people.

Coors will be off work until doctors release her after an upcoming medical procedure.

Funds will be used for expenses during her convalescence.

disabilities who may be, or may have been, the victims of bullying, and a message of admonition for bullies who may not realize the cruel consequences of their words and/or actions.

Ianni who graduated from Michigan State University four years ago, played on the Spartans' 2010 and 2011 Big Ten Championship basketball teams and was a member on MSU's Final Four team of 2010 under coach Tom Izzo.

Standing at the formidable height of 6-foot 9-inches in his size 18 tennis shoes, Ianni had the undivided attention of students in attendance by his heartwarming story of survival in the system under challenging circumstances, his easy-going manner and his sense of humor.

"I was diagnosed at an early age with Asperger Syndrome," he told the students. Asperger syndrome is a lifelong brain development disorder that leads to problems with social skills, behavior and coordination.

"They told my parents I would never go to college, never play sports and the best they could hope for would be that I would grow up to live in a group home," he said. "My parents would not accept the implications of that diagnosis and encouraged me throughout my schooling to be the best that I could be. They would never let me quit even when I wanted to."

Part of the trouble in school was more than academic for Ianni. He was mercilessly bullied due to his stature (he was 6'2" with a size 16 shoe his freshman year of high school) and because of his Asperger Syndrome, which according to Ianni, is the number one target disorder for bullies.

In fifth grade, one student, who had up to then been one of his few loyal and protective friends, betrayed his trust in an unfortunate bullying incident. He stood by while a group of boys dared him to put his tongue on a frozen flag pole. He was devastated by that betrayal.

"I was afraid of kids who were much smaller than I was ... I was teased and was called names all through middle school," he said.

It was only later that he gained the confidence he attributes to the support of caring teachers and his family, especially his older sister, an athlete in her own right who played MSU volleyball on scholarship. He was tempted on many occasions to strike out and give up.

"But that wasn't how my parents raised me to be," he said. "I looked in the mirror and decided

I couldn't be that kind of person. I knew that my words and actions would reflect on my family."

Ianni offered three keys to success to his young audience. The first is motivation, by having a mind-set that no one can tell you that you can't achieve your goals.

"The more doubters I had, the more I was motivated to prove them wrong," he said.

The second was hard work.

"My dad always told me, 'the harder you work, the more you earn,'" Ianni said. "Things were never handed to me. Through hard work and the dedication of my support group, I was able to get a full ride scholarship, play on two Big Ten Champlionship teams and graduate from Michigan State University."

Finally he ended his key advice with support.

"I have an older sister who I annoyed constantly growing up," Ianni said. "After she left for college, I realized how much I missed her. She taught me how to get through college. We became friends. She was an amazing athlete and finished her volleyball career at Michigan State."

His final advice for the students was to treat others with respect.

"Be careful what you say or do to people," he said. "You can positively change somebody's life...you can change the world. Live your dreams."

training.

"The multi-purpose room will open the pool up to be more family friendly for our programs that are geared toward children," said Chelsea Biddick, pool program coordinator. "With this space we also will be able to accommodate larger groups for different activities and programming."

After the announcement, board members and pool officials spoke to community members about the project.

"Pool operations are in good financial shape," Singer said. "To keep it that way we will not break ground on this project until we have raised the construction costs."

So far, in the campaign's silent phase, the pool has raised a little more than $250,000 in donations and pledges.

In 2015, the pool had more than 24,000 patrons. More than 2,400 people from the region took swim lessons there. About 40 percent of them were Charlevoix residents, 35 percent hailed from Petoskey and 25 percent from other Northern Michigan communities, said Mike Dow, board vice president.

The renovations are an important part of the pool's continued efforts to reach as many people as possible, Dow said. "The pool is an important facility in our community," he said. "We serve many people with our variety of activities offered."

The building addition will house the new ADA-compliant locker rooms that will be larger to accommodate more patrons and offer privacy areas.

The rooms also will feature new lockers, showers, flooring and sinks.

"The renovation and addition will sustain the pool for many years to come," Dow said.

On Saturday, Oct. 15, the Charlevoix Kiwanis Club will host its fifth annual Apple Fest Fun Run, which coincides with the Apple Fest in downtown Charlevoix Oct. 14-16.

The Fun Run includes both a 1-mile and a 5K option. All participants are invited to arrive between 7:30 a.m.-9:15 a.m. on race day to receive a goody bag at check-in, which is located in the bandshell.

This year, the bags will include a retro-style lunch box and coupons to lots of the local establishments and a free swim pass at the community pool.

The run benefits the Charlevoix Kiwanis Youth Foundation and all funds stay in the community to support kids and their activities. Each year the race features hay bale mazes, an apple toss, corn husking and one new surprise obstacle on the course.

"We want kids and adults of all skill levels to come out and enjoy fall, the Apple Fest, and to get some exercise," said Leah Olson, Kiwanis Club member. "Each year we look forward to some creative family teams and even teams of friends who come out to have fun."

The 1-mile and 5K races begin at 9 a.m. and 9:30 a.m., respectively, at the corner of Belvedere Avenue and U.S. 31.

The 1-mile race is $10 per person, and the 5K is $15 per person, or $50 per family of four or more.

Overall, the annual fun run has been a huge success in previous years and is a great way for families to bond and have fun. The run has slowly grown from the original 45 participants to an expected group of more than 150 participants this year, Olson said.

"We have lots of folks who come back year after year and we also have some new people out enjoying the fall," Olson said. "We have great local sponsorship including our 'HoneyCrisp' sponsor, Charlevoix State Bank, whom without we wouldn't be able to offer the scholarships and discounts that we do for families and kids."

Each year race organizers send out more than 700 coupons to the schools so that anyone, who wants to come out and participate can even if they can't otherwise afford to do the race, Olson said.

Race organizers also will provide Johan's doughnuts, Kilwin's treats and coffee and cocoa at the end for everyone who participates.

Individuals and teams can register online prior to Oct. 14 for an early bird registration race by going to www.CharlevoixKiwanis.org.

Rayders clinche playoff berth

Charlevoix wins over Onekama 16-9, improves record to 6-1

esasiela@petoskeynews.com

ONEKAMA — After a heartbreaking loss to Harbor Springs in week nine kept Charlevoix out of the 2015 MHSAA football playoffs, the Rayders decided to punch their ticket to the playoffs a little bit earlier this season.

Charlevoix defeated Onekama 16-9 on Friday night to improve its record to 6-1.

The sixth win gives the Rayders an automatic berth into the playoffs, and they can improve their chances for home field advantage with wins over Frankfort and Mesick the final two weeks of the season.

No matter what happens, Rayder head coach Ron Bindi said his team is excited to return to postseason football for the first time since 2014.

"The kids are excited about being in the playoffs," Bindi said. "We've got another real tough opponent next week (in Frankfort) so if the schedule would have been different, we might not be in the playoffs already. We're happy to be in the playoffs. It's something that we were hoping for."

The Rayders scored first against the Portagers on Friday, as Cam Alden rushed from more than 60 yards out to the end zone. Quarterback Brad Klinger found Oliver DeYoung for the two-point conversion to make it an 8-0 game early.

Onkama came back after the Portagers returned an interception 10 yards to cut the lead to 8-6, as the Rayders defense stopped the two-point try.

Bindi said the turning point of the game came with 43 seconds left in the first half, with the ball around its own 25-yard line and Charlevoix marching down the field.

Jared McLean had a couple of long runs, setting up a Klinger keeper for a touchdown as time expired. Klinger also ran in the two-point conversion to give the Rayders a 16-6 half-time lead.

Both offenses were dormant in the second half, as the Portagers mustered just a field goal.

McLean led the team in rushing with 118 yards on 15 carries, and Klinger chipped in 54 yards on 18 carries while finishing 7 of 12 for 100 yards passing.

Alden rushed for 86 yards on three carries and caught three passes for 20 yards, while Colin Smith caught two passes for 72 yards.

Defensively, Alden had 11 tackles to lead Charlevoix, McLean added nine and Caleb Hart chipped in eight.

The Rayders have now won two straight since suffering a 49-7 loss to Maple City Glen Lake. They shut out East Jordan 27-0 in week six before earning their playoff berth on Friday.

Bindi emphasized the defensive line will have to prepare the offensive line for a matchup with Frankfort on Friday, Oct. 14. The Panthers are 7-0 and defeated Glen Lake 26-21 in week six before dismantling Mesick 53-0 on Friday.

With a trip to the playoffs secure, Bindi knows his squad can compete with Frankfort in what is sure to be a solid Northern Michigan Football League Leaders Division matchup.

"We can step up and play with an undefeated football team right now," he said. "That's where our mindset is. We're in the playoffs and that's good, but we've got a big game coming up on Friday night. Nobody really gives us a chance to win but we'll see."

MANISTEE — No matter how it comes, a trip to the state finals is always special in any sport.

But Charlevoix girls golf team, earning a state final berth at Friday's Division 4 regional at Manistee Country Club was a little more special.

Charlevoix shot a 416 to finish second overall behind champion Harbor Springs and make history.

Just three years into the program's existence, the Rayders secured a state final berth and will be among the state's 18 best teams in Division 4 playing for a state championship next Friday and Saturday.

"I'm so proud of the girls for how far they've taken this program in three years, and everything they've achieved," Charlevoix coach Jennifer HARBOR SPRINGS — With what the Charlevoix volleyball team has ahead of them, the Rayders needed to pick up a bit of momentum this week.

They found it on Tuesday in Harbor Springs.

Coming off a 3-0 match win over the Rams the last time they saw them, Charlevoix duplicated that effort again on Tuesday in the Harbor Springs High School gym, gritting out three tough wins over the Rams.

The Rayders earned a 25-20 win in the opening set, then again let the Rams in with a 25-21 win in set two.

Closing Harbor out in the third came as the biggest test

New high jump mat part of regional push for Rayder track team

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix track and field program is a top-flight one in many respects, with a lengthy history of great athletes and impressive state meet performances that extends to the present day.

Now, the Rayders are making moves to reflect that status, upgrading their facilities to return what was once a state-of-the-art track to its former glory, with a goal to return invitations and regional meets to Charlevoix.

That could happen as soon as this season, as the Rayders have put in to host a Division 3 regional in 2017.

"Charlevoix has a proud history in track and field, including hosting big invitations in the past, but over the years we kind of got away from that," Charlevoix coach Nick Barnum said.

"What we're doing now is to try and get our facilities back to the point where we can be that kind of destination once again, and with the community's help I think we're well on our way."

The latest step is a new high jump mat to replace the old one that had been in use for decades, thanks to a generous donation by Charlevoix Ace Hardware owner Mark Greyerbiehl.

While training for the annual Drenth Footrace as part of a bet with his son as to who could finish higher, Greyerbiehl got help from retired Charlevoix track and field coach Ken Plude to improve his time, and in return agreed to make a donation

Sell said. "We don't have a dedicated feeder program the way a lot of top programs do, but we've had a lot of dedication from our players and a lot of people in the community stepping up and helping us get to this point, and I'm grateful."

Two top five finishes pushed Charlevoix up the standings, as Abbey Scholten shot a 91 to finish third overall and Emily Sabsook carded a 97 to tie with O'Neill for fifth.

Olivia Jeakle was a late addition to the lineup but came through in a big way for the Rayders, shooting a 111, Rylynn Sladek carded a 116, and Annie Joy shot a 123 as well.

"We spent the whole week leading up to the tournament focusing on our short game, trying to nail down our approach shots from within 50 yards and our putting, and that made a big difference," Sell said. "With the weather being as nasty as it was, having our short game on point really helped us save a lot of strokes." Better mental focus and a short memory on the course also played a role, Sell said.

"We were coming off a rough tournament on Monday, so we really spent this week focusing on our mental game, and letting go of bad shots and holes and refocusing," Sell said. "We talked about smiling, having fun and enjoying the moment, and that really seemed to take a lot of the pressure off today."

Thanks to that focus, the Rayders will play at Forest Akers West in East Lansing on Friday and Saturday, Oct. 14 and 15, competing for a Division 4 state title and for individual all-state honors.

"We've heard there are crowds in the gallery and it's just a very different feel from all the tournaments we've played before, so that's going to be a real challenge for us," Sell said. "At the same time, there's definitely a lot of excitement and we're really looking forward to the experience."

Rayders get the better of Petoskey in annual home invite CHARLEVOIX — In an event that hearkened back to the days of the Huron Shores Conference, Charlevoix hosted Petoskey at its high school course for an event that pitted the two schools head to head with each other, as well as fellow invitee Elk Rapids.

Originally scheduled as Charlevoix's annual Belvedere Run before a scheduling conflict forced the event to move from the Belvedere Golf Club, the race instead turned into a chance for two old rivals to compete directly against each other.

Charlevoix got the better of Petoskey in both the boys and girls races, beating the Northmen 25-30 in the boys race and 19-45 in the girls race over the two mile distance.

In the boys race, the one-two punch of Noah Carson (10:49) and Luke Buday (11:04) led Charlevoix, with David Ritter taking fourth overall (11:04), Ben Lentz finishing eighth (11:30) and Ben Peterson 10th (11:38).

Braeden Richards took 14th (12:10) and Josh Carlson 17th (12:38) as well for the Rayders.

In the girls race, Charlevoix's Michelle Bollini took first by nearly a minute (12:33) to lead the Rayders, with teammates Isabel Hess (2nd, 13:25) and Megan Scholten (3rd, 13:26) coming in next.

Katie Mousseau took sixth for Charlevoix (13:49), Kaitlin Schwenke seventh (13:59), Lukila Witthoft eighth (14:04) and Emmaline Peterson ninth (14:05).

"It's really cool to get Petoskey out here for a race and it reminds me a lot of when my brother was running and these two teams were in the same conference," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "They would have races every year like this where they went head to head, and it was nice to recreate that."

"Obviously Petoskey is good competition for us and I think we both made each other better by racing against each other today."

The next Tuesday, when Petoskey competes in the BNC finals at Gaylord, and Charlevoix travels to Buoye City for the LMC Championships.

Charlevoix at Mancelona Invite

MANCELONA — Charlevoix's cross country teams had big days at Thursday's Mancelona invite, with the two squads finishing first and second.

The Rayder girls led the way with a big day, placing four runners in the top 10 to bring home the team title with 74 points.

Michelle Bollini picked up another race win for Charlevoix, finishing first in 19:46, and teammate Isabel Hess took fourth (21:26).

Megan Scholten finished sixth (21:50) for the Rayders, Emmaline Peterson took 10th (22:07) and Kaitlin Schwenke finished 12th (22:14) as Charlevoix put 10 runners in the top 20.

On the boys side, a short-handed Charlevoix squad finished runner-up to Grayling with 60 points, led by race winner Luke Buday (17:24).

Ben Peterson took seventh (18:24), Ben Lentz eighth (18:39), Devin Cuadros 10th (19:23), and Joshua Carlson 30th (19:36) as well for the Rayders, who had all of their top five runners run lifetime bests.

Rayders take both Pop Warner games on Saturday

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Pop Warner program swept its foes from Traverse City on Saturday, going 2-0 for the second straight week.

The PeeWee team beat the Traverse City Wolverine 21-6 behind rushing touchdowns from Troy Nickel, A.J. Spiegl and John Paul Culver.

Hudson Vollmer caught a two-point conversion from Nickel and James Dixon kicked an extra point as well, while the Rayder defense shut down the Wolverines after the opening drive.

The JV squad won a hard-fought 28-12 contest over the Traverse City Warriors, led by three rushing touchdowns from tailback John Sauer.

Max Ostrum also added a touchdown on the ground, while Isaac Moar and Patrick Sterett each ran well as well.

The Rayder defense has a strong day, led by Ostrum, who had three sacks and a fumble recovery, and William Kelly added two sacks as well.

Meech Bell, Jake Claffin and Jack Herzog also played well defensively for the Rayders.

Charlevoix is in action at home this week, as the JV Rayders play Bellaire at 10 a.m. Saturday at Kipke Field, and the PeeWee Rayders take on East Jordan Red at 11:30 a.m.

for Charlevoix coach Audra Randall and her team though.

The win sets the Rayders up with some positive vibes heading into the weekend, when they'll travel to the Mt. Morris tournament once again this season, then take on Traverse City St. Francis at home next Tuesday, Oct. 18.

Leading the Rayders on the night was their freshmen Stuck with a big night at the net with 16 kills and a pair of blocks, while also adding two aces and 13 digs.

Moon had seven aces and seven kills to go along with 16 assists, 14 digs and two blocks, O'Leary had nine kills, 14 assists and 10 digs and Julia Doskoch added 22 digs and went 18 for 21 on serve receive.

Charlevoix at Suttons Bay Invite

SUTTONS BAY — When the winner of a 16-team tournament comes away with just one loss on the day, that kind of says a lot about that team that got them.

On Saturday at the Suttons Bay Volleyball Invite, that tourney winning team was Class D power Leland and the team that tagged them with their lone loss was a young Charlevoix team.

The day began for the Rayders with quick wins over Onkama in sets of 25-17 and 25-9, sending them into their pool play match with Leland.

Charlevoix stumbled in the opening set against Leland, falling 25-16, but a late push by Charlevoix got them out to a 24-21 lead in the second set, and Charlevoix's Becca Moon finished with an ace for the win, 25-23.

The third set again went back and forth, going from a 10-10 game to a 15-12 win for the Rayders.

Now up 2-0 after their first two matches of the day, Charlevoix met a tough Bellaire squad in their third game, falling in both sets, 25-20 and 25-22.

After pool play the Rayders sat in a three-way tie, leaving the tiebreaker to be lowest point total allowed. Charlevoix fell into the silver bracket to be seeded with a bye.

Following that bye, the Rayders met McBain in the semis, where they soon fell behind, 20-10.

Moon led her team back at the serve line once again, though, as Charlevoix pushed through into the finals with a 25-23 win.

Facing Rogers City in the silver bracket finals, the Rayders earned wins of 25-20 and 25-23 to take the bracket.

Leading Charlevoix, Elise Stuck finished strong with 34 kills, 17 blocks, 26 digs and three aces, while Moon had 35 assists, 38 digs and 11 aces.

Kenzy O'Leary had 16 kills, 33 assists, 23 digs and three aces, Julia Doskoch had 56 digs, five aces, went 74-for-82 on serve receive and added one kill, while Ali Jarema had 23 digs and went 29-for-30 on serve receive.

Also for Charlevoix, Ellie Louiselle had eight blocks and five kills and Beth Veenstra had eight kills, 10 digs, four aces and two blocks.

PUSH

to the Charlevoix track program.

That donation turned into the new mat, as well as some additional money for other projects related to the track at Kipke Field.

"I think a new mat is a phenomenal asset, because you're getting something that boys and girls use, middle schoolers and high schoolers, and not just for track but in P.E. as well," Greyerbiehl said. "I have a number of kids involved in track and field who work for me over the summer, and there's a lot of pride in this program."

"To shoot for a regional and have a chance to bring that here would mean a lot to a number of people in this town, so it's exciting to see the school going for it."

The improvements began in the summer of 2015, when the Charlevoix Booster club helped the school purchase a new, fully automated timing system (FAT) to replace the old hand timers.

"Getting FAT was the first hurdle, so to speak, that we had to clear to have a shot at the regional meet, because having an automated timing system is an important part of the selection criteria," Barnum said. "We weren't able to get it up and running last season, but (Charlevoix athletic director) Travis Garrett has been working hard solving the logistical problems over the summer to make sure we're able to get it working for this year."

More improvements are coming, with the Rayders eyeing new pole vault standards and hurdles, as well as a complete resurfacing of the track some time in the next two or three years as well.

Playing host would mean more than prestige, as it would give Charlevoix a chance to avoid a lengthy trip downstate like the one they had last year for regionals at Mason County Central, a nearly three-hour drive.

"We had to miss a day of school on Friday to attend the meet, and we left at 8 a.m. and didn't get back until well after midnight on Saturday," Barnum said. "In past years, we'd been at East Jordan, which was nearby, but they dropped down to Division 4 last year and that left us with a long, draining trip."

"We felt like we had the facilities to host if we made some improvements, and that would possibly allow us to avoid having to make a trip like that again."

However, there is a pride factor involved with playing host as well, and one that Barnum understands is important.

"We want to give people the best possible experience when they come here, so that when they leave it's with the impression that this is a first-class track in a first-class town," Barnum said. "We just want to look at the facility we have with pride, and know we're capable of hosting these big events."

Charlevoix rebounds with 4-1 win over Elk Rapids on senior night

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9341
jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix boys soccer team sent its massive senior class off right on Tuesday, beating visiting Elk Rapids 4-1 in its final home game of the season at Kipke Field.

The Rayders scored three second half goals to down the Elks, with two coming from junior Danny Nesburg, who beat multiple defenders on a lengthy run to score his first goal eight minutes into the second half, and then added another 10 minutes later on a shot from 35 yards out.

Nesburg, normally a defender for Charlevoix, has scored three of the Rayders' last five goals after moving up top for stretches in the last two games.

"Danny's got a lot of speed, and he does whatever we ask of him," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We're really happy with the success he's had adding a new role in the last few games and putting up big results for us."

Elk Rapids struck first five minutes in on a goal by Keegan Cunningham, but Charlevoix struck back immediately on the kickoff, as senior Christian Matye caught the Elks' goalkeeper off guard with a shot from midfield that found the back of the net and tied the game at 1.

Freshman Blaise Snabes added the final goal for the Rayders, crashing the net on a scramble in the box after a free kick and tapping in a rebound to put the game out of reach with 18 minutes left.

JAMES GENSTERBLUM/COURIER
Charlevoix's Graham Kroon (15) celebrates with Danny Nesburg after his first goal in a 4-1 win over visiting Elk Rapids on Tuesday night.

Senior David Ritter chipped in an assist for Charlevoix, while Jacob Harrod earned the win in goal.

Now 12-5-2 and 6-3 in the LMC, the Rayders can wrap up second place with a win over Grayling on Thursday, while a potential rematch with the Elks in district play looms next Wednesday if Elk Rapids can get by Boyne City on Monday.

Charlevoix 1

HARBOR SPRINGS — There's a lot to be said about the Harbor Springs/Charlevoix boys soccer rivalry, but the most important thing is that it never disappoints.

For the seventh time in the last eight meetings, one goal decided the outcome of an intense, emotional match, with Harbor Springs scoring twice in the final 18 minutes to come from behind and beat the Rayders 2-1 to sweep the season series.

Rams senior Lampton Kamalii helped Harbor Springs draw even with a goal on a penalty with 17 minutes to play, while Joe Claramunt scored the game-winner on a shot from the top of the box 11 minutes later.

Those two goals helped undo a rough start for Harbor Springs, which gave up a goal to Charlevoix's Danny Nesburg two minutes in and struggled to adjust to the Rayders' intensity.

Nesburg, normally a defenseman for the Rayders, started the game up top and the move paid instant dividends as he won a footrace with Rams goalie Parker Fairbairn to the ball to score and nearly added a second less than a minute later.

But despite the early advantage and several good opportunities, the Rayders couldn't find the second goal it needed to put the Rams away, thanks to strong play in net from Fairbairn and a few missed chances.

That left the Rayders vulnerable to the Rams' late charge, and Fairbairn and Harbor Springs' back line made several big stops in the final six minutes to seal the victory.

CHARLEVOIX — A recent forum with the five city council candidates and two mayoral candidates discussed bringing more young professionals to town, creating jobs and attracting and retaining businesses.

Each candidate seemed to agree jobs for young people were important to move the town forward.

Ken Winter, retired Petoskey News-Review publisher and current educator at Northern Michigan Community College, moderated the forum and asked each candidate three prepared questions and three of the top audience questions.

More than 130 people sat in the crowd while mayoral and city council candidates gave their candidacy pitch Tuesday evening at the Candidate Forum, sponsored by the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce, Charlevoix Public Library and Charlevoix Courier. The event also was streamed live and is still available to view on the Charlevoix Courier's Facebook page.

Bob Bergmann said he describes himself as an advocate for the average person. He is a third generation Charlevoix resident, with family roots dating back 100 years in the Charlevoix community, which gives him the knowledge and a deep love for this community to understand

Controversy surrounds pending parks vote

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A proposal to amend Charlevoix's city charter in order to add more protections for two city parks has created a good deal of controversy ahead of the Nov. 8 election.

Voters will decide in this year's general election whether to adopt the measure to place Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park under a conservation easement.

Supporters of the easement want to assure the property will be perpetually preserved in its predominately nature, scenic, forested, and open space condition.

"This ballot measure will keep the property in its natural state and allow current recreation use, including disc golf, to continue," said John Campbell, conservation easement committee member.

But detractors say the amendment gives too much control to of the city parks away to third-party oversight.

"Why would a city want to put our parks under control of the Little Traverse Conservancy?" said Greg Bryan, a "No" vote proponent. "I don't care if the amendment is well-crafted. Once park control is given away, we can never get it back."

The two sides are currently battling in a public information campaign in the neighborhoods of the city. Bryan and others are arguing against the amendment, while Campbell and easement committee members are presenting the case for it.

Bryan calls Campbell's proposal, much ado about nothing, saying the conservation easement committee has created this scenario that the two parks are in threat of de-

Bridge work

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Construction on the lone route crossing the Pine River Channel over the Charlevoix bascule bridge is slated to begin on Dec. 26. Most of the work will be achieved while maintaining two-way vehicle traffic on the bridge, shifting traffic to each side as work progresses. In April, there are planned closures of the bridge to vehicular and pedestrian traffic for 12 consecutive nights.

Charlevoix bridge rehab slated to start in December

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix local officials along with the Michigan Department of Transportation are preparing for a planned rehabilitation project of the U.S. 31 bascule bridge over the Pine River Channel which is slated to begin in December.

James Lake, communications representative for MDOT, said the $1.9 million project will include substructure and steel repairs as well as electrical and mechanical upgrades. The project also includes replacement of the traffic warning gates and the electrical switches needed to ensure the bridge operates smoothly and properly.

Construction also will be done to repair and seal concrete sidewalks along with reconstruction of bridge roadway approaches and painting the steel superstructure.

The contractor for the project, Aniaan Corp. of Grand Haven, is scheduled to begin mobilizing its crews on Dec. 12. Work is scheduled to begin with the bridge in the closed/down position, on Dec. 26, Lake said.

School board moves forward on auxiliary gym

STEVE FOLEY
(231) 439-9397 • sfoley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public School Board of Education agreed to move forward with financing an auxiliary gym to be constructed at the Charlevoix Middle/High School at Monday's regular meeting at the Charlevoix Elementary School library.

The board comprised of Dick Joseph, Valerie Snyder, Douglas Bergmann, Tom Kirinovic, Matt Peterson and Mike Moon voted 5-1 to approve a plan for two construction options not to exceed $3.3 million and to then begin receiving bids.

Moon voted against the proposal.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Michael Ritter mentioned to the board two plans for the auxiliary gymnasium which carried costs of $2,536,756.33 and $2,712,772.80 as presented by Ray Kendra of Environment Architects.

"The final plan is for $2.5 million or $2.7 million," Ritter said. "I took that to Ray to decrease the full size courts and make it a middle school court along with the removal of the changing rooms."

Joseph, the board's president, suggested members vote now on the gym in order to get drawings set up so construction can begin in the spring.

Bids for construction on the gymnasium would come in January or early February, Ritter said, and groundbreaking would likely occur in May, weather pending.

Snyder said she supports a $3.3 million project and doesn't look at the gym as an auxiliary gym.

Intoxicated man accused of setting fire in bathroom

STEVE ZUCKER

CHARLEVOIX — A downstate man is facing two criminal charges connected to an incident in which he is accused of setting a small fire in a restaurant bathroom.

Charlevoix Police Department Police Chief Gerard Doan said officers from his department were called to Roadhouse 757, at 757 Petoskey Ave., shortly before 10 p.m. Saturday to a report of a man who was intoxicated and creating a disturbance.

Doan said employees at the restaurant reported that the man had become upset when he was refused further alcohol service.

Doan said while en route to the scene, officers received an update from 911 dispatchers that employees at the restaurant called back reporting that the man had allegedly started a fire in the bathroom and locked the door.

Doan said the Charlevoix Fire Department was initially called to respond, but cancelled when restaurant staff called 911 back.

reporting that they were able to get the bathroom door open and put out the fire themselves.

When they arrived, officers arrested Kyle Allen Childers, 24, of Oxford on charges of drunk/disorderly person and arson of personal property, less than $200. The charges are both misdemeanors punishable by up to 90 days and 93 days in jail, respectively.

Doan said the investigation showed that Childers had allegedly taken a poster that had been on a wall and some toilet paper and set them on fire inside a toilet in the bathroom.

No damage was reported to the restaurant because of the fire.

Childers has been released from custody after posting a $2,000 surety bond. He is slated to be arraigned on the charges at 8:30 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 28 in 90th District Court.

For 30 years a small group of 1953 Mercy Central School of Nursing graduates have been coming to visit Charlevoix or Beaver Island for their annual friends reunion. The group of retired nurses from left are Mary DeLano, Sue Schulte, Skip McDonough, Jane Peabody, Faye Nussdorfer, Mary Burk, Pat Marcussa, Marie McCauley, Bev Rasch, Mary Lynn Messner. Each of them said they enjoy these two areas most of all their gathering spots.

Girls weekend in Northern Michigan: Nurses host annual reunion in Charlevoix

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

Thirty years ago a group of nurses wanted to expand on their annual alumni reunion by having a girls weekend. Last week the group of 10 talked about their 20-year tradition of coming to Northern Michigan to reconnect with each other.

"Charlevoix and Beaver Island are our favorite places to be for our small reunion," said Marie McCauley, of Florida. "We love this area."

The group of 10 nurses graduated in 1953 from the Mercy Central School of Nursing, headquartered at Saint Mary's in Grand Rapids. The school was formed in 1935 after nursing schools from Mercy Hospitals in Bay City and Muskegon merged with Saint Mary's Hospital School.

Many of them did not know each other while attending nursing school, but over the years friendships developed and family bond was formed.

"We do well together," said Faye Nussdorfer.

"We've all shared the joys of children and grandchildren. We've shared our losses from family deaths to the loss of a husband. But we are hanging in there and we share the memories and the fun times we have gathered here."

They come back to the area each year in October, since they started coming to Charlevoix because they are treated well by the locals, said Bev Rasch, who wanted to thank the employees at the Charlevoix American Lodge and Suites for their hospitality.

"They treat us like royalty," Rasch said. "They are very accommodating to our party."

The 1953 class is comprised of more nurses, but this small group has been gathering to retake class photos, share memories of their time together in school and they just enjoy catching up with each other.

"It's really a good time," said Skip McDonough. "To do this each year in Charlevoix or on the Island. Our group comes from all over to make the most of our annual bash."

Once a year all nurse alumni gather in Grand Rapids each September for school reunion, but this annual bash something more these nurses share together.

"This is a social friendship gathering, where we can play cards, get away from our husbands and stay up after 8 p.m. for a change," Nussdorfer said. "It is a little getaway for us."

Grand Friends day sees large turnout

CHARLEVOIX — Children bustled through the school hallways with excitement on Friday to show their special visitors their classrooms and how they learn as students at Charlevoix Elementary School.

Aunts, uncles, grandparents, family friends — all were invited to Charlevoix Elementary School Oct. 14 to celebrate the annual Charlevoix Elementary Grandfriends Day and Fox Motors Ride and Drive.

Visitors to the school came into the classrooms and worked on an activity with the children before enjoying some lunch. They toured the school viewed students work on the walls and met community partners helping with the special day.

The school makes sure each child has a special 'grandfriend' to spend time with during the event, said principal Lisa Meyer.

"Our hope is this will be an amazing day for the children and their special adult," Meyer said. "We love having people here celebrating with the children."

Fox Motors also sponsored the Drive for Kids, which took place in the front circle of the school. Fox donated $10 for each person who test-drove a car.

Fox Motors had 204 people test-drive cars. Fox made an additional $500 donation, because more than 200 people test-drove cars, so the school earned $2,540 from the promotion.

"It was a great finish to the day," said David Pahl, general manager of Fox Charlevoix. "Our goal was to hand the school $2,000 and we exceeded that. We love doing this stuff for the local schools."

City hopes new district spurs downtown renovation, reinvestment

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix City Council members approved the establishment of Commercial Redevelopment District during their Monday meeting.

In a 5-0 vote, the council approved a recommendation from the city manager to establish the district to spur downtown investment. Councilman Luther Kurtz recused himself from the vote.

"The district council sets up an area that encourages development and investment," said Mark Heydlauff, Charlevoix city manager.

The district, which mirrors the Charlevoix Main Street District, would award a type of tax abatement to those investing in the downtown based on a point system, according to Heydlauff.

"Creation of this district is not a loss of current tax revenue to the city," Heydlauff said. "It merely opens the door if a business was to consider development or investment in this area following the point system with the public act."

Councilwoman Shirley Gibson said establishing the district is a benefit to Charlevoix's downtown.

"I can think of four businesses that would benefit greatly from this district," Gibson said. "This gives an incentive to renovate and rehabilitate existing property in our downtown."

Because a property can receive more points toward abatement if it contains a proposal for residential housing the hope is this will spur mixed-use properties in downtown. Heydlauff

"One of the points from (Downtown Marketing Assessment and Development Strategy) report was the need to create more downtown housing," Heydlauff said. "One way this district fulfills that is providing a incentive measure to create more downtown housing."

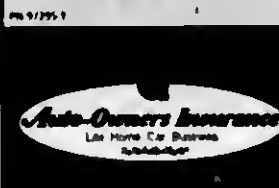

Council members also approved a Biosolids Hauling and Land Application contract to Blotech Agronomics for the next three years. The contract for $88,920 removes the remaining solids left over from the wastewater treatment plant that cannot be discharged.

Readers and reading mentors needed

Editor:
United We Read! Char-Em United Way is partnered with Char-Em ISD and our goal is to improve the educational performance of students in Charlevoix and Emmet counties. We are seeking volunteers who have a desire to interact and connect with children, love reading, have good communication skills and possess enthusiasm and an encouraging attitude. As a part of our initiative, we will be providing literacy training to anyone who wants to join. The training will be held from 9:30 a.m.-12:30 p.m. Friday, Oct. 28, in Petoskey at the Red Cross Building, 2350 Mitchell Park Drive. Literacy Corps is a group of dedicated volunteers who spend time reading, tutoring, or mentoring youth at various youth serving agencies. Volunteers have the ability to set their own schedules based on their own availability and T-shirts also will be provided to those who sign up for the training by Oct. 21. If you are currently volunteering your time or are interested in becoming a mentor, tutor, or reader, please join us at the training. We'd love to meet you.

No vote on the easement referendum

Editor:
I fear some Charlevoix citizens do not understand the ramifications of turning over our recreational areas to the Little Traverse Conservancy. Presently, the city council can never change the use of the property in question without a vote of the citizens. Apparently, city council could now vote to clear cut or mine Mount McSaubia or Michigan Beach on their own. Seriously, that is our fear? If so, then we could have council change this language. If we do approve the proposal it can never be reversed if we are not satisfied with their stewardship. We would be turning control of a vital city asset over to an outside board, most or all of which don't even live in Charlevoix. If the city had placed Mount McSaubia in the conservancy when first obtaining the property and it was written that it had to stay as is, we would have no ski or sledding hill now. I don't think any of us have that kind of crystal ball. We all agree we don't want the property divided or developed. But there are other ways to ensure that won't happen. Please call your councilper-son and ask them to look into other solutions that won't also be so limiting on our future generations. One suggestion would be to change the vote from a simple majority to a two thirds in order to make any changes but that would be our decision, not outsiders.

I believe the next generation, millennials, will be better stewards of our environment that we have been. The petitioners apparently believe our generation must protect future generations from themselves.

Please vote no on the Charlevoix Easement Referendum and keep the decisions about Charlevoix in Charlevoix.

Conservation easement advertisement misinforms public

Editor:
In decades past, farseeing Charlevoix elders created some remarkable public spaces. East Park, Bridge Park, Hoffman Park, Veterans Park, the Mount McSaubia ski hill and the Ferry Avenue, Depot and the Lake Michigan swimming beaches are priceless assets.

However, only two city owned public spaces continue in predominantly open space condition: the larger Lake Michigan Beach Park and the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area. Only these latter parks offer the natural expanses that allow us to unplug from our cell phone connectedness and unhook from our short attention spans. In these places we can watch the day slip away, contemplate the stars, hear the power or murmurs of the lake and refresh ourselves with a hike in the natural world. These are arresting, appealing and inviting places to be enjoyed now and in the future. That is the purpose of the proposed conservation easement.

Recently, evidence of misunderstanding (conscious deception?) has arisen. Signs urge the Charlevoix electorate to vote no on the charter amendment proposal, so we "Don't Give Away Our Parks." In fact, the easements will have the opposite effect and will preserve the natural spaces in Lake Michigan Beach Park and the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and make it more likely that these areas will be preserved as public parks.

A recent advertisement in the Charlevoix Courier claims that "Presently, the City Council (sic) can never change the use of property in question without a vote of the citizens." That statement is a plain falsehood. The city charter provides scan protection for these properties. Council may not "sell, divide, lease, partition, plat, subdivide, or dispose" of these properties unless approved by the electorate, but short of that everything is permitted. Council could, for example, sell the timber, build an RV park, add an off-road vehicle trail, construct a garage or emergency services station, etc., etc.

The proposed easements will not allow that. Far from being a "giveaway" of the parks, the easements preserve them. Moreover, the easements contain carve outs for the current swimming beach area, concession area, ski hill, sledding hill, skating rink and disc golf. Current uses and facilities can continue and be improved. Contrary to the misleading ad, the ski hill rope tows can be upgraded to chair lifts without violating the proposed Mount McSaubia easement. The city will remain in full control of these facilities and uses.

Don't be misled. Only the easements "assure that the (properties) will be preserved in (their) predominantly natural, scenic, forested, and open space condition(s)." Will we be as far-seeing as those who preceded us?

No vote on McSaubia issue

Editor:
I hope the citizens of Charlevoix really understand what a yes vote means in regards to the Mount McSaubia park area. "Save the Park" slogan sounds like a positive thing, but it means the citizens would be giving up future control to a group that many of the board members are not citizens of Charlevoix. A no vote would leave total control of the park to the citizens of Charlevoix, which it is now.

Your city council has voted no on this change. Not happy with that, a contingent gathered signatures to put it on the ballot on Nov. 8. Our city council, that represents our community, has it right.

Why give up control? And, as it stands now, the park is already protected from development. It would take a majority vote of the citizens to make a drastic change. Who knows what the citizens may want to do to enhance this recreational area in the future? There is absolutely no reason to vote yes on this proposal and tie the hands of future generations. I for one trust our local citizens to make solid decisions on what's best for us here in Charlevoix. So should you.... I highly encourage you to vote no. Thank you.

Truth about conservation easement ballot measure

Editor:
The truth about the City Charter Amendment to protect Charlevoix's beautiful Lake Michigan beachfront.

The conservation easement is an insurance policy against development of this area. The Little Traverse Conservancy is not, I repeat, not going to be given any land nor are they purchasing it from the City of Charlevoix.

Currently, under the city charter, this land can be divided and sold to anyone provided it passes a vote of the people. The Conservancy Easement will not allow the property to be developed or divided, thus protecting it for future generations. The amendment language contains wording that will allow Mount McSaubia Recreation Area to repair or replace buildings, equipment and allow for the maintaining of slopes and surrounding nature trails.

The property can still be sold if the people of the city want to sell it, but, the easement will go with the sale, thus protecting the entire area for future generations. Little Traverse Conservancy protects many natural areas around the area. By voting yes you will be ensuring the rules set up by this charter amendment are followed and never compromised. The Little Traverse Conservancy will provide additional protection by having the authority to oversee the City of Charlevoix's care and use of this land in line with the amendment rules.

The following information is in response to some recent comments we have come across courtesy of the Charter Amendment Committee:

1. The LTC (Little Traverse Conservancy) has no intentions or authority to make choices for the land.

2. The point of having them as an oversight committee of sorts is to ensure that the land will be properly maintained for natural resources. They will only step in and have a say if city council fails to address an issue on the property.

3. All current uses and facilities can be upgraded, repaired, removed, etc., at city council/public's will.

4. A yes vote does not take away any rights of the city council or the voters for any purpose other than development rights.

More information can be found on the conservation easement Facebook page.

Shaming voters slowly kills democracy

If Candidate X is elected mayor on Nov. 8, young families will flee from Charlevoix in droves, and downtown businesses will close their doors to avoid the impending doom of the apocalypse.

Sound ridiculous? It is. But that is the best way I can illustrate how the local election is shaping up. The amount of rhetoric out there is creating an atmosphere of fear and voter shame.

It is frightening when people cannot express their own point of view without being shamed into submission from the opposition.

SCRIBE'S VIEW

Lonnie Allen

In 2016, posting a political sign in your yard or window is grounds for an assault. The attack can happen online or face-to-face, but no matter how it comes America and our small town loses.

At this moment, neighbors are at odds with each other along Park Avenue because some chose to show their support for the conservation easement.

These are not the only political yard signs surrounded by controversy in Charlevoix. From our local city races to the national race people are feeling the heat of publicly supporting their candidate.

The Charlevoix County Democrats and Charlevoix County Republicans each have received reports of missing yard signs and voter intimidation. Voter shame is real in Charlevoix and it makes us ugly.

As political signs disappear, or come down because a homeowner is tired of the negativity being directed toward them the more our democracy crumbles.

People are questioning each other in public spaces and private businesses about their loyalties to this town and even America.

It is a nasty reality of clustering. More and more of us are living in like-minded bubbles. This group over here is watching Fox News exclusively, this other group is reading liberal blogs, and never the two shall meet.

Except in small towns they have already met. Many of them are neighbors, associates or acquaintances. They attend the same church, serve or volunteer in the same organizations and at times can appear to be friends.

Why are we acting this way? Life's too short to bear grudges. And it is our patriotic duty to listen to opinions that are different from our own, even when — especially when — they make our blood boil.

Suspend judgment and ask yourself why this person might think this way. Use empathy and listen. What's their experience, and what might you learn from it? What's the portion of truth in all this?

If you can't find it, imagine this person being imprisoned in an undemocratic regime for holding that belief. Would you still attack them?

In her book, "The Friends of Voltaire," Evelyn Beatrice Hall wrote the phrase: "I don't agree with what you say, but will defend to the death your right to say it."

Isn't that phrase part of what Americans continue to fight for?

It's time for campaigns to end the intimidation tactics just because they are so hell-bent on winning. Yes. Each side wants to their person to win. But do we do it in way where democracy dies?

Live From Charlevoix is the brain child of co-chairman Tim Fore who also helped to start the new and growing Groundhog Shadowfest in Charlevoix.

"My plan was to continue to increase the number of visitors to Charlevoix during the winter and spring months," Fore said. "We have shopping, wonderful restaurants, and hotels all within walking distance of downtown and all of these businesses are open year-round."

Fore continued saying his focus has been creating an event that would bring people into the community during the colder months of the year to stay in the hotels, and shop and eat downtown.

"That is how Live From Charlevoix came about. Our goal is to make Charlevoix a year-round destination," Fore said.

Live From Charlevoix is a new performing arts venue that will make its debut on Saturday, Nov. 12 at

This new venue is a nonprofit organization whose focus is to promote the Charlevoix area and its local businesses through a variety of performances.

Rubber Ducks make a splash for Crossroads Ecumenical Resale Shop

EAST JORDAN — East Jordan's Crossroads Ecumenical Resale Shop recently completed their annual fundraiser, the Ducky Derby, in which 140 rubber ducks floated down a stretch of the Jordan River at the Sportsman Park docks.

Proceeds from the event will be used toward its upcoming building project at the VFW building located on M-32. It offered a more cost effective way to get the space Crossroads needed to accomplish their mission.

The addition of 7,200 square feet to the existing 3,200 square feet will enable the resale shop to have furniture and off-season storage under one roof as these items are currently kept in donated space at the Family Fare Plaza. It will allow for additional sorting and resale space as well as more storage space for Care and Share and a waiting room inside for their clients.

Crossroads is also planning to provide space for those in need of financial assistance. This service is currently being handled through the East Jordan Ministerial Association at the Lighthouse Missionary Church.

The Crossroads mission is to meet the needs of families in the East Jordan community by providing clothing, food, and financial resources; their vision is that all families in the community will be able to meet their basic living needs. Their goal to have a "one-stop shopping" experience is becoming real to the Christian-based organization.

For more information or to make a donation, call (231) 536-7606 or mail a check to P.O. Box 937, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Literacy Corps training scheduled for October

PETOSKEY - Training for Char-Em United Way's Literacy Corps will be from 9:30-11:30 a.m. on Friday, Oct. 28, at the American Red Cross building, 2350 Mitchell Park Drive, Petoskey.

Literacy Corps volunteers work with children and youth in a variety of settings in Emmet and Charlevoix counties. United Way is seeking additional volunteers this year and encourages the public to attend this training. The training will provide Literacy Corps members and other youth volunteers with valuable resources as they work with young children. This training will be hosted by Char-Em United Way's education staff and the training will be conducted by specialists from Char-Em Intermediate School District.

The Literacy Corps is part of Char-Em United Way's education initiative "United We Read" dedicated to recruiting 150 volunteers to read to, tutor and mentor students in schools, libraries, day cares and other youth-serving agencies. Anyone interested in helping young children grow their ability to read and improve their chances of academic success is welcome to attend.

"We are very excited to get this program under way and implemented in the community," said Becca Marcott, AmeriCorps VISTA volunteer. "The Literacy Corps will help to impact the lives of many children in a positive way, which will help them prepare for their future. Our dedicated volunteers are very excited to be able to help shape the future of their community by spending time in schools, libraries, day cares and other youth-serving agencies."

People who are already volunteering with youth and those who wish to be matched with a volunteer opportunity are encouraged to attend the training. Anyone interested in joining the Char-Em United Way Literacy Corps should contact Marcott or Brook Granowicz at vista@char-emunitedway.org or call the United Way office at (231) 487-1006.

Right after the beginning of the new century, the Charlevoix Area Garden Club got the idea of perhaps undertaking a huge project that would transform the lawn of the train depot on Depot Beach into an historic heritage garden. After two years of discussion, in 2003 club members finalized their intentions and approached the Charlevoix Historical Society, which owns the Depot, about the possibility. The large open lawn, which had long been largely unused, had begun to fray around the edges and needed a lot of tender loving care. The Society enthusiastically agreed with the proposal, and the Garden Club went to work. Over the next few years, countless volunteer hours saw the laying out of a series of four "rooms" from north to south. Every square inch in each "room" was meticulously planned. Included were brick areas, sections with historic cuttings from plants found in the Charlevoix region, shrubs, benches, clipped hedges, tall metal fencing from the exclusive Colonial Club gambling and dining establishment that had once stood on Meech Street, and a pergola at the far end. Every preliminary sketch for the pergola didn't seem right, until one glance at the Depot porticos design made everything fall into place. The rounded ends of the pergola's cross beams above the pillars echo the rounding of the porticos' horizontal beams, relating the two structures across the open space. The pergola photo was taken just before the finishing touches were applied—a huge vase on a pedestal in the middle with flanking teak benches. At the height of the summer, when everything is in bloom, the Depot Heritage Garden is one of the most beautiful, peaceful places in Charlevoix. The Garden and the Depot are available for weddings, receptions, dinners, and parties. For more information, call (231) 547-0373.

Lake added most of the work will be achieved while maintaining two-way vehicle traffic on the bridge, shifting traffic to each side as work progresses.

"We understand this is a critical link in the community, which is why we're making these repairs to make sure the bridge operates as reliably as possible," Lake said. "We've done our best to work with the community to minimize the disruption these necessary detours will create."

The annual navigational closure for the Pine River is Dec. 20 to March 31, and Lake said the project was scheduled to largely coincide with that schedule.

Some of the work cannot be done with the bridge in the closed position, and the bridge will need to be locked in the up/open position for 6-hour periods for painting and repair work for 12 consecutive nights in April.

"Based on input received during a public meeting last November with residents, business owners, hospitals, emergency personnel and city representatives, we determined that scheduling these closures for 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. would be the least disruptive," Lake said.

The April closures will require a 67-mile detour on M-66, M-32, U.S. 131 and U.S. 31.

"Locals are certainly aware of the other shorter routes," Lake said. "But we are required to post an official detour using state highways. We know this represents a significant detour, which is why these closures are being scheduled overnight and at this time of year to minimize their impact."

Lake said emergency services personnel are working together to plan for emergency situations that may occur during the closures.

Charlevoix Township fire chief Dan Thorp said in talking with city officials about the closures, he offered stationing five firefighters at a hotel coinciding with those 12 nights.

"Anything on the north side, we're planning to house five people on that side," Thorp said. "The city won't have to worry about putting more people there and we'll take care of the north side."

Thorp also said a fire station is available on the south side and a set of jaws Of Life also will be available on the north side. He's also offered housing an ambulance at the North Township Fire Station as well.

"All the township and the city will be covered," Thorp said. "We've already talked with the East Jordan Fire Department in case of a structure fire and they would come for assistance on the north side. We talked with the Boyne City Fire Department and Resort Bear Creek Fire Department as well."

"I've done most of my homework on it and we have a plan," he added.

Mark Heydlauff, Charlevoix city manager, said between December and April things will be "business as usual."

"April is the time we're focusing on," Heydlauff said. "We've had some conversations with Charlevoix Township and we have a good open dialog that goes along there."

Heydlauff said the biggest point of emphasis from his standpoint is traffic will not come to a halt in December.

"That's not true at all," Heydlauff said.

The bridge work also could affect the annual bridge drop, as Heydlauff said the tentative plan is to have a fake bridge drop in its place.

According to MDOT, the bridge — which was built in 1949 — carries an annual daily traffic of 13,275 vehicles. It is one of 12 moveable bridges on the state highway system in Michigan.

"We rehabilitate each about once every 12 years to keep them operating properly," Lake said. "This bridge had its deck replaced and was painted in 1993, and had electrical and mechanical repairs made in 1996."

Lake said MDOT expects to have lane closures with flag control for four nights in May for the bridge approach work. All work is to be done by May 25, 2017, before the Memorial Day holiday.

New leader joins Manna

(231) 439-9394 - mmukus@petoskeynews.com

Kim Baker, a longtime nonprofit professional who has worked for the American Red Cross and Detroit Institute of Arts, will serve as the new executive director of Manna Food Project.

Baker began his new position on Monday, Oct. 17. He replaces Deb No-blett, Manna's previous executive director who announced her retirement in August.

"Of the more than 40 candidates who applied, a short list was selected for the interview process. Among those, Kim stood out as bringing a rare combination of nonprofit and business experience along with a wide range of skills, including fund development, board and community engagement, and a passion for Manna's mission 'to feed the hungry throughout the North,'" said Tim Dykstra, president of the board of directors for Manna Food Project.

Baker has spent his career in nonprofit work, including four years with the American Red Cross in Southeast and Northern Michigan and ten years at the Detroit Institute of Arts, overseeing membership, individual and corporate giving, and special campaigns. He is also an avid sailor and downhill skier.

Baker is happy to be back in northwest Michigan, where he spent much of his childhood.

"My family has strong ties to this area. My grandfather was the business manager of the Boyne City railroad in the 1920s, and my 95-year-old father attended a one-room schoolhouse in Boyne. Like many, we vacationed here throughout the years. I owe so much to Northern Michigan — it helped shape my life and has always felt like home," Baker said.

"My heart goes out to people in our area who struggle to put food on the table. Often, hard-working families are forced to choose between paying their utility bills or buying nutritious food for their children. It will be part of my job to tell this story. Together, we can help those in crisis and drive hunger out of Northern Michigan."

Originally from Grand Rapids, Baker holds a bachelor's degree in history from Hope College and a Master of Divinity degree from Western Theological Seminary, both in Holland. Baker spent the early part of his career in leadership positions with the Reformed Church in America, including communications, publishing, marketing and distribution.

Manna Food Project was founded in 1987 and currently assists in the distribution of 1.7 million pounds of food product annually. Food is then available to over 44,000 families in need in Antrim, Charlevoix and Emmet counties through 37 partner agencies. Manna also distributes nearly 2,000 backpacks containing nutritious items to help carry at-risk elementary school students through each weekend of the academic year.

velopment. "I don't see the motivation to pass this," Bryan said. "We've heard rumors of development, but nobody is going to build on that property. City residents would never allow it."

But Campbell says the amendment vote is about protecting Charlevoix's prized parks for generations to come.

"We are letting the people decide the future of Mount McSaubia and Lake Michigan Beach," he said. "The easement question gives the people of this community an opportunity to vote if they want the parks to remain in their natural state for generations to come."

"The voters of this city will give our elected body direction over our parks by making this charter amendment," Campbell added.

Bryan acknowledged the charter could use some work to keep the parks more protected, but believes this can be handled by city officials.

"We can protect the parks ourselves through our own charter amendment," Bryan said. "We can handle this at a local level. We do not need a third party making decisions for us about park recreation."

According to paperwork provided by the easement committee, the purposes of this easement are to protect the property's public recreation, natural resource and watershed values; to maintain and enhance biodiversity; to retain quality habitat for native plant and animals, and to maintain and enhance the natural features of the properties.

Little Traverse Conservancy executive director Tom Bailey understood the concerns of current park recreation, saying the conservancy is only about protecting the current natural state of the two parks.

"Our attitude toward this is to make sure the city maintains the ability to make decisions regarding recreation in the parks," Bailey said. "We do not want to get into specific uses of the land. The conservancy would make sure the waterfront, dunes and land are protected."

Charlevoix city voters will decide on Nov. 8, whether to adopt the measure to place Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park under a conservation easement. Supporters of the easement want to assure the property will be perpetually preserved in its predominately natural, scenic, forested, and open space condition. But detractors say the amendment gives too much control to of the city parks away to third-party oversight.

Doug LaBelle, who is supporting Bryan and the vote no initiative, said he has faith in elected officials to make the right choice for the parks. LaBelle also voiced his concerns about restrictions on the property and the fact the Little Traverse Conservancy has not entered into an agreement similar to the proposal on the ballot with other municipalities.

"No municipality has ever turned over an asset like our parks to some third party group to manage," LaBelle said. "That is a red flag to me. We do not need to place restrictions park property."

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

LaBelle also said adding restrictions to any property reduces the value of the land.

"These are city parks and placing more restrictions on these assets is not necessary," he said. "Placing restricted use on the property devalues it."

For more information about the vote, call John Campbell at (231) 547-4429 or Greg Bryan at (231) 499-7608.

the issues and help move Charlevoix forward.

He said he is running because the constituents of Charlevoix's 1st Ward are not accurately being represented on city council.

"Since January the current council persons had to recuse themselves from voting 15 times due to various conflicts of interests," Bergmann said. "I do not have interests that would cause me to not vote on an agenda item. I will take a common sense approach set forth by our city charter to be a strong voice for every resident in our ward on every agenda item."

Janet Kalbfell said she has been in the Charlevoix area for 24 years with a strong community engagement that makes her knowledgeable to represent the 1st Ward.

"My only desire is to see Charlevoix thrive and move forward," Kalbfell said. "I am very open-minded, which means I welcome all residents' suggestions and opinions young and old. I am up to date on all issues and can hit the ground running."

Tom Oleksy said he would govern as a concerned citizen and lifelong Charlevoix resident, homeowner and community member. He said he would be open to residents' ideas and participation in city government, if elected to Charlevoix's 2nd Ward.

"It would be an honor to serve on council and be a voice for all of you in Charlevoix," Oleksy said. "Our biggest challenge would be good jobs to raise a family with in our community. We should look at having an advocate to recruit and help guide the council to solve these issues of jobs and more housing for the worker in our community."

Bill Supernaw said he is running for reelection because he would like to continue to move forward on what he has learned during his first term.

"There has been a lot of turnover of council members in the 2nd Ward and I would like to change that," Supernaw said.

The forum also served as an opportunity for mayoral candidates Shirley Gibson and Luther Kurtz to share their platforms and speak with voters about the issues facing this city.

"I want to be mayor because I want to continue the progress we are making," Kurtz said. "I would like to work on promoting year-round jobs, building a community young people want to raise their families in, and improve the downtown vibrancy for visitors and locals."

Gibson is no stranger to local politics. She has had the honor to serve with three previous mayors and has served multiple terms on Charlevoix City Council since 2001.

"Charlevoix is a beautiful place and as mayor I will support any and all efforts to make Charlevoix an even better place for all," Gibson said. "I will lead an honest council and promote business in our town."

To hear each candidate speak, view the forum video on the Charlevoix Courier Facebook page.

numbers to be higher than planned," Snyder said. "It seems like we're right on track to do all our (2015) bond projects and if we were to spend ($3.3 million), we'd have that extra space."

"I don't think of this as an auxiliary gym," Snyder said. "This is another gym. We need to have bleachers and need to have parents in there. The crosscourt will also make it so much more useable."

Kirinovic suggested the board get out of the plans what they need from a practicality and needs standpoint.

"I think it's important we don't sell ourselves short," Kirinovic said. "This is a facility that's going to be there for many, many years, many decades and I think we need to consider what we want to do within that space."

Kirinovic suggested the board take a $3.3 million concept, let Kendra come up with drawings and then the board bid.

"It might come back at 3.1 or 3.5," Kirinovic said. "What we do at this point is we have a decision to make if we want to accept that or realize we can't do that and start over."

Also at Monday's meeting, the board heard public comments regarding a possible athletic cooperative agreement with St. Mary School for seventh-grade sports in which the board received a petition this week with several community members supporting the co-op.

"I have not received a request from a board member to put this on the agenda for a vote," Joseph said. "We all have received the information about how to forge a cooperative and will further discuss the matter."

Jean Musilek mentioned there are six students currently at St. Mary who are missing out on an opportunity to learn team sports, who are missing out on the benefit of regular exercise and who are not able for the first time this year to play on a team they've been playing on most their lives.

"It's six kids who will not be able to forge bonds with their future classmates," Musilek said. "Six kids who are not able to learn a new sport like volleyball which I know has been very popular, six kids who will not be able to improve on a sport they've been playing for a long time."

"With only six kids at St. Mary, it's not not feasible to support their own sports team," Musilek added. "The MHSAA says we can play, we just need a school to cooperate with us."

St. Mary principal Kathleen Dvoracek supported Musilek's statements to the board and said the athletic cooperative is not about just six kids, it's about St. Mary's future students who'll soon be seventh-graders.

"I think it will be good for our schools," Dvoracek said.

Joe Solomon and John Parish also spoke of their support in the athletic partnership between St. Mary and Charlevoix Middle School.

"Not being able to participate in seventh-grade sports makes it harder for students to transition to public school," Parish said. "Sports is a great chance and opportunity to bond and make special relationships that might last through high school and beyond. Denying the kids the opportunity is hurting the kids."

Also Monday, the Charlevoix Elementary School was awarded the MI HEARTSafe School designation which recognizes schools that are prepared to respond to cardiac emergencies.

The award — which was presented to CES principal Lisa Meyer and Kristie Fichtner, RN, Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital and school nurse for Charlevoix Public Schools — is given out to 105 schools in Michigan through the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services and Education, American Heart Association, Michigan High School Athletic Association and Michigan Alliance for Prevention of Sudden Cardiac Death of the Young. Between 2003 and 2012 in Michigan, there were 2,590 young individuals between 1 and 39 years of age who died of sudden cardiac death. Of those, 214 were between 5 and 19.

"Two of those were in my community," said Dr. Lynn Blennick, who presented the award Monday. "It's a devastating, devastating situation. Of the 105 schools in the state that are MI HEARTSafe certified, Charlevoix now has two."

The Charlevoix Elementary School accreditation with MI HEARTSafe runs through 2018.

Rayder miscues too much to overcome in 28-0 loss to Frankfort

CHARLEVOIX — Beating a 7-0, state-ranked team expecting to make a deep playoff run was never going to be an easy task for the Charlevoix football team. To have a chance of pulling off the upset against Frankfort on Friday, the Rayders needed an elite effort and a mistake-free ballgame.

Unfortunately, Charlevoix only got one of those two things in a 28-0 loss to the visiting Panthers, as four turnovers and several penalties meant that the Rayders' hard work went for naught. "We talk about it all the time, that to beat elite teams, teams the caliber of a Frankfort, you can't hurt yourself," Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi said. "Tonight, we just had a few too many mistakes and being a great team, Frankfort took advantage. "I'm proud of my team's effort; they came out and fought to the final whistle, but we just turned the ball over too much." Charlevoix moved the ball well at points, twice driving inside the Frankfort 30 before coming up short of the end zone on downs. But offensively the Rayders never found a consistent rhythm or the big plays it needed against a tough Frankfort defense, and the turnovers made a difficult task even harder. Charlevoix lost three fumbles, and also threw an interception that was returned by Daymian Tabbert for a Frankfort touchdown in the second quarter that turned a 14-0 game into a runaway victory.

Hybl earns national award for academic, athletic efforts

EVAN SACHLA

ADRIAN — Kaitie Hybl has balanced work in the classroom with time on the softball field at Siena Heights, and her efforts are being noticed.

The 2013 Charlevoix High School graduate was named a National Fast Pitch Coaches Association All-American Scholar Athlete award, given to players who were significant team members and held a grade point average above 3.5 on a 4.0 scale. Hybl fit both of those requirements.

"I guess it's a pretty big award," Hybl said. "I wasn't even aware I was in the running for it, to be honest."

Hybl credits her parents, Robert and Molly Hybl, who have supported her along her academic and athletic journey. The outfielder/catcher commuted from Central Lake to Charlevoix for her four years of high school.

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix volleyball team couldn't bring down Class C power Traverse City St. Francis on Tuesday.

But, with several seniors playing their final home game on Tuesday, the Rayders gave it their best effort, pushing the powerful Glads to four sets and almost forcing a fifth set in a 22-25, 25-

16, 14-25, 26-28 loss. With the Glads leading 27-26 in the fourth set, Elise Stuck and Ellie Louiselle laid down a huge block that fell just out of bounds, giving St. Francis the win but coming within inches of resetting the score. "The girls were geared up for a big night with it being senior night and, having seven really awesome seniors, to celebrate their game and fight in every game they played," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "It was an exciting match and well played by both teams."

"It was also very encouraging to see great play by the Rayder girls."

Stuck was a catalyst offensively for Charlevoix all night, finishing with 19 kills, four blocks and 16 digs, and versatile front-row players Kenzy O'Leary and Becca Moon also

Bollini wins title, Rayders runner-up at LMC Championships

BOYNE FALLS — Charlevoix's Michelle Bollini was sixth in the Lake Michigan Conference last season, behind three returning Traverse City St. Francis runners who were considered the top challengers for this year's girls title.

That fact didn't deter Bollini at all in the Lake Michigan Conference Championships on Tuesday, hosted by Boyne Mountain, as the Rayder junior beat Katelyn Duffing and Emmalyne and Joyana Tarsa of St. Francis to deny all three the conference crown and claim the title for herself.

Bollini was the only female to break 20 minutes on the difficult course, winning in 19:42.5 and beating Duffing by 18 seconds.

"We knew coming in that it was going to be a real challenge for Michelle given the times Katelyn Duffing and the Tarsa sisters have run, but I'm not surprised," Drenth said. "We've felt all along that she belongs up there with those girls, and that she's capable of running on that elite level and doing well thanks to her work ethic."

for the Panthers.

It's the second straight year Frankfort has shut out Charlevoix, and Bindi gave credit to the Panthers for a strong performance.

"On one of the fumbles, (tailback) Malcom (Williams) was carrying the ball high and tight with both hands, fighting for extra yardage like we teach these kids to do, and just had the ball knocked out," Bindi said. "Then, on the interception, (quarterback) Brad (Klinger) made a good read and just got hit from behind as he threw so the pass was off-target."

"When a player misses an assignment or doesn't do what he's supposed to, I'll be mad about it, but when they're doing what we ask of them and it doesn't work out, you just have to give credit to the other team and move on."

Defensively the Rayders put on a solid performance, forcing multiple stops inside the red zone and holding a potent Frankfort attack to three touchdowns.

Charlevoix got strong play up front from its defensive linemen at the point of attack, collapsing holes and forcing Frankfort to bounce several runs outside instead of up the middle as intended.

The Panthers were able to adjust to exploit that aggression in the run game, hitting the Rayders with star tailback Griffin Kelly on counters that went for 65 and 85-yard touchdowns.

Charlevoix also struggled with penalties at times, including two personal fouls on another Frankfort scoring drive that ended in a third touchdown for Kelly from three yards out.

"I thought we did a good job overall up front, and won a few battles," Bindi said. "Credit again to Frankfort, they saw our guys were pursuing aggressively upfield and were able catch us out of position on a couple of counters that led to long scores."

"The effort is great but staying disciplined on every play, not over-pursuing and being ready for plays like that is something we're going to have to continue to work on and get better at."

Klinger led the Rayders in rushing with 92 yards on 16 carries, Jared McLean added 55 yards on eight carries, and Colin Smith added a 16 yard reception in the passing game.

Oliver DeYoung intercepted a pass to lead Charlevoix defensively, Malcom Williams and Colin Davis each chipped in seven tackles, and Klinger and McLean each added six.

The loss is a tough one for Charlevoix (6-2, 2-2 NMFL Leaders), as the Rayders had a shot at a share of its first conference crown since 2000 with a victory over the Panthers.

That said, Charlevoix still has plenty to play for next week when it hosts Mesick for senior night, having already qualified for the MHSAA playoffs and with challenging opponents waiting in the weeks to come.

"Trust me, as disappointed as this team is about tonight, we've got great senior leadership and this squad will be ready to answer the bell next week," Bindi said.

"We've got to be ready to take the energy we played with tonight and practice with that same intensity starting on Monday."

"If we do that, we're going to be fine."

Rayders build experience in first girls golf state final appearance

(231) 439-9343 - jgonsterblum@petoskeynews.com

EAST LANSING — Charlevoix's girls golf team made its first appearance on the state meet stage last Friday and Saturday, competing in the Division 4 final at Forest Akers West Golf Club in East Lansing.

Rayder coach Jennifer Sell's number one goal was to make sure that appearance will be the first of many.

The third-year program took 17th overall in the tournament with rounds of 426 and 444 for a total of 870, with Sell bringing all seven of her varsity golfers and looking to get her young team as much experience competing at a championship level as possible.

"We made sure everyone got a chance to play, which meant rotating in two new golfers for the second day," Sell said. "With only one senior, we're a young team, so we wanted to make sure all of our players got to experience the atmosphere and the pressure of playing in a big event like this."

"Hopefully, next year we'll be able to draw on that experience to get back to the state finals and do even better."

That lone senior, Emily Sabsook, led the Rayders in her final outing, shooting 94 and 103 for a two-day score of 197, and junior Abbey

Scholten was close behind with a 105-108-213.

Rylynn Sladek shot a 108-114-222 for the Rayders as well, while Annie Joy shot a 119 and Olivia Jeakle a 121 on the first day, and Jane Kelly shot a 119 and Maddie Lee a 120 on the second day.

"It was definitely a tough course, and we had to keep our drives very straight to stay out of trouble, which was a challenge at times," Sell said. "Still, I'm very proud of our players for staying in the game mentally and competing throughout both days."

"We got a chance to play a practice round on Thursday, which really helped us figure out our club selection, and prepare us overall."

Sell said the atmosphere was intimidating for a first-time program, but that getting to play in it will be a big asset for Charlevoix moving forward.

"It's definitely not something we've experienced in any meet we've played before," Sell said. "The size of the crowds, the number of players and the level of play were all something new for us, as well as the pressure of competing for a state title."

"Getting a sense of what that's like and learning how to handle it, it can only be a positive for our players heading into next season."

Macomb Lutheran North took home the Division 4 state title, while Maple City Glen Lake's Nichole Cox shot a 150 to beat the field by four strokes and claim her third straight individual Division 4 state title.

Pop Warner Rayders defend home turf with Saturday sweep

JAMES GONSTERBLUM

CHARLEVOIX — In their first appearances at Kipke Field this season, the Charlevoix Pop Warner football squads came away with big wins on Saturday.

The Rayder PeeWees picked up an 18-0 win over East Jordan Red, earning another shutout victory.

Braeden Greensky, Landon Swanson, Troy Nickel, George Sheets and John Paul Culver led a strong defensive effort for Charlevoix, while Culver, Avery Kita and AJ Spiegler each scored a touchdown for the Rayders in the victory.

The JV Rayders earned a 26-6 win over Bellaire behind four touchdowns of 40 yards or more offensively.

Dmitri Bell ran for touchdowns of 60 and 63 yards to lead Charlevoix, and John Sauer caught touchdown passes of 40 and 65 yards from quarterback Max Ostrum as well.

Bell, Max Dixon, Patrick Sterrett, William Kelly, Cole Diss and Isaac Moar all had strong days defensively to help the Rayders improve to 5-1 on the season.

Both squads will be back at Kipke Field this Saturday, with the PeeWee Rayders hosting East Jordan Black at 10 a.m. and the JV Rayders taking on East Jordan at 11:30 a.m.

Emma Wachler (11th, 21:26.0), Isabel Hess (12th, 21:26.5) and Megan Scholten (13th, 21:38.1) all earned all conference honorable mention honors as well for the Rayders, who finished behind T.C. St. Francis in the team standings but edged Harbor Springs, 57-65, for second place.

Emmaline Peterson took 20th (22:11.3), Kaitlin Schwenke took 3rd (22:30.9) and Hannah Solomon took 25th (22:58.7) to round out Charlevoix's top 7.

"We're in a very tough regional, with the two best teams in the state and a very strong Kingsley team," Drenth said. "It's probably going to come down to us and Kingsley again for the final spot, and I'm really happy with the way our squad is training and looking right now, so I think we'll be able to compete."

On the boys side, Harbor Springs held off hard-charging Charlevoix by nine points, 32-41, to bring home the crown, with the Rayders taking second.

Charlevoix put four of its runners in the top 10, including a 2-3 finish from seniors Noah Carson (17:32.0) and Luke Buday (17:34.8) to earn all-conference honors, but it was a huge performance by freshman Ben Lentz that allowed the Rayders to challenge Harbor Springs for the title.

Lentz ran a lifetime best of 18:16 to finish ninth, one spot behind teammate and senior David Ritter (18:05.8), with both earning all-conference honorable mention honors.

"Ben's only a freshman, but he's just kept coming and coming throughout the year," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "To run a lifetime best on a course this tough is huge and it really changes what's possible for this team in the coming weeks."

Ben Peterson took 20th in 19:20.3, Josh Carlson finished 34th (20:01.2) and Braeden Richards took 38th (20:10) as well for the Rayders.

Charlevoix competes in the Northern Michigan Championships hosted by Gaylord this Saturday, and will travel to Benzie Central on Saturday, Oct. 29 for the regional meet looking to send both teams to the state finals for the second straight year.

made their presence felt.

O'Leary finished with 11 kills, 14 assists and 19 digs, while Moon chipped in four kills, eight digs, 22 assists and one block.

Beth Veenstra added seven kills, two aces, one block and eight digs for the Rayders, Elise Louiselle chipped in two kills, three blocks and four assists, and Nichole Hart added two kills, two digs and one block.

Ali Jarema and Julia Doskoch added 12 and nine digs, respectively, to lead the Charlevoix back row.

Charlevoix heads to Leland on Thursday for a tri against the Comets, a state-ranked team in Class D, and McBain for the Rayders' next outing.

and felt the 19-mile drive to Charlevoix was worth it, as the school provided a good educational foundation for her.

"It was irreplaceable," Hybl said. "I had teachers that really cared about what I was learning. I was able to take classes I wouldn't have been able to take in Central Lake. I was able to advance quickly and learn what I was capable of doing. I was tested and pushed further to further my education."

Hybl mentioned Charlevoix's teachers helped prepare her for college and the school helped her find colleges.

Before attending Siena Heights, Hybl attended Alma College before deciding to transfer to Siena Heights in fall 2015. Hybl felt Siena Heights would provide a better environment for her to one day pursue veterinary school and was cheaper.

She arrived in Adrian not knowing anybody, but quickly made her presence known in the classroom and on the field.

Hybl became the Saints' starting catcher. She started 22 of 24 games she played in and had seven hits for the season, including three doubles. Siena Heights finished the season with a 28-24 record.

"We definitely made large leaps and strides to building the program to be better this coming year," Hybl said.

Hybl said there have been up-and-downs on her academic and athletic journey, but she said focusing on the good and having fun are key.

"When you're an athlete collegiately and you're a dedicated student at the same time, it's definitely difficult to manage time," Hybl said. "Time management has been my strength through college so really (it's about) balancing study time and time you can get to your professors and getting to classes and making yourself in the present as much as you can is really important to being successful at both ends of both spectrums."

Hybl has one more season with the Saints and will graduate in May with a major in biology and a minor in chemistry. She has applied to veterinary school at Michigan State and Purdue, and will hear back from the two universities this December.

If Hybl is accepted into vet school, she plans to go through her four years there and do duty as a veterinarian in the Army. She sees herself as happy working as a veterinarian in the Army and wants to serve the country.

"I think it would be a very respectable and profound way to start my veterinary career," Hybl said.

Hybl's love for animals has always been apparent, as she has worked at the Charlevoix Veterinary Clinic for five years and interned at a Kentucky cat hospital and Root and Riddle Equine hospital.

"I've always had a passion for helping animals," Hybl said. "I've had pets my whole life and it's something I've been very passionate about."

Hybl believes the scholar-athlete award will help her resume for vet school and shows she is capable of handling two different aspects at once that occupy large amounts of time, and can be successful at both.

No matter what happens, Hybl will remember this award as a reminder that she is on the right track to chasing her dreams.

"I've work so hard these past four years of college that I'm finally reaching the end and I get this (award) that is a reminder (telling me), 'Hey, good job,'" she said. "You have handled both of these aspects of college well and here's a little piece of paper awarding you for it."

"It seems little but it is a lot."

Traffic stop leads to shooting, criminal charges

STEVE ZUCKER

(231) 439-9346 • szucker@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The 63-year-old father of a man arrested on suspicion of drunken driving in Hayes Township earlier this month has been charged with intent to murder and resisting and obstructing police after authorities said he sped his truck toward deputies, nearly striking them as they took his son into custody.

On Tuesday, Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Teigenhof authorized the charges against Steve A. Martin, of Charlevoix.

According to an affidavit filed in the matter, at approximately 7:35 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21, deputy Nathan Kaminski initiated a traffic stop on a vehicle being driven by Martin's son, Jared Matthew Martin, 32, of Charlevoix on See Road in Hayes Township. Deputy Genna Gauthier later showed up as a back-up officer on the traffic stop.

In the affidavit police said a 16-year-old friend of Jared Martin told officers that he had been helping Jared get his car home because he had a flat tire.

According to the affidavit, the friend told police that when the deputy pulled Jared over, he parked about 50-75 feet away on the shoulder of the road and watched the traffic stop take place.

The witness told police that as the deputies were administering field sobriety tests and otherwise dealing with Jared, Steve Martin arrived at the scene in his truck, a 1998 Chevrolet, which he parked near the scene. According to the affidavit, Jared became angry with the officers, resisted and struggled with Kaminski and Gauthier. Kaminski then used his Taser on Jared, at which time the witness reported that Steve Martin allegedly "floored it" in his truck, drove "really quick" and "almost hit the male officer."

Kaminski fired three times at the vehicle, striking Steve Martin, who stopped the vehicle immediately. According to the eyewitness, the officer fired "in self-defense."

Late Friday, Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider

described Steve Martin's injuries as not life-threatening. Schneider has asked the Michigan State Police to investigate the case.

In the release, Teigenhof said Steve Martin was twice convicted previously of attempted resisting and obstructing police officers, both in the 90th District Court in Charlevoix.

Eric Leister named executive officer for home builders

BY NICOLE SEYMOUR

Special to the Charlevoix Courier

This past June, the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan welcomed Eric Leister to the organization. Leister comes to the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan with an educational degree and background in business management from North Central Michigan College, as well as experience working as director of guest services at Boyne Highlands and serving as an teacher with the Young Americans.

With a healthy background in both nonprofit and for-profit businesses, Leister found his true calling in giving back to Northern Michigan through his time spent at Little Traverse Leadership.

"Within Little Traverse I got a healthy introduction into what Northern Michigan had to offer and from there knew I needed to make a move back to nonprofit work," Leister said.

Drawn in by working with northern businesses and what he calls seeing "the passion of others" during this time, Leister sought out his current position within the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan where he has found a home and role as executive officer.

Currently the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan includes builders, remodelers, tradesmen, suppliers and affiliated businesses in Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Otsego and Emmet counties. As part of Leister's duties, he oversees daily functions of the association and other subcommittees to help achieve the association's primary goal of building membership, promoting professional development, and offering regulatory and legislative support. Within this large facet of duties, Leister is continually looking to find ways to not only promote the area as a place

CHARLEVOIX — Brian Freund and Emily Anderson, owners of That French Place, are traveling to France to celebrate their marriage and to enhance the menu of their French café in Charlevoix.

The business will be closed from Oct. 25 to Nov. 19. They will leave for France on Nov. 1. They are calling it a working honeymoon. The newlyweds will be taking cooking classes in Paris and will visit different parts of the country to bring home some regional French favorites.

"Both Brian and I have been to France separately before," Anderson said. "This time our intention is to try different regional (foods). What's special that I can bring back from this region that we hadn't had before? What is something amazing from this little bakery or restaurant off the beaten path that I can bring back to Charlevoix and share with everybody else."

That French Place style of cooking is inspired from the Brittany Region of France. The couple will spend five days in that region, five days in Paris and five days the Provence Region of France, Freund said.

"We will be immersing ourselves in the food during our stay," Freund. "We will get a good mix of food culture from northern France, central France and southern France. Hopefully we find something special we think our customers will love here."

Last winter Freund and Anderson began cooking dinners for people to pick up and take home. Customers pre-order each dinner and pick them up at a scheduled time for take-out. Freund said the idea of the dinners was to give customers a taste of their favorite French meals.

School committee seeks input on facilities plan

STEVE POLEY

(231) 439-9397 • spoley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent Michael Ritter along with a 15-member facility study committee are seeking input from parents, community members and staff regarding the future of the school's three buildings.

Ritter updated the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education on Monday of the progress the facility study committee has made since forming the group in February.

"We held our first community forum on Oct. 5 and a second one on Oct. 12 and we had approximately 30 individuals," Ritter said. "I have to thank Ben Muladore for his leadership on this, it's a real credit to the committee as a whole and their hard work, thoughtfulness, time and effort.

"Ben Muladore has been our spokesperson and he's been critical as a community member, business member and a young parent," Ritter added.

Ritter said now the committee is trying to seek out as much information as possible from the Charlevoix community and trying to get as many people as possible to fill out an online survey regarding the future of Charlevoix Elementary School, Round Lake Education Center and the Charlevoix Middle/High School.

The online survey may be accessed through the school's homepage at www.rayder.net or at goo.gl/VWd62M.

"I'm sending out information to parents first and I've met with staff in regards to the four options that are proposed by our facilities study team," Ritter said.

Ritter said he also plans on providing the survey information to members of the Rotary Club, Chamber of Commerce, Lions Club, Kiwanis and Elks Lodge for further input.

The first option of the Charlevoix Public Schools facility survey is a remodel of the existing Charlevoix Elementary School with a new gym addition. Total square footage of the project would be 81,983, which would include additional gym space, ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act) improvements to bathrooms and door hardware, energy improvements to windows, doors, lighting and finishes and a new roof.

Option one would also replace the AHU (air handling unit) at the gym including ductwork, computer lab and media center; air conditioning at the entire building, kitchen ventilation system, mechanical controls and lighting fixture replacement.

The second option is an enhanced 88,195-square-foot remodel of the Round Lake Education Center to become an elementary school.

The remodel of Round Lake includes the utilization of the existing gym and the project could be completed while the existing elementary remains

Downtown leaders hire firm to help with re-branding

STEVE FOLEY

(231) 439-9397
sfoley@charlevoixnews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority and Main Street Board of Directors agreed to partner with a5 Branding and Digital, Inc. as their branding/logo design consultant at Monday's meeting at city hall.

The board's branding/logo design sub-committee reviewed five proposals for branding and logo design work and recommended a proposal from a5 Branding & Digital of Chicago.

At Monday's meeting, John Harris, principal of a5, along with Fletcher Martin, creative director, delivered a presentation to the DDA/Main Street board of their work and services across the state of Michigan and Midwest.

Harris mentioned a5 is a branding and digital consultancy which tells client stories in a clear, concise, consistent and compelling manner to get results. They begin by listening, asking questions and understanding community and the competitive landscape.

After showing the DDA/Main Street board samples of various branding and identity work including those from Woodstock, Illinois and Downtown Oak Park (Illinois) and discussing the scope of the Charlevoix work, the board made a motion to proceed with the community branding/logo design process as outlined in a proposal for a fee not to exceed $25,000.

Total fees and expenses for a5 including research, development, brand platform concepts, logos, photography, implementation and evaluation is $25,000. The branding and logo work is scheduled to be implemented by late February.

"I feel a5 is head and shoulders above the rest and I feel the rest of the committee feels that way and this would be a great stepping stone," Charlevoix city manager Mark Heydlauff said. "We need to continue to keep pushing and to make sure people think Charlevoix is always a destination whether it's Apple Fest or anything else we do in the area."

"We need to keep pushing people here and this is part of that continued push that we need to keep having."

Also at Monday's meeting, the board recommended a proposition made by the economic restructuring committee to the planning commission to investigate the possibility of temporary seasonal housing which would comport with zoning ordinances.

The item was an addition to the agenda and a request from the economic restructuring committee which was looking for support of the DDA/Main Street board.

"The issue of housing is certainly timely and critical here," DDA/Main Street board chairman Dan Barron said. "The economic restructuring committee has certainly recognized that and has had numerous discussions or potential initiatives to help address those issues."

"The restructuring committee appointed a sub-committee to bring in front of this board a proposal for support," Barron added. "What they've requested was support of this board to make a proposition to the planning commission for their review and discussion to make sure it would comport with zoning ordinances. Potentially, it could fall with bed and breakfast provisions."

Luther Kurtz of the economic restructuring committee addressed the DDA/Main Street board and said an idea came up in which people who live in Charlevoix could potentially rent out a bedroom in their home.

"It would serve two purposes," Kurtz said. "One it would help people find housing when they come up for the summer and two, it would help some of our homeowners in the city. The goal is to be able to do that."

Heydlauff said a study by the economic restructuring committee found there were more than 64 employees needed just on the Bridge Street corridor over the summer which were unfilled. A big challenge was finding housing for employees.

"This could help in a lot of ways," Heydlauff said. "It's not a silver bullet solution, but it's one opportunity that we have."

The DDA/Main Street board also were given an update of the summer concert series by Maureen Owens, approved the Live Life Local Work Plan and authorized $3,000 for the project and approved a resolution of support for the construction of a non-motorized trail between Acme and Charlevoix.

The Gales of November series scheduled at Charlevoix Library

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Library announced the schedule for their fall lecture series focusing on Great Lakes Shipwrecks. The Gales of November programs will be presented at 6:30 p.m. on three consecutive Tuesday evenings beginning Nov. 1. All programs will be hosted in the community room at the library.

On Nov. 1, two 30-minute programs will be featured. "Tragedy in the Straits: The 50th Anniversary of the Sinking of the Cedarville" leads the programs. On May 7, 1965, the Cedarville was approaching the Mackinac Bridge when out of the dense fog came the bow of the Norwegian freighter, Topdalsfjord. The Cedarville was struck midship. The ship's captain tried to make it to shore, but she rolled over and sank, taking 10 of her crew with her.

Along with underwater footage the program includes accounts of the Cedarville's sinking as told by the survivors and rescuer Peter Hahn of the German Freighter, Weissenburg and musical tribute by Dan Hall. The second program on Nov. 1, "Death and Destruction - Hurricane Hits the Great Lakes" will feature the Great Storm of 1913, with its hurricane force winds. It has been called the most destructive storm ever to strike the Great Lakes. In Lake Huron alone, eight large steel ships were lost with all hands during a 16-hour period.

Join the Out of the Blue Dive Team as they share the history of the storm and their video of many of her victims. The program highlights old historical photographs along with underwater footage of many of these shipwrecks. Jim and Pat Strayer will present both programs.

Ric Mixer, will speak on the "Nordmeer: A Great Lakes Cleanup" on Nov. 8. The sinking of the Nordmeer resulted in a daring helicopter rescue by pilots from Detroit's air station. Mixer shares rare interviews with the pilot and footage from the 1966 storm that broke the vessel as it sat on a reef near Alpena. Includes rare footage of the officers from Nordmeer and salvage film of the fuel aboard.

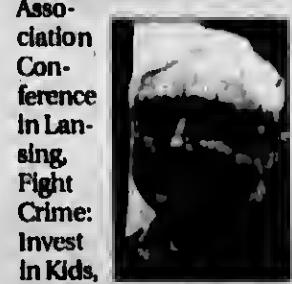

Bruce Lynn, executive director of the Great Lakes Shipwreck Museum will speak on "Tragedy and Discovery off the Shipwreck Coast: The Wreck of the Schooner Nelson" on Tuesday, Nov. 15. The Nelson, a large three masted schooner built in 1866, went down during a northwest gale in May 1899, sinking the vessel over 200 feet to the bottom of Lake Superior. Only one of her crew of 10 survived, Captain Haganey who washed ashore clinging to debris. The wreck was discovered in 2014 by the Shipwreck Society.

For more information about the Shipwreck Series, call (231) 237-7340 or visit them online at www.charlevoixlibrary.org.

gan, honored Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider with a certificate of gratitude, recognizing his many years supporting kids in Michigan and in Charlevoix County.

Fight Crime: Invest in Kids Michigan, celebrating 20 years in 2016, is a statewide crime prevention nonprofit organization. It is led by more than 500 of Michigan's best-known police chiefs, sheriffs, prosecutors and crime survivors.

The organization's director, Jerry Dash said, "Preventing crime at the front end is in each community's best interest and in the best interest of our children. On behalf of the entire membership, I am honored to present this Thank You certificate to Sheriff Schneider for his outstanding support and leadership on behalf of kids and crime prevention."

Schneider has participated in meetings with lawmakers to tout the benefits of investing public dollars in proven programs to help kids succeed in school and beyond. Programs include high-quality preschool, voluntary home visiting, quality after-school programs, and child and family coaching that help kids get on track and stay on track to success and opportunity.

"Sheriff Schneider's work has helped to set an agenda that is both tough and smart on crime," Dash said. "By getting at the front-end through prevention programs, we can nip crime in the bud and reduce the negative consequences at the tail-end that usually result in shattered lives and high costs associated with incarceration."

Becoming a 'local'

As a family, we have been slowly becoming acclimated with the upper Michigan lifestyle, and even with a few years under our belts, we still have a ways to go before we can consider ourselves "locals."

It has been such a positive experience all around to live in Charlevoix. Our neighborhood has a very close knit feel — there is a lot of history to be learned from long-time residents. Everyone who has lived here for a chunk of time pretty much knows or knows of most everyone else. People sometimes talk about things to us as if we have the same awareness they do, but truthfully, we are still in the dark about that slice of Charlevoix life.

Directions in Northern Michigan can be a tricky thing. We do know that GPS is frequently incorrect here, and have been getting more familiar with street names as time has gone on. One thing that many people from the area do is to give directions using landmarks, not streets. Turn right at the yellow house with the big willow tree, and then look for the three big rocks behind the old middle school... something like that, which is great, but unfortunately, we are not altogether familiar with those specific landmarks as of yet, and I guess we need to get old fashioned street name directions until we are.

We are becoming increasingly aware of local activities and seasonal businesses that are die-hard traditions among residents of the area. The variety of festivals and all of the events they offer, we have been told, are must-do activities. Visiting the popular burger stand for lunch and soft serve sundaes is another activity residents have mentioned many times over the summer months, and I admit, we have not yet made it to that establishment. I believe they may have already closed for the season, so this will have to top our list next year.

We truly appreciate all of the beautiful water and wilderness that surrounds us, and still get excited over the deer and turkey and other local critters we spot. I never want my kids to take any of the northern beauty for granted. Every drive along the bay, through downtown, past the rolling hills and now changing colors of the season, this is the part of local life we never want to lose its magic and awe.

We always want to hold on to the sensation we first felt when we drove along Lake Michigan, first walked along Round Lake, first searched the shores for Petoskey stones — that genuine admiration and delight for our new area. That is what we will hold on to — everything else will come with time, and we will come to know the people and places that make this area unique and home.

What, dear neighbors, are the things that are uniquely Northern Michigan to you? Share your thoughts with me on Facebook and Instagram.

Conservancy misconceptions

Editor:
Unfortunately, some recent misconceptions about the conservancy could have been cleared up had those against protecting our parks attended the informational meetings.

The Grand Traverse Conservancy does three things: restricts growth; creates parks and natural areas through fund acquisition; and raises funds to purchase land for natural reserves.

In addition, the Conservancy has programs for education and agriculture as well as encouraging the planting of native trees and shrubs. They also work to eliminate invasive species. Financial support comes from state and federal grants as well as contributions.

A simple majority vote by future city officials could change these lovely areas forever. The initial land bequest did not include using land for a water treatment plant, and yet we have one. I urge you to vote in favor of the conservancy in order to protect these uniquely Charlevoix areas.

Voter intimidation in Charlevoix

Editor:
Voter intimidation is alive and well in Charlevoix. And, I am positive about who is behind such shameful and illegal behavior.

It is disturbing and predatory to have someone who knocks on your door and bullies you into removing a political sign. Or, tries to get you to "switch sides." It is even more disturbing to keep hearing from these victims that they don't want to call the police when this happens. They don't want any more trouble. They don't want anyone mad at them. What's wrong with calling the police in Charlevoix when a crime has been committed?

Voter intimidation is against the law. Asking (threatening, coercing, hounding) you to remove a 'YES on the conservation easement' sign on your property is a crime. The only way the law can help is if you report the crime. Afraid to call 911? Then call the Department of Justice/FBI hotline for voter intimidation on 1 (800) 253-3931. They take voter intimidation seriously.

You deserve to be treated with respect for your beliefs, not accosted and nearly assaulted for expressing your First Amendment rights. Fight the bullies, report the crimes.

Don't take your signs down. Don't be confused. Don't be a victim.

Vote yes on the conservation easement. Get the facts on who really wants to protect our parks. They were gifts to the city and will be kept as intended, not commercially developed or natural resources pilfered.

Supporting our wounded warriors

Every Veterans Day, the nation honors the brave men and women who risk their lives to protect our country and the freedoms we cherish. Social Security honors veterans and active duty members of the military every day by giving them the support they deserve. A vital part of that is administering the Social Security disability program.

For those who return home with injuries, Social Security is a resource they can turn to for disability benefits. Social Security's Wounded Warriors website is at www.socialsecurity.gov/woundedwarriors.

The Wounded Warriors website has answers to many commonly asked questions, and shares other useful information about disability benefits, including how veterans can receive expedited processing of disability claims. Benefits available through Social Security are different from those available from the Department of Veterans Affairs and require a separate application.

The expedited process is available to military service members who become disabled while on active military service on or after Oct. 1, 2001, regardless of where the disability occurs.

Even active duty military who continue to receive pay while in a hospital or on medical leave should consider applying for disability benefits if they're unable to work due to a disabling condition. Active duty status and receipt of military pay doesn't necessarily prevent payment of Social Security disability benefits. Sixty-seven years ago, in June of 1949, the million dollar U.S. 31-Bridge Street Memorial Bridge over the lower channel was completed and opened. The dedication took place a month later toward the end of July.

During those first few years, pedestrians pretty much did as they liked around the opened bridge in a time when safety was not the super important factor it has become today. When the bridge leaves were fully raised, people would walk onto the pavement, lean their bodies against the metal if it wasn't too hot, and peer through the road-bed grating holes at the passing boats. The edge of the drop-off is just a few feet in front of the small child at lower right, but nobody seems to be particularly concerned that a child being there might not be a good idea.

One safety feature at the time was hinged metal barriers that rose about a foot out of the pavement near the long wooden barriers that dropped down, presenting a vertical surface to any vehicle tires that might approach too near the raised bridge. They were mainly used by kids who hooked their shoe heels against the rising metal edge and rose up to hang close to 45 degrees into space, many times with a reprimand from the bridge tender who shouted from the control tower to get off and never do it again, which of course was an invitation to do exactly that.

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital welcomes 2 new physicians

CHARLEVOIX — Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital and Munson Healthcare Boyne Area Health Center are proud to welcome Mark C. Antonishen, MD and Thomas C. Ling, MD, to the growing medical staff.

"The addition of internal medicine practices at both the hospital and at our health center in Boyne City will meet an enormous need in our local communities," said Lyn Jenks, chief executive officer of Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital.

"We are overjoyed to add these well-respected, experienced physicians to our team. Together, Dr. Antonishen and Dr. Ling have more than 55 years of experience providing high quality, compassionate health care for adults in Northern Michigan and we know they will be well-received in their new practices in Charlevoix and Boyne City."

Dr. Mark Antonishen, will be seeing adult patients at Munson Healthcare Boyne Area Health Center beginning Oct. 24. He is known in the area, having spent more than 30 years practicing internal medicine in the Petoskey area.

Ling

Antonishen
Dr. Thomas Ling's practice will be at Munson Healthcare

"Internal medicine physicians are under-represented in Northern Michigan. I am grateful for this new practice opportunity in Boyne City through Munson Healthcare," said Dr. Anton-Charlevoix Hospital, in a newly renovated area of the hospital, beginning Oct. 24. He has more than 25 years of experience in meeting the health care needs of the area's adults. "I am very much looking forward to going back into primary care, after having done inpatient hospital work for the last few years," said Dr. Ling. "One of the things I enjoy most about working in the office is the long term relationships I develop with my patients, and the opportunity to really get to know them as individuals. Charlevoix Hospital has the reputation of being a great place to work. Job satisfaction is extremely high, because they treat their physicians and staff with such respect. I truly believe patients have a better experience in this type of environment."

Both doctors are currently accepting new patients. Appointments can be made for adults over age 18 by calling (231) 582-5314 for Dr. Antonishen's office in Boyne City, or (231) 547-8538 Dr. Ling's office in Charlevoix.

Charlevoix Barbershop owner Don Overton prepares to give a haircut and shave to Brian Rockefeller.

Charlevoix barber makes the cut

CHARLEVOIX — Don Overton, owner of Charlevoix Barbershop, delivers to his male clientele what female counterparts enjoy at their salons: a good cut and a good ear.

An area resident since 2008, Overton moved to Charlevoix when the opportunity for opening Charlevoix's only barber shop presented itself in Oleson's Plaza. The opportunity followed upon the completion of training at a barber school in Lansing last year. He had formerly worked as a projects manager for an audio company there.

"I researched this part of the Northern Michigan area," he said, "and found that there was no barber shop in Charlevoix, (the last one being Harbor Barber an establishment that has been gone for several years). I had a choice of joining another shop elsewhere, but then I met Brad Oleson (owner of the real estate in Oleson's Plaza). This shop had been sitting empty for a while and he believed in the idea of a barber shop which he felt would be a solid business for the plaza. I decided to open my own barbershop here this year."

Overton just finished his first summer being open in Charlevoix. He is gradually building up his business and is enjoying meeting his clientele, many of whom have become regular customers.

What is the difference between barber services and that of a salon? Overton is adept at shaving and specializes in the good old-fashioned short haircut for men and boys.

"Well, I am licensed to use a straight razor, for one thing," he said. "Salons specialize in the areas of hair coloring and styling. I offer good consistent cuts for men although I have cut some boys' hair."

Like hair stylists at the salon, Overton also provides a good ear for listening to what's going on in their lives.

"I have learned so much about Charlevoix from my clients," he said.

Overton just cuts, trims, shaves and listens as he provides a specialty service for men that has been missing for some time.

Business hours are 9 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday, 9 a.m.-1 p.m. on Saturday. Charlevoix Barber Shop is closed on Sundays.

Cost of living increase issued by Social Security

WASHINGTON D.C. — Monthly Social Security and Supplemental Security Income benefits for more than 65 million Americans will increase 0.3 percent in 2017, the Social Security Administration recently announced.

The 0.3 percent cost-of-living adjustment will begin with benefits payable to more than 60 million Social Security beneficiaries in January 2017. Increased payments to more than 8 million SSI beneficiaries will begin on Dec. 30, 2016. The Social Security Act ties the annual COLA to the increase in the Consumer Price Index as determined by the Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Some other adjustments that take effect in January of each year are based on the increase in average wages. Based on that increase, the maximum amount of earnings subject to the Social Security tax (taxable maximum) will increase to $127,200 from $118,500. Of the estimated 173 million workers who will pay Social Security taxes in 2017, about 12 million will pay more because of the increase in the taxable maximum.

Information about Medicare changes for 2017, when announced, will be available at www.Medicare.gov. For some beneficiaries, their Social Security increase may be partially or completely offset by increases in Medicare premiums.

The Social Security Act provides for how the COLA is calculated. To read more, visit www.socialsecurity.gov/cola.

Wednesday health screenings available

However, if you are fasting and LDL and triglyceride reading can also be obtained. Cost for the service is $15. Hemoglobin A1C Levels can also be done for known or borderline diabetics for an additional $10.

Participants will receive all test results at the time of the screening and a Know Your Numbers log to track progress. A registered nurse will adapt health consultation and educational materials to individual results. Wellness Wednesday accepts walk-ins only; no appointment is required.

He attended and graduated East Jordan High School in the class of 1936, but not before being given the nickname "Spike" due to his achievements in athletics, especially basketball being more than six feet tall. Russell spent time at the CCC Camp in Wolverine, and learned to repair trucks at a shop in Gaylord and worked at the East Jordan Canning Factory.

On March 4, 1941, Russell was inducted into the Army; he entered into active service in Saginaw. Following basic training and after attending Quartermaster Auto Inspector and Fireman service schools he departed the United States on Aug. 6, 1942, arriving in Scotland on Aug. 17, 1942, and was assigned to 3497th Ordnance Medium Automotive Maintenance Unit serving as a Master Mechanic and participating in battles and campaigns in North Africa, Italy, Sicily, Naples-Foggia, Northern France and the D-day invasion of Normandy at Utah Beach in the European Theater of Operations.

On July 19, 1945, Russell departed the European Theater of Operations arriving in the U.S. on July 30, 1945. On Aug. 3, 1945, at Indiantown Gap Military Reservation, Pennsylvania, Russell received an honorable discharge having attained the non-commissioned officer rank of Master Sergeant and was awarded the following decorations and citations: The Good Conduct Medal; The American Defense Service Medal; The European African Middle Eastern Service Medal with 4 Bronze Service Stars. Returning home to East Jordan, Russell worked for Baders Standard Service and on July 11, 1964, at his home in East Jordan, he married Irene Stanek. Russell bought the station in 1968 that he operated until retirement in November of 2003. On Aug. 22, 2011, Guy Edwin "Spike" Russell answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Irene, his extended family and his many friends.

Deputy Nathan Kaminski receives Excellence in Service award

CHARLEVOIX - Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan recognized Deputy Nathan Kaminski of the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office for his work in promoting domestic violence victim safety and offender accountability. Kaminski is one of five law enforcement representatives to receive the Excellence in Service award in the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan's five-county service area. The awards are presented in conjunction with National Domestic Violence Awareness Month.

"Deputy Kaminski is a very hardworking, conscientious and thorough officer," said Charlevoix County Prosecutor Allen Telgenhof. "This not only helps victims but also is a key to prosecution and holding offenders responsible."

Kaminski said the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office has specific policies in place and provides extra training on how to handle and investigate domestic violence cases.

"Often times victims have to relive a traumatic incident through the investigative process," he said. "Through our training we try to make that process as painless as possible and get victims the help they need in order to stop the cycle of violence. I'm honored to receive such an award."

Lilhy Mikulski, victim advocate/witness coordinator at the Charlevoix Prosecutor's office said Kaminski does a great job investigating each call he responds to.

"It is clear that his top priority is to keep the citizens of Charlevoix County safe not only during his investigation but after the fact," she said. "He goes above and beyond by listening to the concerns of each victim of the crime and to tries to ensure their safety. I often hear from victims how nice he treated them and that he listened to what they had to say."

Jen Rashleigh-Houser, Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan counselor/advocate said that how officers respond during a domestic abuse call is critical.

"When survivors talk about what happened the night police were called it becomes clear just how important that initial response is on the scene," Rashleigh-Houser said.

"Every time a survivor has mentioned Deputy Kaminski it's been to say how kind he was, how he went out of his way to make sure they felt safe, that this wasn't their fault and that this behavior is not normal. To see that from an officer right there in the middle of things is amazing and it leaves a firm impression on survivors."

Sheriff Don Schneider echoed praise for Kaminski. "If I could clone him, I would. He's professional, he really enjoys doing his job, and he's always looking forward to improving himself and volunteering for collateral duties."

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan counselor/advocates select recipients of the Excellence in Service award because they often work cooperatively with law enforcement on domestic abuse situations in Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. Honorees in other counties are: Deputy Skyler Skrobecki, Antrim County Sheriff's Office; Sergeant Brandon Blumke, Tuscarora Township Police Department; Officer Scott Gosciak, City of Petoskey Department of Public Safety; and Trooper Brock Artfitch, Gaylord Michigan State Police Post.

of building trades growth, but has also moved into the world of education.

"Our local school districts have beautiful facilities that inspire students to go in the direction of the building trades," Leister said. "Through working with educators and students we have been able to start to change the misconception that the trades and building arts aren't profitable."

Earlier this year the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan was on hand as students from the building trades class at Boyne City High School resurrected a wall in the house the students are completing for their school project. Other schools in and around the area are benefitting from these same types of programs and seeing students engaged in the possibility of finding a career path straight out of school.

This is all in part from the work done by the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan and the outreach they provide.

However, classes aren't just for high school students. The organization also holds numerous classes and events that focus on marketing, business management, and other professional development opportunities for those in building trades. It's through these types of opportunities offered that Leister is hoping to continue to grow association memberships and reach out to Charlevoix and other surrounding areas.

"Growing our membership into Charlevoix would allow these businesses the ability to network and market with existing association members to increase top line revenue and broaden their Northern Michigan reach," Leister said.

He also noted how educational classes offered by the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan "will allow employee professional growth and a means in which licenses and accreditation can be met and maintained."

With his eyes to building memberships and broadening the scope of the association's reach in Northern Michigan, Leister is looking forward to continuing working with the business and schools in the area. With new classes and events being added each week.

operational. Also, ADA improvements would be completed to bathrooms and door hardware, energy improvements to windows, doors lighting and finishes and the roof would be addressed.

Plumbing modifications to support an elementary operation would also be included along with some aesthetic enhancements to the existing exterior.

The third option would be construction of a new 82,187-square-foot elementary school at the Round Lake campus.

This option would utilize the existing gym, but would be primarily a new facility with high energy efficiency. The project could also be completed while the existing elementary remains operational.

The fourth option is construction of a new 81,983-square-foot elementary school at the high school complex on Marion Center Road.

The new facility would provide the highest energy efficiency, would consolidate location at the high school and could also be completed while the existing elementary remains operational.

The facility study committee compiled a six step plan regarding the different options which currently has researched facilities, provided tours and engineering studies; developed initial options; selected four options to share with the community and organized community forums at the elementary school and Round Lake.

Now, the committee is looking for community online survey input before presenting a solution to the Board of Education.

"Our facilities team felt all four options were viable and our job was to come up with viable solutions for the next 20 plus years," Ritter said. "That's been our focus all along, a 20-year-plus focus. Our committee will use what we have learned in the past year along with the information we obtain in the surveys to make a decision on what plan of plans to present to the board of education."

Ritter added option one would be the least expensive while option four the most expensive.

"We made a decision as a small committee within the facility study team to keep the dollar amounts out at this stage of the game just so we get what we considered the best ideas," Ritter said. "If we started numbers today, it'd probably be wrong at the end."

"Each option gets more expensive as you go."

Ritter said he'd like to pull the facilities study committee back together soon to go over the survey data.

"This committee has been tremendous to work with and they asked tough questions and pushed each other in appropriate ways," Ritter said. "Ray Kendra (Environment Architects) commented after our first forum of how impressed he was with the committee as a whole."

ing a police officer is a felony with a maximum of two years in prison. Because of his two prior convictions of attempted felonies, Steve Martin is subject to enhanced sentencing if convicted.

Martin will be arraigned in the 90th District Court at a date and time to be determined. He has been denied bond at this point.

As for Jared Martin, he was arrested on Friday on two counts of resisting and obstructing police and a charge of driving while intoxicated. He also faces a habitual offender, second offense sentencing enhancement based on a previous conviction for attempted resisting and obstructing police.

In the affidavit in Jared Martin's case, police said that Kaminski noted a smell of alcohol on Jared during the traffic stop and saw an open container of blackberry brandy on the dashboard of the vehicle. Police said that Martin's breath test reading at the scene showed a blood alcohol content of 0.17 percent.

Jared Martin was released after posting a $20,000 surety bond on Sunday. He was arraigned on the charge Monday. He's slated to face a preliminary examination on the felony charges at 2:30 p.m. on Nov. 8. Attorney Kraag Lieberman has been appointed to represent him.

ing our dinners it was a way to relive our own food experiences in France from previous travels to the country," Freund said. "The food we prepare is our way of sharing that food memory with our customers."

Another goal is to learn how local chefs interact and choose ingredients at local farm markets throughout the regions. Freund and Anderson want to bring that knowledge back to Charlevoix and its Farmers Market to create unique menu items.

"We want to learn about the recipe gems in each region that will go good with our menu and give our customers the experience of French foods in Charlevoix," Anderson said.

The trip to France may have a focus on learning about the variety of foods and tastes throughout the country, but it also is their honeymoon and they will take time to enjoy that too, they said.

"Our hope is to blog about our trip and food experiences, but we are on going on our honeymoon and we plan to enjoy ourselves as newlyweds," Anderson said.

"Working honeymoon is a very loose term," she added.

Rayders move on to playoffs

Charlevoix ends regular season with senior night win over Mesick, 49-0

CHARLEVOIX — Just 15 seconds into his final home game at Kipke Field, Jared McLean knew his senior night would be a memorable one.

The running back took the first play from scrimmage 52 yards to the end zone to give Charlevoix a 6-0 lead over Mesick, and that's all the Rayders would need.

Charlevoix defeated the Bulldogs 49-0 on Friday night to finish the regular season with a 7-2 record heading into the MSHAA playoffs.

"The kids were fired up to play," Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi said. "The kids wanted to make up for last year (losing to Harbor Springs in week nine to miss the playoffs). Being the last home game too, the seniors were going to come to play."

Charlevoix dominated the game from the opening play, as McLean found an easy

CLARE -- Four hours and 26 minutes is how long it takes to travel from Charlevoix to Clare and back.

The Charlevoix boys varsity soccer team knew they were going to make that trek on Tuesday. The Rayders are happy they get to do it again on Thursday.

Charlevoix got a goal from Christian Matye with 19 seconds left in the first half to build momentum en route to a 2-0 victory over Saginaw Swan Valley in the Division 3 regional semifinals at Brookwood Athletic Complex.

The Rayders will play Benzie Central at 7 p.m. Thursday for the regional championship, and the result of that game will be in the Nov. 4 edition of the Courier.

Charlevoix coach Jon Boss called the victory "super exciting."

hole on the outside, leading to a dash for the end zone.

"I saw there was two (Mesick defenders)," McLean said. "I made a little cut on the inside and when I ran, I had another guy (come at me) and they both kind of ran into each other. It was an easy jog to the end zone."

Charlevoix could not convert the two-point conversion, but got the two points back after blocking a Mesick punt in the end zone for a safety. Malcom Williams and McLean added touchdowns from inside the five yard line to give the Rayders a 22-0 lead after the first quarter.

After another Williams touchdown, Cam Alden took a counter 65 yards to the end zone to push the lead to 36-0.

Oliver DeYoung added a five-yard touchdown run as the Rayders led 42-0 at halftime.

McLean scored his third touchdown on a 17-yard rush in the second half. McLean said a 28-0 loss to Frankfort fueled his team's fire this week, but he knew it would be the last home game for Charlevoix's 10 seniors.

"I didn't think I would feel this good," he said. "I knew it would feel good but it definitely feels a lot better than I thought it would."

Mesick scored a touchdown in the third quarter, but it was called back due to offset penalties. Bulldogs coach Josh Crocker will miss the 13 seniors who battled despite a 1-8 record this season.

"It's tough to see some of them go but there's bigger and better things beyond high school and they'll find those things in life, but it's tough to see them go," Crocker said.

Bindi said he was pleased with how his defense swarmed for the ball and how his offense showed its diversity, as four Rayders found the end zone.

"We have some guys that when they touch the ball, they can scoot, same thing with (quarterback Brad Klinger)," Bindi said. "That's why we ran this offense the last few years because we knew what we had coming on up. Any time those guys touch the ball, it's a possibility of going all the way."

The Rayders will make a four hour bus trip to Negaunee for its first round playoff matchup in Division 6. Charlevoix fell in its last playoff appearance to the Miners 21-12 in the 2014 Division 6 pre-districts.

"We played them tough (two years ago)," he said. "Hopefully this year, we'll play them tough again next Friday night and see where we go."

16-14 thriller that should give Charlevoix a boost of confidence heading into the upcoming state tournament.

Missing freshman Elise Stuck, their top offensive performer so far this season, Charlevoix had several players step up to fill the void, splitting with Leland 25-20, 10-25, beating Northport 25-21, 25-15 and losing

After splitting the first two sets, Charlevoix and St. Francis were tied at 14 in the deciding third set before the Rayders scored back-to-back points to take the match.

That earned them a semifinal rematch with Benzie Central, and Charlevoix forced a third set before falling to the Huskies 28-26, 19-25, 7-15 to end the day.

Kenzy O'Leary finished with 20 kills, 29 assists, 29 digs and five aces to lead the Rayders, and Becca Moon chipped in 17 kills, 35 assists and 22 digs.

The Rayders got big days from Beth Veenstra, who finished with 16 kills, four aces, 22 digs and six blocks, Elle Louise, who finished with 12 kills and six blocks, and Raigan Novotny, who finished with 11 kills, three aces and 18 digs, with all three players reaching career highs in kills for a tournament.

Sophomore Caroline Jarema finished with 27 digs and seven aces in her first varsity action for Charlevoix, Julia Doskoch added 27 digs and six aces, and Ali Jarema chipped in 25 digs.

"We are still searching for how to be more energized on the court and consistent, instead of going thru waves of greatness then look like lack of energy, lack of leadership," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said.

Elise Stuck led the Rayders with 16 kills, seven blocks, three aces and 10 digs, while Kenzy O'Leary added eight kills and 14 digs. Becca Moon tallied 18 kills and 15 digs, while Nichole Hart was 19-of-19 from the service line. Julia Doskoch recorded 20 digs.

Though Charlevoix only got six offensive plays in the short game, the Rayders scored touchdowns on three of them, with Aiden Spieg, John Paul Culver and Hudson Vollmer all finding the end zone in the contest.

That opportunity followed on the heels of a 24-0 win over East Jordan Black at Kipte Field the previous day, as the Rayders won their season finale to finish the season 5-2.

Quarterback Troy Nickel ran for a touchdown and also threw two touchdown passes to Vollmer to lead Charlevoix, and Spieg chipped in a rushing touchdown as well.

Landon Swanson led the Rayders defensively, with Culver, Nickel and Jevon Weizel making notable contributions to the shutout as well.

The Charlevoix JV squad also wrapped up their season with a 12-0 win over East Jordan on Saturday at Kipte Field, finishing 6-1 overall.

Scoreless at the half,

Charlevoix quarterback Max Ostrum got the Rayders on the board with a 50 yard touchdown pass to John Sauer, and Dmitri Bell sealed the victory with a five yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter, running behind guards Jake Claffin and Jack Herzog.

On defense, Sauer had an interception for the Rayders, Ostrum and William Kelly each added two sacks, and Will Glass, Max Dixon, Patrick Sterrett, Claffin and Herzog all stood out as well for the Rayders to help finish off the shutout.

Milestones for Bollini, Buday highlight Northern Michigan Championships

GAYLORD — Charlevoix saw two runners hit important career milestones on Saturday as the Rayders excelled at the Northern Michigan Championships hosted by Gaylord at the Michaway Pines Golf Club.

Junior Michelle Bollini achieved one of her major season goals on the way to a runner-up finish for the Charlevoix girls in the race, finishing in 18:58 to break 19 minutes for the first time in her career.

Bollini's time makes her the 14th fastest girl in Division 3 to date this year, per athletic.net, as the Rayders head into regionals this weekend.

Charlevoix senior Luke Buday also had an important career first on Saturday, breaking 17 minutes for the first time to finish 10th overall (16:57) in the boys race.

The two runners led their respective teams as both Charlevoix squads earned top seven finishes in a meet that included all the Big North schools and D2 power Pontiac Notre Dame Prep.

Charlevoix's boys finished sixth overall, four points behind fifth place Traverse City Central, as the Rayders got top 30 finishes from David Ritter (18th, 17:12) and Noah Carson (21st, 17:21) as well.

Freshman Ben Lentz finished 44th (17:53) and Ben Peterson took 61st (18:10) as well for Charlevoix.

Joshua Carlson (107th, 19:06) and Braeden Richards (117th, 19:17) rounded the Rayder boys squad.

On the girls side, Charlevoix took seventh with 193 points, as freshman Emma Wachler (25th, 20:03) also finished in the top 30 with a big personal best on the day.

Isabel Hess took 52nd (21:18), Emmaline Petersen took 53rd (21:19) and Katie Mousseau took 62nd (21:41) as well for the Rayders.

Kaitlin Schwenke (64th, 21:44) and Hannah Solomon (71st, 21:56) also finished strong for the Rayders at the meet.

Charlevoix travels this Saturday to Benzie Central for a Division 3 regional meet, with both teams in contention for a state finals spot.

The Rayder boys are projected to finish second and claim one of the three state qualifying berths, while the Rayder girls will be in a tough fight with Kingsley for the third and final state qualifying spot.

the nerves got to our guys a little bit," Boss said. "After that, we settled down a little bit and then we started to pick it up and play our game."

It was an even game throughout most of the first half, with Charlevoix goalkeeper Jacob Harrod and the Vikings' Joshua Bielby each converting several save opportunities.

With the scoreboard on the verge of reading zeros at halftime, the Rayders' Kevin Pearl inbounded the ball from the corner and the ball went off Nick Bradley. Matye got the ball and found the back of the net to give the Rayders the 1-0 lead at halftime.

Boss called Matye's goal a momentum-builder for the final 40 minutes of play.

"Our guys just really built off that coming into the second half and we didn't let off the gas," Boss said. "We just kept going, kept pushing and had a lot of opportunities. We were able to take control of the game."

As for the goal itself, it started with Pearl and ended with Matye, a familiar connection for Rayders fans this year. Boss is happy the duo are finding their rhythm deep into the playoff run. ("Pearl and Matye), they're the leaders of this team," Boss said. "They lead by example every day and in our games they're just the mainstays. They're a solid combination and they're great out on the field."

The Rayders added an insurance goal in the second half. Danny Nesburg dribbled the ball up the field and found Graham Kroon, who scored with 36:06 left in the game to pad the Rayders lead 2-0.

"That was Danny Nesburg stepping up from the defensive end and making a play happen," Boss said. "The last few weeks, Graham has really stepped it up. His intensity level is just incredible, and the guys just build off that. The goals he's scored, Danny and Graham both, the goals they've scored in the last few weeks have been a huge step and a huge direction from our team."

Boss wanted to maintain a conservative approach defensively the remainder of the second half. The Rayders held off the Vikings to move on to Thursday's regional final.

"A 2-0 lead is a very difficult lead to have just because you run the risk of your guys kind of setting back a little bit and becoming a little bit lazy just because they're feeling they're up 2-0," Boss said. "We did a good job of not letting that happen and keeping the intensity level up high the entire time."

As for the slow start, Boss said this is a new experience for his players, and they are learning each game.

"Hopefully, as we're getting further and further and deeper and deeper into the tournament, hopefully we're not going to have the opportunity necessarily to have that downtime," Boss said. "We've got to make sure we're coming out strong from here on, right off the get-go from the first whistle."

Charlevoix 4,
Kalkaska 0

ELK RAPIDS — The Rayders advanced to regional play with a 4-0 victory over Kalkaska in the district final last Friday at Elk Rapids.

Senior Graham Kroon struck early on an unassisted goal 14 minutes into the game to give the Rayders a 1-0 edge over Kalkaska at the half.

"Credit to Kalkaska, they really challenged us and made it tough for us to get what we wanted," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "We were a little loose offensively to start, taking long-range shots that weren't going in, and we talked about passing more and getting the ball closer to the net at halftime."

That adjustment worked out well for Charlevoix, as the Rayders scored three times in the second half.

Senior Christian Matye scored, assisted by Kroon, early in the second half to add an insurance goal.

Kroon then scored again, assisted by Kevin Pearl, and the senior returned the favor by assisting Pearl for the final goal of the game.

"Our passing was very good in this game, and we were playing the way we wanted," Boss said. "That allowed us to control possession and control the tempo, and to break down a tough Kalkaska defense and create scoring chances."

Jacob Harrod earned the shutout in net for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix 5, Elk Rapids 3 (OT)

ELK RAPIDS — With

three minutes to play and the Rayders trailing host Elk Rapids 3-2 in a district semifinal clash, it looked like the dream of the Charlevoix boys soccer team's 14 seniors might come to an abrupt end.

But the Rayders refused to quit, putting on intense pressure, and after a handball in the box gave Charlevoix a penalty kick, Christian Matye buried his attempt for a tying goal that sent the game to overtime.

Fresh off the huge momentum shift, Charlevoix added two more goals in the overtime to advance to Friday's district final, with Kevin Pearl heading in a free kick from Blaise Snabes for the game-winner in the first OT and Snabes scoring on a free kick of his own in the second OT to make the final 5-3 in the Rayders' favor.

Noah Carson opened the scoring for Charlevoix with the first half's only goal on a penalty kick, and Snabes assisted Danny Nesburg for another Rayder goal in the second half.

Athletic cooperative? St. Mary, Charlevoix schools look at possibility of teaming up

STEVE FOLEY

(231) 439-9397 - sfoley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — It's been a hot topic since August, and on Monday both the Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education and St. Mary School hope to come up with some type of resolution.

St. Mary School in Charlevoix applied for and received membership with the Michigan High School Athletic Association and seeks a school to partner with for a seventh-grade athletic cooperative agreement.

The topic of a cooperative agreement was brought up during public comments by St. Mary faculty, staff and parents at the last Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education meeting on Oct. 17 after a petition in support of the cooperative agreement by more than 100 community members was sent to school board president Dick Joseph.

'I plan to go to this meeting with an open mind and listen to what people have to say.'

Dick Joseph

'We just need to know one way or another.'

Kathleen Dvoracek

No action was taken or discussed among school board members regarding the cooperative agreement at the meeting, however Joseph said the topic will be on the agenda for the next school board meeting set for 5 p.m. Monday, Nov. 7, at the Charlevoix Middle/High School library.

"I plan to go to this meeting with an open mind and listen to what people have to say and what other board members have to say and then make my vote," Joseph said. "I think all the board members will do that, I think they'll have an open mind and I think they feel strongly with this competitlon issue.

"I'd like there to be as many people possible at the meeting," Joseph added. "I'm going into this with a very open mind and I want to listen and hear what people have to say. I don't have my mind made up by any stretch. Hopefully, it's time to make a decision and that should put it to rest."

In August, Joseph, Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent Mike Rittter and St. Mary School principal Kathleen Dvoracek met regarding the cooperative agreement. Joseph said at that time, the board was not interested in participating.

"We left that meeting thinking it was resolved," Joseph said. "At our next school board meeting, three gentlemen came and raised the issue again. We didn't take any action."

Joseph said he didn't want the board to take action on the matter until they had all their ducks in a row, which included financial implications.

"We still don't know that (financial) number yet," Joseph said. "In response to that petition, I put the item on the agenda out of respect of the more than 100 people who pay taxes in our district and who've

New Main Street director starts job Nov. 28

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 - lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Lindsey Dotson, newly hired executive director for Main Street Charlevoix, is excited to start work in Northern Michigan, where her family originated.

Her great-grandparents owned a farm in the Susan Lake area and her grandfather had cabins near the Green Sky Hill Church. As a child, Dotson would spend her summers between Traverse City and Charlevoix with family enjoying all the area had to offer. The beauty of Northern Michigan left a lasting impression, she said.

"Though I did not grow up here, my family over the summers stayed in the area," Dotson said. "My time in Northern Michigan left an underlying urge to live in the area."

Dotson, 32, begins her duties on Nov. 28. She has a master's degree in historic preservation and brings with her working experience as director of the Wayne Main Street program along with a great passion for preservation.

"I really love the whole historic preservation side, so really I'm just looking to improve on the accomplishments of the Main Street program in Charlevoix and work off of what's already been done," Dotson said.

Dotson was hired to replace Annie Doyle, who resigned in May. About 15 applications for the position were submitted and Mark Heydlauff, Charlevoix City Manager, said interviews were conducted that led stakeholders to focus on

Fox Charlevoix & Charlevoix Elementary
Ride & Drive Fundraiser

Thank you to those who participated in the Ride & Drive Fundraiser - Sponsored by Fox Charlevoix.

Each year, Fox Charlevoix and Charlevoix Elementary PTO team up to raise money to fund recent needs such as field trips, new books and computer programs, subscriptions for educational resources, swimming lessons, classroom supplies, reading programs, playground supplies, foreign language teaching, and author visits, to name a few.

So how does it work? Fox Charlevoix brought seven vehicles to the elementary school and agreed to donate ten dollars to the PTO for every person that test drove a vehicle. As an added bonus, Fox offered an extra $500 if there were over 200 test drives. And thanks to those who showed up to support - The goal was exceeded! We had 204 test drives and $2,540 was given to fund the PTO's efforts.

This is one of our favorite fundraisers of the year! It was a beautiful day and we hope you all had as much fun as we did! - David Pahl (GM, Fox)

Group attempts to explain City Charter amendment vote on Nov. 8

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-4558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Residents of Charlevoix are asked on the Nov. 8 ballot to consider another issue beyond selecting their choices for national, state and local candidates. That is whether or not to amend the City Charter for a conservation easement for Lake Michigan Beach Park and the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area or leave it as it reads at present.

On Oct. 27, proponents of the conservation easement hosted an informational meeting at the Charlevoix Public Library to explain to residents what they are voting on.

Second ward resident Tony Duerr opened the meeting with a brief presentation about the proposal on the ballot.

"The purpose of this meeting is to relay information, dispel rumors and maybe persuade you to support the ballot question and if not maybe you will leave a little better informed than when you came in tonight," Duerr said.

What it says:
Shall Article II, Section 2.16 (h) of the Charlevoix City Charter be amended to require the City to grant Little Traverse

Members of the community fill the Charlevoix Public Library community rooms to hear about the upcoming City Charter Amendment vote on Nov. 8.

LONNIE ALLEN/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Conservancy conservation easements ensuring that Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park will always be managed to protect the environmental and outdoor recreational values of these areas, but also allow current uses and structures in portions of Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park, including presently existing uses and structures in use as the water treatment plant, parking areas, ski areas, skating pond and other uses in existence as of November 8, 2016?

What it means:

Opponents say the argument the parks could be developed is an unknown scenario and the residents of Charlevoix lose control of the park property. Many of them believe elected leaders should make the decision about protections and not the electorate.

"When I was on council on six of us sitting council members did not touch this," said Jill Picha, who is against the ballot proposal. "Our parks are perfectly safe the same as they have been."

Proponents for the measure say there is nothing in the City Charter that protects the open space and environmental values of the property that everyone agrees should remain the same.

"As the Charter stands now, council could authorize placing municipal buildings on the property, sell the timber, allow ATVs and snowmobiles and even mine the land," Duerr said.

Little Traverse Conservancy executive director Tom Bailey was on hand to answer questions from the audience. He often explained his organization has nothing to do with this ballot question. It is up to the people to decide what they want done with the parks.

"Not to sound like a broken record, but this is really up to the voters," Bailey said. "We are not trying to tell you whether you should or shouldn't we are just trying to explain to you what our part would be if the people do pass the measure."

KEN SCOTT

Ken Scott has worked on Law & Order SVU on NBC, Royal Pains on the USA Networks as well as The Discovery Channel. Before returning to comedy full time Ken Scott spent twenty-five years in management for a fortune 100 company, then one day he snapped and decided comedy was the way to go. Ken was born and raised in the mid-west and has had the opportunity to travel, and make jokes about the world in general. Ken is an older guy with a fresh perspective on marriage, divorce, children, politics and current events. There is no subject he can't talk about... or that he won't talk about.

DUSTIN COLE

Comedy's party boy navigates the waters of marriage and fatherhood while still trying to be "cool"! A regional winner of the Midwest Comedy Challenge in 2012 and 2014, Dustin has performed in 25 states over the past two weeks. The voice of the 30 something generation that refuses to grow up, his material consists of dating in the 21st century, day jobs, and back home... Yes we said, back home! Voters make the choice

On Nov. 8, Charlevoix voters will make the choice whether to amend the City Charter to add protections to Lake Michigan Beach Park and the Mount McSaubia Recreation Area.

It is a simple "Yes" or "No" vote about a conservation easement for the parks.

But when has anything been simple in Charlevoix?

In February, the City Council approved a resolution to place this measure on the ballot because some sitting council members believed residents should determine how to protect these parks.

"We are elected to represent our constituents, but there are some issues that come before city council that should be referred back to the citizens of this city so they can vote on it personally," said Shirley Gibson in February. "This is a good example where the council should not make a decision for the people of Charlevoix."

Council member Leon Perron also believed the people of Charlevoix should make the final decision.

"I hope the people of our city get to vote on this," Perron said during that same February meeting. "...the people should get the final say."

Those remarks sounded very reasonable. But at the following city council meeting, the motion was reconsidered and the resolution was rescinded by councilmen Bill Supernaw, Shane Cole and Aaron Hagen.

Why? Did this current council and previous ones believe residents could not decide this measure themselves?

At a recent informational meeting about the easement vote, Jill Picha said she was on council when "all six members left this alone."

"They left it alone because the city has taken care of (the parks)," Picha said. "I don't know why we are making this an issue and I don't know why we are giving people the choice for a conservancy. I think there is something underlying in this."

I believe that type of mentality caused the petition that was presented to registered voters this summer, which received the required amount of signatures to place the charter amendment on the ballot.

I do not understand why the people against the measure are mad that the petition circumvented city council. This is a legitimate ballot measure.

Let the people of this city decide what they want to do with the parks. Not the city council.

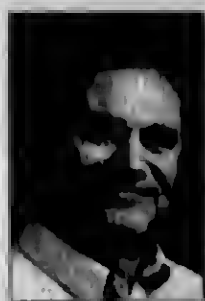

There is information available for either side to learn about what this vote means. Individuals are on social media and in the press talking about the different points of view. The idea that someone is trying to quietly sneak something through is absurd.

As a city resident, I have faith in the voters of Charlevoix to be able to understand the charter amendment proposed on the ballot. I think that voters can make up their minds on whether this is good or bad.

I am not taking it upon myself to tell people how to vote. I don't presume that I am wiser than the voters and must instruct them in the voting booth. That's a disservice to the process and, frankly, an insult to the residents of the city of Charlevoix.

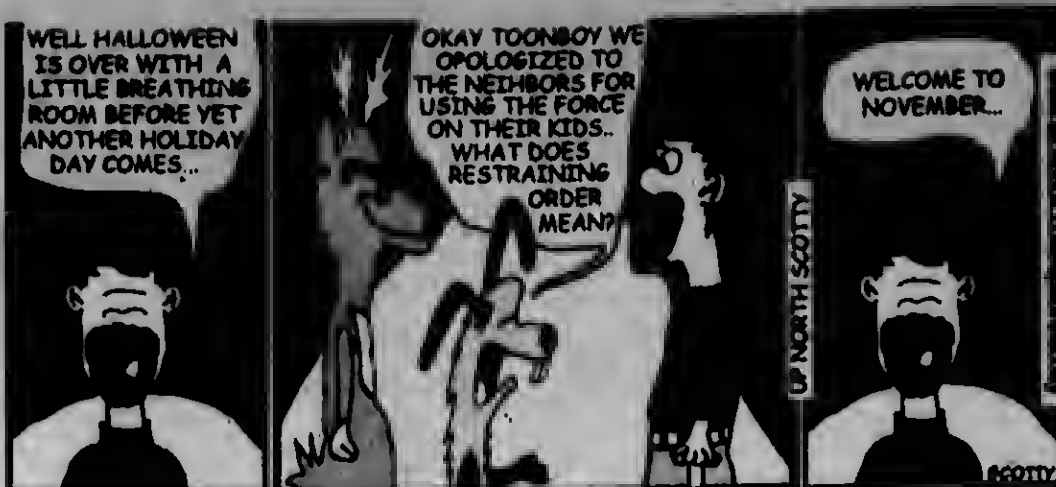

The voters, not the politicians, are ultimately in charge of changing Charlevoix's city charter. I simply ask that you forget the rhetoric, study this amendment and then make up your own minds.

LETTERS to the editor

Check the facts

Editor:

Hayes Township is in the middle of a very contentious election. During this election cycle there has been a lot of misinformation disseminated to voters. At least one candidate is going door to door telling voters that the current Board of Trustees has spent millage road money on Park Camp Sea-Gull.

I can state unequivocally that he is incorrect. He may not understand the laws that the board must comply with or it may be that he is simply repeating misinformation told to him by someone else. But it is still the wrong information. The Hayes Township Board of Trustees has never spent millage road money on anything but township roads.

In fact, it is illegal to spend millage money for anything other than for what the millage was approved. Hayes Township has just completed the regularly scheduled audit and if the board had spent any road money on anything but roads, the auditor would have caught it and reported it to the state. The state would then step in and take legal action. Copies of the audit are available for review at the Hayes Township hall office or on line at treas.secure.state.mi.us/LAFDocSearch/.

Voters need to please, please fact check before believing such a preposterous accusation.

Gasoline price gouging

Editor:

Yesterday, Oct. 20, my wife and I were in Flint for the day. We bought gas for $1.88, a fairly common price for gas there.

Gas up here, the Charlevoix area, is $2.39, a 51-cent difference.

That's absurd. It's price gouging. It's taking advantage of a populace in Northern Michigan that is largely not as well-to-do as those living in the southern reaches of the state.

The people up here spend a lot of time and gas travelling to stores, the grocery, to work, often not very close by. The prices charged up here for gas have to be horrendous. The gas station owners seem not to particularly care as long as they get paid the price without complaint.

The old story was that it cost more shipping the gas up here, a remote area. Well, let me tell you, a few years ago we took a road trip out west. The cheapest gas was in Bozeman, Montana. You can't get much more remote than Bozeman. The most expensive gas was right here, in Charlevoix.

The owners seem to be heartless regarding the needs of the local population.

Dr. Marshall Cossman Charlevoix

A no vote

Editor:

The citizens of Charlevoix currently have 100 percent control over city parks, including Lake Michigan Beach and Mount McSaubia. Fifty-one percent of the citizens would have to vote in support for the properties to be sold or developed. With more focus than ever being put on the value of public spaces and protecting the environment today, it's hard to imagine anybody supporting the sale of these assets, let alone 51 percent.

City parks will only become more valuable in future generations who are being raised to be more environmentally responsible and to be better stewards of public property than past generations. I also think it's unrealistic to believe our city council would ever allow timber harvests, RV parks, off-road vehicle trails, or some of the other ideas that are in the literature promoting the conservation easement.

The proposed Charter Amendment that grants a conservation easement to the Little Traverse Conservancy is a permanent decision that will run with the properties forever. It can never be reversed. I look at it similarly to putting a deed restriction on your property. You still own the property, but you don't have complete control. From personal experience, trying to reverse deed restrictions is almost impossible.

It's unfortunate that those behind the Charter Amendment chose a drastic and controversial solution, such as turning over our parks to a third party. Other protections could have been explored, that the entire community would support.

There are plenty of issues in our country right now that divide us. The last thing our community needs is a local controversial issue that pits us against each other. Please keep this in mind when voting for our local elected leaders on Nov. 8, and please vote no for the Charter Amendment. Keep the citizens of Charlevoix in control of our parks.

LOOKING BACK...

Anyone familiar with Charlevoix's history might think the text on this photo is a gross misprint. Camp Charlevoix, a prestigious boys camp that was a major part of the Charlevoix summer scene for 45 years, consisted mainly of one-story log cabins on the southeast shore of Oyster Bay across from Pine Point. But the camp began in Ironton in 1927. It was founded by Louis Reimann, a director of religious activities at the University of Michigan. He purchased the cottages that had made up Ironton's Sweet Briar Resort. That resort had been established by the sisters of R. N. Cherrie of Chicago who had built the huge iron smelter in Ironton that gave the town its name. But went out of business in the 1890s. In its almost two-decade heyday, the iron company made Ironton the largest settlement in Charlevoix County and a true company town. Every facet of its employees' lives was dependent on the fortunes of the smelter's iron production. When Cherrie closed down virtually without warning amidst rumors of financial shenanigans, the cause never fully revealed, his work force was left in a stunned, precarious position immediately. All at once, Ironton's population started to dissipate, most having to abandon their treasured houses. Several of these were lifted and moved south to East Jordan; a row of them became the popular resort. Then along came Mr. Reimann, who ran his camp in the Ironton cottages for three summers until, spurred by increasing demand for his venture even with the advent of the Great Depression, bought land north across Lake Charlevoix, began building his log structures, and moved into his new facilities in 1930.

At its peak several years later, Camp Charlevoix was said to be one of the top three boys camps of its kind in the world, attracting campers from as far away as Paris and Barcelona. It closed in 1971.

COMMUNITY

Local humanitarians to receive Tribute awards

PETOSKEY—Charlevoix resident to be honored for work with women and children without homes by Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan.

Ginger Stevens, Joppa House and Third Day Fellowship will receive the Advocate Award and celebrate with a five additional community members during the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan Tribute Awards reception 5:30-7:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 10, at Stafford's Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

Ginger Stevens saw people in need of food and shelter in Charlevoix County and envisioned a way to reach those she saw slipping through the cracks of society. The nondenominational, ecumenical ministry she opened, Third Day Fellowship, is a drop-in center with a twice-weekly food pantry, free Wi-Fi used regularly by students after school, voluntary chapel services and a staff of volunteers willing to lend a helping hand or understanding ear.

Stevens became aware of women and children in a state of chronic homelessness, staying where they could for as long as they could until having to move with little to no advance notice. Stevens rallied the community around her vision for Joppa House, transitional housing for women and children who are homeless or facing homelessness. An old convent was donated and renovated into a modern home for women and children. Further, curriculum was written to provide a weekly class to help the women learn life skills.

Stevens has created a legacy of helping women and children, who were once nearly invisible in Charlevoix County, experience love and understand their value.

Other Honorees include:

— Paula Musilek of Harbor Hall will receive the Business and Professions Award.

Musilek has helped female clients dealing with substance use disorders for the past 15 years as a lead member of the Harbor Hall outpatient services clinical team. Those who know Musilek describe her as passionately driven in her dedication to serving women as they heal from their addictions, as well as hard-working, dedicated, professional and kind.

— Lisa Blanchard, civic-minded community leader, will receive the Community Service Award.

Blanchard is known as a passionate advocate, loyal friend, community-mindful volunteer and lifelong learner through her decades-long involvement with dozens of nonprofits and organizations.

— Steve Van Dam, Van Dam Custom Boats, will receive the Man of Action Award.

Steve Van Dam is a father, grandfather, husband, business owner and a pioneer of epoxy and wood boat building in North America. Van Dam is also a community leader and man of action.

'Live from Charlevoix'

New fall event to promote area talent and businesses

CHARLEVOIX — Organizers announced a new downtown program for Charlevoix. Live from Charlevoix, a performing arts venue, will make its debut at 8 p.m. on Saturday, Nov. 12, at the Charlevoix Cinema.

Live from Charlevoix is a nonprofit organization whose focus is to promote the local area and its businesses through a variety of activities. Each month, Live from Charlevoix will present a different variety of musician or performing artist at the Charlevoix Cinema, culminating in a kick-off to the summer at East Park over Memorial Day weekend.

The inaugural show will feature comedians, Ken Scott, Dustin Cole and headliner, Jason Douglas.

Scott has worked on several well-known TV shows as well as in management for a Fortune 100 company. Deciding comedy was the way to go, Scott presents a perspective on marriage, children, politics and current events. Cole was a regional winner of the Midwest Comedy Challenge in 2012 and 2014 and has performed in 25 states over the past two years. Douglas has been an opening act for Dennis Miller, Michael Buble, the Beach Boys, as well as being on Sirius Radio and ESPN's College Bowl Day, to mention a few of his credits.

Live from Charlevoix is the brainchild of Tim Fore, local area businessman, who also developed Charlevoix's Shadowfest weekend about three years ago. Fore presented the idea to the Main Street Promotions Committee as a new venue designed to make Charlevoix a vibrant go-to destination during the off-season to benefit the entire community.

The Main Street Committee welcomed the idea and successfully encouraged downtown businesses, restaurants and hotels to get involved with the program.

In conjunction with the debut of Live from Charlevoix, the Charlevoix Fall Restaurant Week will begin. A night on the town can feature dinner and a live stage performance at the Charlevoix Cinema.

Complimentary appetizers and a full cash bar will be available at every event. For more information, visit livefromcharlevoix.com.

CHARLEVOIX — If you need help loading ice-melting salt in your vehicle be sure to make your product purchase Sunday at Charlevoix Ace Hardware.

Members of the Charlevoix Township Fire Department will donate manpower to help load winter salt bags at the Charlevoix Ace Hardware on from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. on Nov. 6, to help raise money for the department.

The township fire department has been building these community partnerships over the years to help maintain a fiscally responsible department, said Lt. Corey Wells.

"We are very fortunate to have a board of trustees that supports our needs financially," Wells said. "But it is these partnerships, like the one we have with Ace Hardware, that helps our efforts to remain fiscally responsible."

In 2015, the salt sale proceeds went toward the township fire department's GATOR off road rescue and fire control vehicle.

The sisters' after acquiring business degrees then spending several years honing their individual skill sets before joining forces to create their consulting firm and website, recently pooled resources to organize and create enough material to do a TED talk.

This event will be aired this Saturday, Nov. 5 at the Jane Pickens Theater in Newport, Rhode Island.

"How To Succeed When You Are Underestimated" shines a light on the dangers of dismissing others at face value, and how becoming your own champion will lead to triumph in business and in life.

"Everyone has their own story," Kate said. "We have collected the stories of people who have succeeded despite being deterred."

The talk will have generic implications for both men and women, but will particularly speak to women.

"Our talk will be about how a lot of us grew up, experimenting and trying to do our best but were often underestimated in the workplace," Amanda said. "What underestimated means is to think of someone as lower in ability, value or influence than they are."

TEDX is a privately run program licensed by the TED (Technology, Education and Design) Global community nonprofit organization which is dedicated to getting innovative ideas out there into the community and across the nation. The TED motto is "Ideas worth Spreading."

TED talks are streamed live, in more than 100 languages with subtitles, and are accessed free online. They are influential videos from expert speakers on education, business, science, technology and creativity.

The girls are the daughters of Alan and Chris Leese of Charlevoix. Chris, who local shoppers and vendors will remember as the energetic and innovative manager of the Charlevoix Farmer's market this season, is proud and amazed by Kate and Amanda, who apparently have no less passion for their entrepreneurial callings than she and the women who came before them in their lives.

The Leese sisters come from a long line of strong women, on both sides of their family, according to Chris and her daughters.

They claim a grandmother and great-grandmother who were the proverbial "Rosie the Riveters" during World War II, when women worked in factories making munitions and war supplies, often replacing men, as their part in the war effort.

"About four years ago, we were having a sister night and watching a movie about Margaret Thatcher," Kate said. "It led us to conceive of the idea to start our own company and eventually do a TED talk about what we have learned in the workplace as women."

The Leese sisters' combined resumes are impressive to say the least.

Kate was previously the Emergency Management Coordinator for the fourth largest combination gas and electric utility in the U.S., and is frequently invited to speak on emergency operations, change management, and business resilience topics throughout the country. She holds an MBA and MPH focused on Emergency Management, and a B.S. in Biotechnology.

Amanda has directed international maritime programs in more than 40 countries.

She's accumulated more than 100,000 sea miles as the youngest U.S. Coast Guard licensed captain. After transitioning to dry land, Amanda focused on improving business strategy and growth in the security and risk management industries, most recently with a Fortune 10 company in Washington D.C.

She holds a MBA, a B.S. in Biology & Psychology, and a 200-Ton Maritime and Coast Guard Agency Captain's License.

Dotson for the position.

"She stood apart from other applicants because of her previous experience as a Main Street director," Heydlauff said.

The biggest benefit from Main Street in Charlevoix has been the ability to pull people from our community to work and think collaboratively. Dotson has the skills to build on that, Heydlauff said.

"One of the things that stood out was her engagement with high school students and getting them involved along with her utilization of the resources offered from Main Street in Lansing," he said.

Dan Barron, chairman of the Charlevoix Downtown Development Authority/Main Street board, also attended the interviews.

"We are very excited to have (Lindsey) as our new director," Barron said. "Her experience is very impressive and she has outstanding enthusiasm for Main Street. She will be a great fit for the Charlevoix program."

gram."

In her position, as director of Charlevoix Main Street, Dotson will be responsible for working closely with the city of Charlevoix and the various department heads, the Chamber of Commerce and the visitors bureau, property owners and downtown merchants.

"The Chamber is excited to continue the work of Main Street with their new director Lindsey Dotson," said Allison Hubbard, chamber president. "Lindsey will be a wonderful addition to our community and we are anxious for her arrival."

The Main Street program, city, Chamber and visitors bureau each work toward similar goals that makes Charlevoix thrive, Dotson said.

"The people of Charlevoix have a culture of excitement for the Main Street program," Dotson said. "I look forward to working with Main Street volunteers, people at the Chamber and other organizations in Charlevoix to make the most of our Main Street program."

taken interest.

"If we have the financial information together and are able to respond, we will."

Joseph said the issue has been brought to his attention multiple times the past few weeks, and he hopes to bring it to closure.

Dvoracek also is hoping the issue will be resolved soon.

"We just need to know one way or another," Dvoracek said. "We're either going to do this with them or we'll co-op with someone else. We can work with St. Francis in Petoskey or go to any neighboring school, but it'd be nice to stay in Charlevoix because our kids go to Charlevoix."

"If they can't play in seventh grade, most likely they're going to play in eighth grade anyway."

Dvoracek said after speaking with Joseph following the Oct. 17 board meeting, two school board members mentioned to Joseph they'd like to place the topic on the agenda.

"It's going to be discussed, it won't necessarily be taken to a vote," Dvoracek said. "Somebody has to take the action to have it moved to a vote and it has to have support by the board."

In a letter Dvoracek wrote to Ritter and the Charlevoix Board of Education members, she stressed St. Mary School — which currently has six seventh-grade students and lacks the students, facilities and adequate staff to support an athletic program of their own — has a goal of having a long term partnership which would provide opportunities students would not otherwise have and would continue to build a partnership between the two schools, benefiting them both.

"We would develop camaraderie between our schools," Dvoracek added. "Relationships will be formed with students and families who will later go on to attend Charlevoix Public Schools. Working together enriches the experiences for everyone involved."

Dvoracek mentioned St. Mary students have been given the opportunity to join the Charlevoix Rayder Band Program in which students are bused to the Middle/High School this year to experience a full-sized band atmosphere and develop positive peer relationships through music.

It's also Dvoracek and St. Mary School's belief it will be difficult to join band, track or many other sporting activities if they wait until they get to Charlevoix Middle/High School in the eighth grade.

"With this partnership we are trying to build community and do what is best for these seventh-grade students," Dvoracek said.

Dvoracek said St. Mary cooperates with Charlevoix Public Schools and is not a threat in her opinion.

"We have 78 kids here that probably could be there (Charlevoix Middle School) is what they are seeing," Dvoracek said. "We have a whole different thing to offer. They can't do religion or pray and that's a huge portion of our curriculum."

Dvoracek said she's hoping to hear input from school board members at Monday's meeting.

"I'm hoping it's discussed and they tell us how they feel," Dvoracek said. "This is taking more time than it should. I have bigger fish to fry."

Joseph said the big issue is the State of Michigan has made the two schools competitors with each other.

"That's the intent of the state government," Joseph said. "We offer extra curricular activities, we accept everyone, we provide special education and in addition we have 21 varsity sports. A lot of people chose our schools over St. Mary for that reason."

Petoskey St. Francis Xavier School has been cooperating in athletic programs including football, cross-country, track, wrestling and skiing with Petoskey Public Schools, and St. Francis principal Jim Kanine said the agreement has been running smoothly.

"Even though we don't have a lot of our kids going over, it's the opportunity," Kanine said. "It's more of a competition factor here for Petoskey and they let us play."

Warmer weather means longer growing season for wine grapes

BY NATASHA BLAKELY
Capital News Service

LANSING — Good news for Michigan vineyards: the time grapes have to ripen has dramatically increased over the past few decades.

"It's nearly grown an entire month in just four decades," said Steven Schultze, an assistant professor of geography at the University of South Alabama who discovered the shift as a doctoral student at Michigan State University.

"One of our biggest findings, just since 1971, the growing season in Southwest Michigan has increased by 28.8 days," Schultze said.

Michigan has been growing grapes for a long time, mostly for juice and jams. It was only in the late 1960s that most of the state's vineyards tried growing wine grapes, Schultze said.

The state has 15,000 acres of grapes, a fifth of them wine grapes, said Paolo Sabbatini, an associate professor with the MSU Department of Horticulture. That puts Michigan at fifth in the U.S. for acreage. It's also among the top 10 wine producers in the country.

The reason for this shift is the change in climate over the past few decades. The study by Schultze found that there's been a warming trend in Michigan, with warmer springs and more frost-free days.

"There are a million bad things that will and have happened with climate change," Schultze said. "The thing is,

The Michigan wine industry has grown since the 1970s, according to Michigan State University this is a good thing."

That extra month means a lot. There are more days for the grapes to ripen. Varieties that take longer to ripen are now viable for Michigan vineyards, including more varieties of grapes for red wines, Sabbatini said.

"Michigan is known for growing excellent white wines," Sabbatini said. "Whites are varieties that require not a very long season. The problem in Michigan was always that we had challenges in growing reds, and in the U.S. most of the market for wines are in the reds."

One reason why Michigan is good for grapes is the stability of its weather, particularly near the Great Lakes, Schultze said. Lake Michigan in particular prevents the temperature from dropping low enough during the winter and climbing high enough in the summer to kill the vines.

"The bad news is that the wine grapes, they don't handle frost well," Schultze said. "Warmer spring temperatures cause the grapes to come out of dormancy sooner, which puts them at risk of a late frost. If they get frost once they've budded, then it's over."

Wine grapes are more sensitive to extremes in weather, and climate change has caused some fluctuation.

"What we've noticed is these wild, crazy swings in the winter-time, super cold, and in the summer super dry," said Glen Greiffendorf, the viticulturist and winemaker at 12 Corners Vineyard in Benton Harbor. "This year we had to trim the crop back some, just because there wasn't enough water."

St. Julian Winery in Paw Paw, one of the largest and oldest wineries in Michigan, has also experienced these negative changes.

Nancie Oxley, a winemaker at St. Julian, said, "Early 2014 we saw temperatures dip to -20 F for more than four days at a time."

Most growers saw almost complete devastation on vitis vinifera varieties, such as riesling and chardonnay, and severe damage on the French-American varieties, such as baco noir and chancelior, according to Oxley.

The year 2014 produced the smallest vintage that St. Julian had experienced in more than three decades, she said.

It isn't all bad though. Halfway through this year's season, St. Julian's harvest appears bountiful, Oxley said, and the varieties still on the vine look like they'll turn out well too.

That's a consistent pattern for Michigan vineyards.

Greiffendorf said, "Usually we're happy to get two to three (years) in 10 that are super-perfect years where there's not a lot of rain, not a lot of humidity and nice dry fall, and the harvest comes off real well. We've probably been getting another extra one out of 10."

The changes in climate have had good effects, and though frost is a problem, growers have ways to handle it, Schultze said.

And Sabbatini said, "It's getting better and better. Because we can choose varieties that ripen later, prune the vines differently, there are ways to fight the frost."

CLARE — Christian Matye and his family moved from Troy to Charlevoix back in 2009.

After seeing a lack of club soccer teams in the area, Matye and most of the 16 seniors on the Charlevoix varsity soccer team started playing together.

On Thursday, that chemistry showed when the group made Rayder history.

Matye scored two goals as the Rayders defeated Benzie Central 5-0 to clinch the first regional title in school history at Brookwood Athletic Complex in Clare.

The Rayders will advance to the Division 3 state semifinals at 6 p.m., Wednesday, Nov. 2, at Cedar Springs against Grand Rapids Catholic.

Charlevoix coach Jon Boss told his team it made history following its second shutout win of regional play, leading to celebration from the players.

"I'm very excited for the boys," Boss said. "They earned it. They played hard and have been putting in the time all season long and to be able to get this far and make history with the school, it's just very exciting."

The game played out much like the Rayders' 2-0 win over Saginaw Swan Valley in the Division 3 regional semifinals on Tuesday.

Charlevoix took a while to warm up, but earned the first goal of the game as Kevin Pearl found the back of the net after a Charlevoix rush with 23:32 left in the first half.

Matye scored with 19 seconds left in the first half during Tuesday's win. On Thursday, Matye tallied the second goal with 11:52 left to give the Rayders a 2-0 halftime lead.

Graham Kroon scored the only goal of the second half on Tuesday, and he scored the first goal of the second half on Thursday. After David Ritter dribbled into the Huskies' zone, Kroon found the back of the net as Charlevoix led 3-0 less than two minutes into the second half.

Matye was not finished.

BENZONIA — To make it to the Division 3 state meet out of a region with the top two teams in the state and another top 10 squad, the Charlevoix girls cross country team needed a performance better than any they've had all season long.

That's exactly what the Rayders got, finishing nine points ahead of a tough Kingsley squad for the third and final state qualifying spot, thanks to lifetime or season bests from all seven of their runners on Saturday at Benzie Central.

"It's just one of those days you hope and pray for as a coach in a situation like this," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "Your athletes work hard every day trying to peak at exactly the right time and come through with their best performances of the season when it counts, but there's no guarantee that'll happen."

"For our team to pull this off is a testament to everything they've done to get ready for this moment and to the kind of people they are, and I couldn't be prouder."

Michelle Boliini led the way for the Rayders, taking fourth overall in a personal best time of 18:50, while freshman Emma Wachler continued her breakout season by finishing 16th in a personal best time of 19:49 as well.

Charlevoix's season ends with 28-7 playoff loss to Miners

NEGAUNEE — Not many teams have been able to put a scare into the Negaunee football program this season.

The No. 1 ranked team in Division 6 had allowed less than 90 points to end their 9-0 regular season and hadn't had much of a challenge in weeks.

Opening with Charlevoix to begin district play in their Division 6 bracket in Negaunee, the Rayders took it to the Miners early.

On their opening drive of the night, Charlevoix drove 70 yards down field and ended it with a score to send a bit of pre-Halloween fright into the home crowd.

Unfortunately for the Rayders, it came as their lone lead of the night, as Negaunee showed why they've been atop the polls throughout the year with a 28-7 win over Charlevoix.

"The kids played really well, they never quit," Charlevoix coach Ron Bindi said afterward. "Negaunee was a little bit stronger and didn't make any mistakes."

"We played hard, never quit and a lot of guys stepped up and played hurt even."

EAST JORDAN — Both the Charlevoix and Boyne City volleyball teams showed courage under fire in a district opener on Monday, a match that featured big kills and bigger blocks.

But in the end, the senior-laden, battle-tested Rayders drew enough fortitude from their experience to outlast the younger Ramblers in all three sets, winning 25-14, 25-16 and 25-21 to end Boyne City's season and advance.

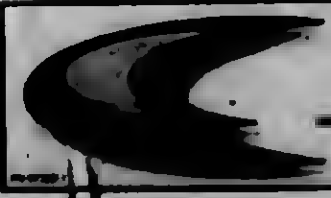

Charlevoix got stronger as each set wore on, shaking ing off a gritty effort by the Ramblers to pull away in all three sets.

That improvement is something Rayders coach Audra Randall attributes to the team's tough schedule, which included multiple matches against state powers Leland and T.C. St. Francis, as well as several Class A and B schools.

"We've played teams that are going to block our kill attempts, and going to give us serves that we won't be able to return, and what that's taught us is resilience,"

After a corner kick from the Rayders' Blaise Snabes, the ball was deflected off Benzie goalkeeper Brian Kaczowski, but Matye tallied his third goal of the regionals.

"I was in the right spot at the right time," Matye said. "We moved the ball well the whole game. We got everyone scoring."

The Rayders were ready to celebrate, but Charlevoix's Ty Fuchs delayed it with 1:05 left after he scored the fifth Rayders goal of the game.

That made the celebration even sweeter.

"We just had fun," Matye said. "That was the key. We just had fun out there and we didn't want to lose."

The players were presented with individual awards before Boss accepted the regional trophy. Charlevoix fans were invited onto the field to take photos and celebrate the historic moment with the team.

"We had the talent, we just needed to put it together, and we put it together," Matye said. "We beat good teams this year and we're playing good at the right time."

Benzie finishes the season 16-7-1 and graduates seven seniors. Coach Scott Barker and the Huskies were the only unranked team in Division 3 left in the regionals, but thought the Rayders were too much for his team.

"Charlevoix played amazing," Barker said. "They were double the team I saw on Tuesday - they were faster, their passes were better - they were a really good team. We thought we had a chance. We didn't come out hard enough or play well enough to beat them. They were a good team."

Boss thought his team played a better game than it did over Swan Valley.

"(Benzie) played a great game and our guys just kind of came to the table and matched it and overcame it even," he said.

Boss feels his team still has a lot to prove, but added it may be playing its best soccer right now. He praised the defense, who has helped goalkeeper Jacob Harrod pitch two shutouts in regional play.

"Our defense has been extremely solid," Boss said. "Kevin Pearl is just anchoring it down back there and Danny Nesburg is a lock-down defender. Between those two guys and (Cameron Clark) and Matt Good on the outsides, is a formidable defensive line and it's hard to break through."

Charlevoix fans know how many times Pearl and Matye have connected for goals throughout their career. Matye said the two love playing with each other, and are happy to help carry this team two games away from the pinnacle.

"Our team looks up to (Pearl and I) and we just come together and play as a family," Matye said. "We all love each other and we'll do anything for each other."

Boss stated Grand Rapids Catholic will be the toughest team the Rayders face all season, but after taking a personal leave last season, he is more than proud to be the coach of this team, the first regional champion in the history of Charlevoix.

"Once you get a group of guys like this, it's just a lot of fun to be able to create the relationships with the guys," he said. "I really enjoy it. I wouldn't take it for granted and wouldn't change it."

"It's a very honored position to be in."

The results of that game against Grand Rapids Catholic Central, as well as the state title game on Saturday should the Rayders win, will be in the Nov. 11 edition of the Courier.

Randall said. "We've learned how to react to lost points, how to stay mentally tough and refocus after mistakes."

"That's what I saw tonight. Our team seemed to respond to every one of their blocks and aces by hitting harder and moving faster on the next point, and it just kept building and building throughout the sets."

Charlevoix made big plays at the net, as seniors Becca Moon, Beth Veenstra, Nichole Hart and Kenzy O'Leary, as well as sophomore Ellie Louisselle and freshman Elise Stuck kept the Ramblers off-balance with several emphatic kills and blocks.

"Give credit to Boyne City; we were expecting them to come out playing to win, to come at us hard and to show us some things we hadn't seen before," Randall said. "They didn't disappoint, and this was by no means an easy win."

"With how hard Boyne City was playing, I thought it was really important to be active at the net and disrupt their offensive plans, and it seemed like we did a good job of that."

Boyne City coach Mallory Slate agreed that her team found it tough to weather the storm at the net for three full sets.

"I was really happy with our effort and I thought we came out swinging and being aggressive the way we needed to," Slate said. "Charlevoix is just a great team and a very tall one, and it's just tough to sustain that effort offensively when you're getting blocked repeatedly."

"It wears on you mentally and we just weren't quite able to power through that. In all three sets I think we just stopped swinging and attacking, and that was when Charlevoix was able to pull away."

Stuck led the Rayders offensively with 11 kills and four blocks. Moon chipped in nine kills, nine digs and two blocks, and Veenstra added five kills and six blocks.

O'Leary finished with five kills and 10 digs for Charlevoix. Louisselle added four kills and three blocks, and Hart chipped in a kill and four blocks.

Julia Doskoch led the Rayder backrow with nine digs, and Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta chipped in six digs and two aces.

The win moves the Rayders closer to its third straight district title, and Charlevoix faces host East Jordan in the semifinal on Wednesday at 5:30 p.m. for a spot in the final on Thursday.

The results of that match and the district final will be in the Nov. 11 edition of the Courier.

ELK RAPIDS — The Charlevoix varsity volleyball team closed out their regular season with a three-set sweep over Elk Rapids in Lake Michigan Conference action on Thursday.

Charlevoix earned a 25-22 win in set one after being down 20-17, then went through another battle in their second set with the Elks.

Up 24-23 late in set two, an error by the Rayders tied it at 24-24, then Raigan Novotny stepped up at the serve line and Becca Moon delivered two straight kills to finish off the Elks with a 26-24 win.

With momentum on their side, Charlevoix ended the night with a 25-19 win.

Moon led with seven kills, 10 digs, 16 assists and two aces. Elise Stuck had nine kills, eight blocks and nine digs and Kenzy O'Leary had five kills, 11 assists, 13 digs and two blocks.

Also for Charlevoix, Beth Veenstra had four kills, three aces and three digs and Kelsey Crandall had 11 digs.

goal of earning their first ever playoff victory.

Charlevoix running back Malcom Williams scored on a one yard dive to give the Rayders a 7-0 lead early, then Charlevoix stifled the Miners on fourth and short to take back over.

It came short lived, though, as Negaunee then forced a fumble, with Brock Aho recovering.

The fumble eventually set up a 15 yard rushing score for Shane Ring of Negaunee, which ended the first quarter in a 7-7 game.

At 5:15 in the second quarter the Rayders fell behind 14-7 when Neal Violetta punched in a one yard score for the Miners.

Charlevoix nearly tied the game to close the first half, but Eric Hurst intercepted Rayder quarterback Brad Klinger in the endzone, making it a 14-7 game at halftime.

"I take the blame on that one all the way," added Bindi of the play call for a pass from around the 20-yard line. "I made a bad choice."

In the third, Negaunee opened with nearly a 10 minute drive, which ended in a one yard run for Ring. The two point play was no good, making it 20-7.

"We came on out and made a couple mistakes and they capitalized on them," said Bindi. "Then we thought we had them stopped a couple times on the goal line."

Charlevoix's offense couldn't muster much of anything in the fourth quarter and a 51-yard pass from Aho to Hurst set up an eventual four yard touchdown run for Aho, giving the game its 28-7 final.

While the physical size of Negaunee's team has given opponents problems this season, Bindi didn't see it as a factor against his team on Friday night.

Instead, Bindi felt it came down to a numbers game, which the Miners led in as well.

Still, Bindi applauded his team for fighting until the end.

"We got nicked up early in the game, but we fought through it," he said.

"We played about 15 guys for the first three quarters, they had the numbers game against us, but that doesn't matter. We played well and played hard."

Klinger finished the game 4-of-11 passing with 37 yards, then added seven rushes for 34 yards on the ground.

Williams totaled 14 rushes for 75 yards and a score on the ground, while Colin Smith made two catches for 27 yards.

Defensively, Caleb Hart finished with 12 tackles, Ray Cunningham made 10 stops, Cam Alden had nine tackles and Jared McLean made seven tackles.

Bindi will now have to say goodbye to 11 seniors from this year's team, a large group on a team that included only 19 total players.

It's also a class that helped return the Rayders to the postseason, and for some, made two playoff trips.

"They started turning this program back around and being a championship caliber, now it's up to the juniors to do those things, being in the weight room and all of that," said Bindi.

From the standard set by the seniors, Bindi likes where the program was at this season and sees a lot to look forward to coming up.

"The kids always came to play," he said. "They always played hard for us. We threw a lot of stuff at them and we talked about it after this game, our middle school was very successful this year, undefeated and our JV team went 7-2."

Isabel Hess took 18th (20:03) as well for Charlevoix, but it was the Rayders' pack of four runners at the back that sealed the qualifying spot.

Megan Scholten took 27th (20:50), Emmaline Peterson took 28th (20:51), Rachel Nesburg took 30th (20:55) and Katie Mousseau took 35th (21:11) as all four runners finished ahead of Kingsley's fifth runner to provide the points separation the Rayders needed to take third.

"Last year we edged Kingsley with our front-runners, but this year we beat them throughout the race and especially in the back," Drenth said. "We knew heading in who we had to be in front of to accomplish our goals, and our entire team ran a great race and beat who they had to beat to get it done."

Charlevoix's boys squad will be joining the Rayder girls at the state finals after finishing second in the regional with 55 points, 20 behind champion Benzie Central.

The Rayders got personal bests from six of their seven runners to take second, and put three in the top six, led by Noah Carson's third place finish (18:32).

Luke Buday took fifth (17:01) and David Ritter sixth (17:02) as well for Charlevoix, which is looking to improve on a 10th place finish at the state finals last year.

Charlevoix's Ben Peterson ran a personal best to help the Rayders take second at Saturday's D3 regional meet at Benzie Central.

good shape heading into next week," Drenth said. "They're believing in their training and each other right now and it's showing in races."

In order to better their 2015 result, the Rayders will need performances from Ben Lentz (19th, 17:43) and Ben Peterson (26th, 18:04) like the ones they got today.

Peterson, a junior, has continued to improve and is running his best times as this season draws to a close.

"Ben (Peterson) is truly one of the hardest workers I've ever coached," Drenth said.

Charlevoix's Katie Mousseau beat out Kingsley's fifth runner to help the Rayders edge the Stags for the third and final state qualifying spot at Saturday's Division 3 regional at Benzie Central.

"He's a great example for his teammates because he puts everything he has into his training, and you can see what he's getting out of it."

Caleb Kenwabikise (31st, 18:25) and Joshua Carlson (41st, 18:43) also ran well for the Rayders on Saturday.

The Rayders travel to Michigan International Speedway in Brooklyn this Saturday to compete in the Division 3 state final, with the boys running at 10:30 a.m. and the girls at 11:30 a.m.

Kurtz wins mayoral race, Kalbfell, Oleksy join city council

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Luther Kurtz is Charlevoix's next mayor with unofficial results from Tuesday's election showing him beating opponent Shirley Gibson with 68 percent of the vote.

Kurtz ran his campaign as "Positive Charlevoix," promising to bring back a positive image to city council. He thanked his supporters and his plan moving forward is to sit down with the current city council to discuss ideas he heard from each of them during the campaign.

"I think the most effective thing we can do first is to have a long discussion about the best way we can work together on all these different ideas,"

A soldier's letters home

John Srigley writes from the front

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

On March 26, 1945, "Somewhere in Germany" at 4:30 on a Monday afternoon (10:30 Monday morning Pontiac, Michigan time), 19-year-old PFC John Srigley finally found time to write his family back home.

He wrote 20 pages, thanking them for their letters and gifts of candy, gum and warm socks; he wrote describing in detail the fellows with whom he shared rations, camaraderie and terrible times; he wrote telling them of his rugged and bawdy companions, the atrocities of the war he was witnessing in the final push against the "Jerries" (Hitler's German army); he told his family, his mom, dad and two younger brothers, that he loved them and that he was doing his best to be a soldier and make them proud.

"I'd like to have been a radio operator as that was the only training I had," John wrote, "but since the troop had enough operators that were experienced etc. I was just a handyman. But I'm satisfied now. I had a lot of trouble at first because I never had any training on armored cars at basic. Never even rode in one until I got over here and then they expected me to know the 37 mm cannon inside and out and also the 50 and 30 caliber machine gun...there's a lot of little parts to get the hang of unless you're used to it...since that's what I'm responsible for I'm doing OK...I sit in the rear of the bantam (reconnaissance car) with my machine gun...That's where the effect of all the bumps go too but I've got a pillow to sit on now."

Two weeks later PFC John Srigley was dead.

Board of education declines 2 athletic proposals

STEVE FOLEY
(231) 439-9397 • sfoley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education rejected two proposals during Monday's workshop board meeting regarding a possible athletic cooperative with St. Mary School for seventh-grade students.

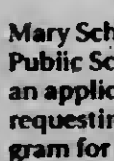

The first motion made by board president Dick Joseph and supported by secretary/treasurer Douglas Bergmann, which would've allowed a Michigan High School Athletic Association cooperative agreement for all seventh-grade sports offered at Charlevoix Middle School, was voted down by the board, 6-0.

Joseph

A second motion made up by trustee Tom Kirinovic and supported by Joseph in which St.

Dvoracek

Mary School and Charlevoix Public Schools would submit an application to the MHSAA requesting a cooperative program for boys and girls track and field for the spring 2017 season also failed via a tied vote, 3-3.

The topic of forming a cooperative athletic agreement with St. Mary School and Charlevoix Public Schools had been discussed by members of the community in public comments at the previous three board of education meetings, but Monday's meeting was the first time board members discussed the issue as part of new business.

Monday's meeting began with more public comments regarding the issue, as community members including Kelly Romano, Holly Fuchs, Kendall Hayes, Anne Kelly, Denny Brya, Vane Smith, Frank Sanders, Jean Munick, St. Mary School principal Kathleen Dvoracek, St. Mary administrator and father Peter Wighton, John Keyser and Jim Jeakle spoke in support of the possible cooperative agreement.

The school board, which also consists of trustee Matt Peterson, vice president Valerie Snyder and trustee Mike Moon (trustee Nancy Allison was absent), was then presented by Charlevoix Public Schools superintendent Mike Ritter a list of points for consideration to offer a potential athletic partnership with St. Mary School or any other school.

Discussion then took place

Fox Charlevoix & Charlevoix Elementary
Ride & Drive Fundraiser

Thank you to those who participated in the Ride & Drive Fundraiser - Sponsored by Fox Charlevoix.

Each year, Fox Charlevoix and Charlevoix Elementary PTO team up to raise money to fund recent needs such as field trips, new books and computer programs, subscriptions for educational resources, swimming lessons, classroom supplies, reading programs, playground supplies, foreign language teaching, and author visits, to name a few.

So how does it work? Fox Charlevoix brought seven vehicles to the elementary school and agreed to donate ten dollars to the PTO for every person that test drove a vehicle. As an added bonus, Fox offered an extra $500 if there were over 200 test drives. And thanks to those who showed up to support - The goal was exceeded! We had 204 test drives and $2,540 was given to fund the PTO's efforts.

This is one of our favorite fundraisers of the year! It was a beautiful day and we hope you all had as much fun as we did! - David Prahl (GM, Fox)

Local boy in running for national cooking contest

MOOLIE STEVENS
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — The love of cooking could be paying off for one lucky Charlevoix boy, Nathan Davis, an eighth-grader at Charlevoix Middle School is currently in the running as one of 25 national finalists for the Uncle Ben's Beginner's Cooking Contest.

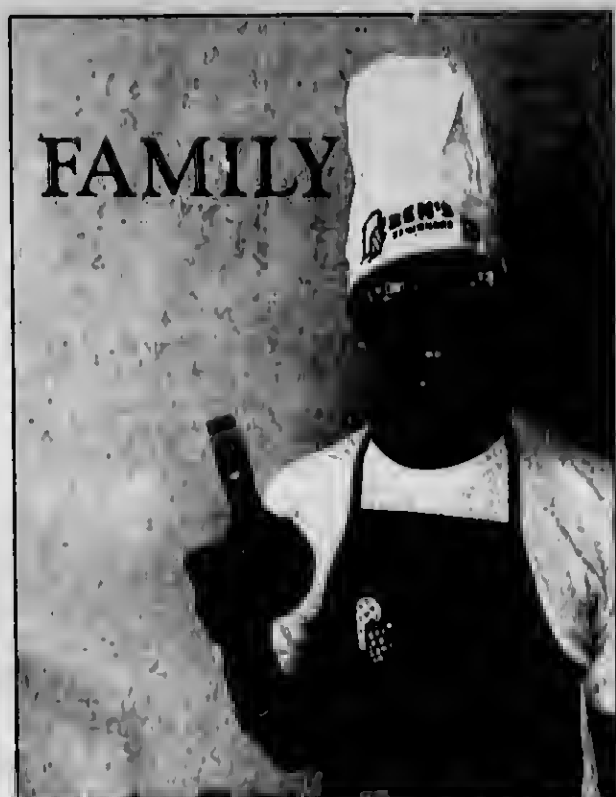

To qualify, each of the 25 finalists submitted photos of themselves and their families preparing a rice-based dish together. For Nathan, this will be his third time entering the contest, but the first time being picked as a finalist.

"He just loves to be in the kitchen and has always cooked with me," said Nathan's mother, Sheila Davis.

As a finalist, Nathan could be one five chosen to receive $15,000 cash for his family, a hometown celebration and a $30,000 cafeteria makeover for Charlevoix Middle School.

The contest sponsored by Uncle Ben's Rice, asked entrants to submit photos that demonstrated how parents and their young chefs made cooking healthy meals at home fun and a great time to bond as a family. Ironically, Uncle Ben's Rice is one of only about 20 foods, which Nathan eats, in his very limited diet.

This selectivity is typical in an autistic child, according to his mother, and being able to help in the kitchen making these meals is also helpful to Nathan.

"Nathan has autism and is in a special education classroom that has a wonderful life skills program to teach these students valuable skills to live independently in their future," said his mother. "If he wins he they plan to build a kitchen that is adaptable for the students."

With a goal of winning in mind, and his award winning recipe "Taco Boats for Everybody," Nathan hopes that through the voting process he is picked as one of the five winners. For Nathan, it would simply be paying back the school and being able to win at doing something he loves.

The 25 finalists and their families will now rally their communities to not only vote for their recipe, but support them as they work to inspire healthy, lifelong eating habits by encouraging parents and kids to cook together.

People can vote once a day with voting ending on Nov. 13. Winners of the contest will be announced on Dec. 5. To view Nathan's winning video and vote, visit <https://beginners.unclebens.com/voting-gallery> and search "Taco Boats for Everybody."

Lieberman remembered for legal skill, humor

STEVE ZUCKER
(231) 434-9146
szucker@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Many in the Charlevoix area and the Northern Michigan legal community are mourning the recent death of long-time attorney and former prosecuting attorney Kraag Lieberman, remembering him for his professional skills, fairness and sense of humor.

Lieberman, who died Nov. 1 at the age of 64, was born in Saginaw, but moved to Charlevoix with his parents Bob and Jane when he was 1 year old.

He graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1970 where he was a standout athlete in basketball, football and track.

He earned a bachelor's degree from Alma College in 1974 where he continued his athletic successes in football and track, and where he was inducted into the college's athletic hall of fame.

He earned his law degree from Detroit Law School in 1974 and first worked for the Legal Aid Society of Calhoun County before becoming the chief assistant prosecutor for St. Joseph County.

He returned to Charlevoix in 1983 and was appointed county prosecutor after Scotty Beatty stepped down to pursue private practice. He served as county prosecutor for nine years. In January 1993 he opened his own law practice, which he continued until his death.

He also served on the board of directors for the Bay Area Substance Education Services (BASES) for 11 years and was active in his church. According to his obituary, Lieberman remained active in sports including basketball, softball and golf and enjoyed many outdoor activities and the arts.

Current Charlevoix County Prosecuting Attorney Allen Telgenhof called Lieberman "truly a pillar of our legal community."

"He was a highly intelligent, highly respected part of our legal community," Telgenhof said. "Kraag was our E.E. Hutton ... when he talked, people listened. Prosecutors and police officers knew that, when as a defense lawyer, Kraag said there was a problem with a case, they'd better take a close look."

He added: "He could be a man of few words but also had a wicked sense of humor."

Telgenhof said Lieberman was one of very few people whose counsel he sought before announcing his intent to run for county prosecutor.

Retired Charlevoix

Lieberman

County Circuit Court Judge Richard Pajtas, who served on the bench for 30 years — nearly all of the time Lieberman practiced law in Charlevoix County — said he also was saddened by the news of Lieberman's death.

"Kraag was a good attorney but even more importantly, he was a good person," Pajtas said. "A gentle and humble man, he had an awesome sense of humor. Never once did I question his ethics or integrity. He will be missed."

Charlevoix attorney and the person who served as Charlevoix County Prosecutor prior to Lieberman, Scott Beatty, said Lieberman "did an excellent job" as county prosecutor and that it was gratifying to see him continue those high standards in the office.

"He did it with such a great sense of humor," Beatty said. "He was a mainstay of the legal community. He was a very bright guy with a very dry sense of humor. He was easy to talk to and reasonable in his approach to cases."

A memorial service for Lieberman took place on Saturday.

In his obit, Lieberman's family suggested anyone wishing to make a memorial contribution in his honor consider a contribution to the Amyloidosis Foundation at www.amyloidosis.org.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful seeks to solve 2016 flower die-out CHARLEVOIX — Keep Charlevoix Beautiful's favorite flower saw big trouble this year due to what organization members are calling a "Perfect Storm" of circumstances, and the results are not pretty.

To deal with the number of dead flowers some people said the flowers were in mourning for the passing of Dale Boss, founding member and champion of Keep Charlevoix Beautiful. So what happened to the beautiful petunias this year? It began with that massive rain and hail storm on planting day, said volunteer Patti McCreadie.

The flowers also were infected by a fungus called phytophthora, causing the roots and stems to quickly rot.

"Whether the fungus came from the soil or the flowers themselves, no one knows," McCreadie said.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful board members also suggest the curbs on the south side of town from the RE/MAX building to the Shell Station are extremely low.

"Some barely exist at all," McCreadie said. "These curbs have not been updated since the 1930s and it generally takes just one good rainstorm to wash away the hard work and lovely flowers."

Another factor suggested for the petunias demise this year are commercial fertilizers, which are good for green grass, but deadly for petunias. Homeowners, landscapers, and businesses often are encouraged not to spread fertilizers near the petunia beds.

The biggest issue board members struggle with each year are the weeds in the petunia beds. The soil was especially full of weeds, and only a handful of weeders showed up to help on the three weeding days, McCreadie said.

Operation Petunia is run by a passionate board of 10 volunteers who work tirelessly throughout the year planning, raising funds, purchasing flowers and supplies, and cleaning up from the previous year's planting efforts.

Operation Petunia has grown and blossomed over the years since it began in 1982. Each year thousands of people see the petunia truck in the Venetian parade and watering the petunias.

On planting day, more than 1,200 flats of petunias are placed along the curbs from one end of the town to the other. And more than 1,000 volunteer planters from the community proudly assist in the planting. In addition to the flower beds, Keep Charlevoix Beautiful also provides more than 80 hanging baskets of petunias, which are hung on lampposts throughout the downtown business district and the Round Lake Marina.

Currently the board is making plans for some exciting changes next year. They have a new grower who is already preparing beds and seeds for an even stronger variety of petunia, planted that much earlier for full, vibrant flowers. The search is underway for superior soil that will have fewer weed seeds to begin with. However, the group still needs everyone's help with volunteer weeding days and the board is discussing new ideas to tackle this challenge.

Keep Charlevoix Beautiful has established an agency fund at the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to provide for Operation Petunia both now and in the future.

To learn more about Operation Petunia or to volunteer, visit www.keepcharlevoixbeautiful.org or join the group on Facebook.

Honoring our soldiers with their letters to home

Veterans Day honors all who have served in the military — in peace and in war, at home and abroad, living and dead.

President Dwight D. Eisenhower renamed Armistice Day to Veterans Day in 1954 to "solemnly remember the sacrifices of all those who fought so valiantly, on the seas, in the air, and on foreign shores, to preserve our heritage of freedom."

As a veteran of the U.S. Marine Corps I never saw combat. I can never imagine what it means to serve in that capacity. My grandfather was a World War II veteran before his passing in 2009, but he did not share much about his time overseas serving in the U.S. Army.

A few years before he died, while we were fishing together, he did share with me that the things that happen in combat are something only a soldier understands.

"It is not our place to put that burden on our families. Long live," he said. "We come home, work hard and start our family. No time to dwell in the past."

That was about as much as I knew about his service besides his occasional racial slurs about German and Japanese peoples, until my grandmother's passing in 2013.

After she died, I received a box from my dad that contained the letters my grandfather wrote to my grandmother during the war. These letters offer me a small insight into my grandfather's time serving in the U.S. Army. Below are a few excerpts from some of his letters home.

Oct. 28, 1943, somewhere in India

My dearest Vera,
How are you my honey bunch? I have not received a letter from you recently I hope you are well. I am doing well, but miss you terribly. I hope your job in Muskegon is going well. Things are okay here, only a few things missing and one of them is you. But I think God will make up the time for us someday and hope that is not too far off, but I hear little about the fight against the Jerry's and nips in this jungle. I was on guard last night and look forward to my time tonight, which will give me time to think about my lovely wife. I need to finish this letter up so I will write soon. Lots of love, Cliff.

As the war progressed in the Pacific my grandfather continues to miss his wife and tries to reassure her that he is safer where he is located than many of the other soldiers in the war.

Dec. 6, 1943, somewhere in India

My dearest darling Vera,
Just a few lines to let you know I am thinking of you every hour of the day. I should have written you yesterday, but I spent much of my day at Sunday services. Me and the boys were planning some liberty off the base, but some of the men were injured coming back with the truck yesterday. It looks like we will be running munitions in their place. You should not worry though because we are in a good place. I cannot tell you much more than that, except I am safe. Well it is about time for us to be called out. I will end this letter hoping to hear from you very soon my sweet. Lots and lots of love, Cliff.

I contrast these letters with the daily emails and weekly phone calls many of you receive from your sons, daughters, friends serving today. The notes of patriotism, an earnest desire to do good, useful work, mixed with almost unbearable homesickness — is the same thread that links all soldiers serving far from home.

I was entering my first year at Central Michigan University when grandpa died. By then he and Vera had become comfortable "old-marrieds," with little outward signs of affection. In his 60s he was a serious, stubborn man, only occasionally chuckling at some joke. The young soldier became a grandfather who didn't share much public affection toward his wife.

Try as I might, it is hard to reconcile this older man with his younger self, desperate for any word from home, and desperate for his girl. But it is strangely comforting to know him differently through his letters home.

As we honor those who served and continue to serve our country let us also remember the letters, emails, phone calls and videos that give us a glimpse of the men and women who choose to protect American ideals with their lives.

LETTERS to the editor

Grateful for volunteers and trainers

Editor:

Char-Em United Way is excited to thank all of the volunteers who joined us for a Literacy Corps Training on Oct. 28. Special thanks to Kari Maki, Char-Em ISD literacy consultant, for conducting the training and bringing a wealth of information and tools. The volunteers spent the morning being trained on the best strategies and techniques to use when reading and tutoring children. These new skills will help tremendously as the volunteers start working in schools and libraries in the community.

The Literacy Corps is a part of Char-Em United Way's Education Initiative, "United We Read." Our goal is to help improve the educational performance of students in Charlevoix and Emmet Counties by having volunteers read, tutor and mentor children. The training was open to anyone interested in, or currently working with young children. Our plan is to schedule another Literacy Corps Training for next fall and again partner with the Intermediate School District. If you are interested in learning more about early literacy efforts or in volunteering, call (231) 487-1006 or visit www.char-emunitedway.org.

A great evening

The Charlevoix Knights of Columbus Council 7172 would like to thank the community for the support of the 14th annual Hunter's Banquet fundraiser held on Oct. 27. The net proceeds of over $3,000 will assist the Charlevoix Food Pantry to provide needed food for our residents this winter.

A special thanks to the contributors who made this event so successful: St. Marys Cemetery; Terry Left, The Village; Mark Greyerbiehl, Ace Hardware; Mark Copeiland, Jay's Sporting Goods; and Tom Lemon.

The event featured Glen McCune, local artist and naturalist who presented a great presentation on raptors and even brought in a live injured hawk he was working with to get back into the wild. All in all — a great event for all who attended.

One word: Plastic

One word: Plastic. If you are as old as I am, you may recognize that statement from the movie "The Graduate." In the 1960s, it symbolized all the bright future for plastic. Unfortunately, today it describes one of the many threats to the water quality of the Great Lakes and our own Lake Charlevoix.

The plastic threat comes from a number of sources and requires different actions by all of us to preserve our lake, its fish and other wildlife. Over the past several years, there has been growing evidence of tiny plastic pieces (micro plastics) spreading throughout the world's waters including the Great Lakes and its tributaries.

These micro plastics come from slowly decomposing plastic bottles and bags, as well as from our homes, from the toothpastes, lotions and other washes and cosmetics that contain them. They enter our lake through our sewers and septic systems, as well as the plastic trash that finds its way into the lake. These plastics and fibers then cause internal damage to the fish, birds and other animals living in and around our lake. Urban areas show the greatest concentration of these harmful plastics, so our efforts are important around the cities on our lake, as well as around the lake itself.

While the State of Michigan is moving to ban some micro plastics from some cosmetics, such action will not take effect immediately, and will not cover all the types of harmful plastics in our environment.

There are a number of things we all can do to lessen the impact of plastic on our lake.

When shopping for cosmetics, washes and scrubs, and other products, we can try to purchase products, which do not contain micro plastics. This also should include clothing, which uses plastic fibers in linings and fill, which then enter our water from our washing machines.

We can increase efforts at recycling our plastic products and cleaning our shorelines and beaches of plastic trash to prevent it from migrating into our lake. I recently walked my shoreline and discovered a number of small plastic pieces that had washed ashore. Often they are small enough to not be readily visible, but can harm our lake environment all the same.

We should try to avoid plastic containers and bottles when possible, opting for recyclable glass instead. While still a potential pollutant, these containers will not emit micro plastics and are less likely to find their way into our lake. (Don't get me started on nonreturnable plastic water bottles.)

Probably as important a step as any is to avoid plastic bags when shopping. As convenient as they may seem, you only have to look for them on our roadsides and streets to see how many escape, and are so easily blown by the wind, ending up in our lake and streams. I can only try to imagine the number of plastic bags that must have accumulated over the years on the bottom of our lake. Of course the best approach is to use our own cloth bags when shopping, but often that is not practical. Requiring the store where we shop to bag products in paper bags is a next best step. Paper can be recycled, but unlike plastic paper will naturally deteriorate and decompose in the lake. If it ends up there, without adding to our micro plastic problem.

Around the country some local governments are trying to eliminate or reduce the use of plastic bags. Our own State legislature is debating prohibiting local governments from taking such steps, no doubt urged on by the plastic lobby. But we as individuals can still act. We should encourage our representatives to support legislation that limits the use of plastics, and allows local governments to address the problem as they see fit.

We should be encouraging shops around our lake, particularly the grocery stores, to join us in an effort to reduce and discourage the use of plastic bags by making paper the preferred option. When you shop, talk to your stores about joining this effort. The Lake Charlevoix Association will welcome all businesses that join in this effort. And for all of you who help pass this word and join our effort — Here's to you — (Mrs. Robinson and others.)

Joe Kimmell is a member of the Lake Charlevoix Association and each month a member of the association will submit a Lake Charlevoix Association column that is intended to educate and inform residents about the watershed. For more information, visit lakecharlevoix.org.

LOOKING BACK...

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bridging our past with our future

In 1894, the Charlevoix Cold Storage and Commission Company building was put up at the far east end of Clinton Street on the Round Lake waterfront, now the site of the harbor master's building. It offered space for "Foreign and Domestic Fruits, Butter and Eggs, Early Vegetables and Fruits. Produce of all kinds handled on commission. Correspondence solicited." The upper floors were capable of holding up to 200 tons of ice. But one year after the company started the business, the building started to bulge from all this weight and threatened to collapse. Everything had to be removed so reinforcements could be installed. Total cost of the renovation? $400. It has yet to be discovered how long the company was in business and when the building was taken down. But it was recently discovered that just south and a little to the west of it, on what is now the East Park grass along Clinton Street, once stood a 44- by 60-foot one-story iron-framed dance pavilion.

Hayes Twp. board gets two new faces, incumbents keep seats

CHARLEVOIX — Hayes Township will see some new and keep some old faces on its township board.

Marlene Golovich the incumbent was reelected as township clerk after defeating challenger William Eaton 730 to 338 receiving 68 percent of the vote.

"I am very grateful for everyone's support in this election," Golovich said. Golovich looks forward to the two new board members taking their seat at the table in December.

"I am hoping we can move forward with the plans to build the public boat launch and access for all residents at park Camp Sea-Gull," Golovich said.

Incumbent Paul Hoadley retained his seat on the board receiving 512 votes. "Obviously the people have spoken and I am very glad to have this election behind us," Hoadley said. "The township will be in good hands with the good people on this board. We will continue to listen to the people and encourage them to attend the meetings."

Camp Sea-Gull has been a contentious issue in this election that had a special interest group of residents pushing to get their candidates elected to the board by campaigning on the promise to reverse the planned access road and boat launch for the park.

"This is the biggest disagreement in the township is the direction of the park," Hoadley said. "The board has decided to move forward with its boat launch and road and we will all talk about the direction the township will go. We agree we have a solid road plan and we agree on many other things. The biggest this is we go back to work and move forward."

Two of the park opposition candidates Ron Van Zee and Matt Cunningham will join the board this December. Cunningham will join Hoadley as a trustee and Van Zee won the supervisor seat in August. He will replace retiring supervisor Ethel Knepp.

Food and Supply drive to benefit safe house

PETOSKEY — The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan is sponsoring the Harvest Food and Supply Drive. The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan will accept donations from Tuesday, Nov. 1 until Saturday, Dec. 31, at their location at 423 Porter St., Petoskey.

The Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan introduced the food and supply drive to the public as a way to support domestic abuse survivors and their children that come to the safe home from Antrim, Charlevoix, Cheboygan, Emmet and Otsego counties. Donations help restock pantry shelves and make the shelter home to the families utilizing these services.

Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan encourages individuals, groups and organizations to donate to the Harvest Food and Supply Drive. Donations are critical in offsetting annual food and supply costs that exceed $25,000, and will help ensure vital Safe Home services to continue. Bring donations to the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan main office and Gold Mine Resale Shops in Petoskey or to agency offices in Cheboygan, Gaylord and Mancelona. A Safe Home needs list is available online at wrcnm.org.

For more information, or to arrange for item pickup, call (231) 347-1572. Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan Safe Home, operates continuously and provides domestic abuse survivors and their children with a secure, supportive and caring place to stay while they regain control of their lives. Last year, the safe home provided 2,898 nights of refuge to 133 women and children; more than 8,600 meals were provided to shelter residents along with all their daily needs.

CHARLEVOIX — In Charlevoix Township, voters gave support on Nov. 8, to incumbent Chuck Center, who was looking to retain his spot as head of the township against resident Tim Kochanny.

Center defeated Kochanny 535 to 390 receiving 58 percent of the vote. Center thanked voters and congratulated Kochanny on running a good campaign during the election.

"Tim did a good job speaking to voters and I thank him for running a good race," Center said. Center said he looks forward to serving his second four-year term as supervisor. He expects the board will continue the current course of fiscal responsibility and building partnerships with the city.

"One thing the board and I hope to work on is building a cooperative with the city of Charlevoix with fire protection," Center said. "Roads are another issue we will move forward on. We expect to look at bids for resurfacing Waller Road in the spring. We want to remain very responsible with our taxpayers dollars and that means not beginning projects without seeing the money in the bank first."

'Music to keep warm with'

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Circle of the Arts Armchair Theatre will present "Music to Keep Warm With" at 2 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 13.

The audience will listen and dance to the music of The Friends of the Charlevoix City Band under the direction of Gary Stutzman with vocalist JoAnne Beemon, guitarist Rick Beemon and percussionist Alex King.

Stutzman earned his bachelor and master's degrees in music at Northern Michigan University. His successful teaching career began as an assistant to Clarence Odmark in 1970 at Charlevoix High School and continued in various school systems for the next 45 years until retiring in 2015. Stutzman recently turned over the directorship of the Charlevoix City Band to Tom Harder and now enjoys playing in the band as well as the Pine River Jazz Band, Charlevoix Wind Ensemble and Pine River Chamber Band. Stutzman continues to support the arts and is a member of the Performing Arts Committee of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

Music has been an important part of Alex King's life since he picked up a pair of drum sticks at age 2. His grandfather Dick King was a jazz pianist and his father a professional keyboard player. King received his first drum set when he was only 4 years old. Although King also plays piano, guitar and bass, his first love is the drums. Through his high school years in California, King played in a variety of bands. Moving back to Michigan in 2005, he soon was rocking with the Detroit music scene playing with the Detroit Wheels, Mike Corvette and The Dornas touring both the East and West Coast and Japan. For the last five years, he has played with Charlevoix's Root Fusion throughout Northern Michigan. Rick and JoAnne Beemon are longtime residents of Charlevoix and music has played an important part in their lives. Presently JoAnne is a vocalist and Rick is a guitarist with the Up North Big Band playing at venues throughout Northwestern Michigan.

The Armchair Theatre presents programming once a month and has become a unique and anticipated performing arts program in Charlevoix. There is a suggested $5 donation at the door. For more information, visit the Charlevoix Circle of Arts at 100 Chalmers St., Charlevoix or online at www.charlevoixcircleofarts.com.

GLCO Sunday Series to play Castle Farms

CHARLEVOIX — A Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra ensemble will perform at 4 p.m. on Sunday, Nov. 13, at Castle Farms in Charlevoix.

Concertmaster Paul Sonner and friends will present a varied program featuring Lynn Hansen as soloist playing Telemann's "Oboe Concerto in E minor." Georg Philipp Telemann was the godfather to Johann Sebastian Bach's son, Carl Philipp Emanuel Bach. The ensemble will play a "Trio Sonata" by C.P.E. Bach. The initial inspiration for the program was to feature works by the famous three Bs — Bach, Beethoven and Brahms, and in an off-centered way, all three are represented; however, C.P.E. Bach stands in for his father.

In addition to the Baroque era works, Beethoven's "Serenade, Opus 8," will be performed by Sonner and two of his interlochen colleagues, violist Renee Skerik, and cellist, Crispin Campbell. The serenade, traditionally, provides lighter, entertaining music to be performed out of doors in the evening. Beethoven provides a march at the beginning and the work concludes as the musicians march away. The interior movements are full of musical references to popular dance types.

To conclude the program, the ensemble will perform Brahms' "Intermezzo in A major, Opus 118," written for piano and arranged by Pattengale for a string quintet. The intermezzo has active inner voices with counter melodies and rhythms which give the quintet challenging opportunities.

Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra Ensemble members joining Sonner and Hansen include Kaylee Eriewein, violin; Marga Eickholt, cello; Gary Gatzky, bass; and Robert Pattengale, harpsichord and guest artists: Renee Skerik, viola, and Crispin Campbell, cello.

The Sunday Series programs are presented free of charge by the support of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and board trustee, Carolyn Klender. The Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra produces live orchestral performances that provide entertainment, education and inspiration for Northern Michigan. Support for the orchestra is provided by the Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs, the National Endowment for the Arts, the Frey Foundation, the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and hundreds of individual patrons.

Recalled strawberries positive for Hepatitis A

CHARLEVOIX — The Health Department of Northwest Michigan recently published a news release regarding a multi-state outbreak of Hepatitis A cases. A national recall of frozen strawberry product is underway and local health departments are working with the Michigan Department of Agriculture and Rural Development and the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services to investigate potential cases of Hepatitis A exposure linked to a recall of frozen strawberries by the International Company for Agricultural Products and Processing.

The recalled frozen strawberries have been identified in products at local establishments. The recalled items originated from Egypt and were distributed to food service establishments nationwide. It is reported that the following establishments purchased recalled Egyptian strawberries:

- The Ursa Major Bistro (formerly the Blue Caribou Café) located at 245 S. Benzle Blvd., used the berries in strawberry smoothies.
- Best Western Plus Four Seasons located at 305 Munson Ave., Traverse City had recalled strawberries in waffle topping.
- Bigby Coffee at 1004 W. Main St., Gaylord purchased the berries for Red Bull smoothies, banana berry smoothies or strawberry shortcake smoothies.
- Barrel Back Restaurant at N. M-75 in Walloon Lake purchased the berries for use in strawberry daiquiris.
- The Original Pancake House at 4165 Main St., Bay Harbor purchased the berries for strawberry crepes and The Dutch Treat.

Individuals that have consumed any of the frozen strawberry products within the last 14 days should call (231) 995-6800, as vaccination can prevent illness when given within two weeks of exposure to contaminated food.

they were not distributed to individual consumer retail and grocery stores.

Additional potential locations throughout Michigan where these frozen strawberries were identified can be found at www.michigan.gov/documents/mdard.

Individuals that have consumed the frozen strawberries between Sept. 15 and Oct. 20, and developed symptoms consistent with Hepatitis A, should contact their primary care physician.

Hepatitis A is a contagious liver disease that results from exposure to the Hepatitis A virus, commonly from food. It can range from a mild illness lasting a few weeks to a serious illness lasting several months. Illness generally occurs within 14 days of exposure and includes fever, fatigue, loss of appetite, nausea, vomiting, abdominal pain, jaundice, joint pain, dark urine and pale stool. Consumers with symptoms of Hepatitis A should contact their healthcare provider immediately.

Hepatitis A can be prevented by vaccination. Anyone concerned about exposure, should check their vaccination record to determine if you have received two doses of the Hepatitis A vaccination.

Those who have not received two doses of the vaccination, should see their healthcare provider or call their local health department as soon as possible.

Quitline ready to assist with The Great American Smokeout

The American Cancer Society marks the Great American Smokeout on the third Thursday of November each year by encouraging smokers to go the distance and quit smoking for good. By doing so, smokers will be taking an important step toward a healthier life — one that can lead to reducing cancer risk. This year's Great American Smokeout will be observed on Thursday, Nov. 17.

Tobacco use remains the single largest preventable cause of disease and premature death in Michigan, killing more than 16,200 residents each year, yet 20.7 percent of Michigan adults, and 10 percent of Michigan youth smoke cigarettes.

Because tobacco products are highly addictive, most users make several quit attempts before they are successful. However, there are proven resources available to help tobacco users quit. Quitters are most successful when using a combination of therapies, including resources such as nicotine replacement, counseling, self-help materials, and a strong support network of family and friends.

"The Great American Smokeout is an opportunity to remind tobacco users that they can be successful, and to support tobacco users in their efforts to quit," said Katie Joyce, a nurse with the Health Department of Northwest Michigan. "Quitting tobacco use is the single best thing you can do for your health. The positive effects on health are both short and long term, and quitting benefits everyone, regardless of age."

To celebrate the Great American Smokeout, the Health Department of Northwest Michigan is encouraging health care providers to ask their patients about tobacco use at every visit, provide advice to tobacco users about the benefits of quitting, and refer clients to the Michigan Tobacco Quitline (800) 784-8669.

The Michigan Tobacco Quitline is an evidence-based service that continues to provide free telephone coaching for the uninsured, pregnant women, residents enrolled in Medicaid and Medicare, veterans, cancer patients, and American Indians, and free nicotine replacement therapy to those who qualify. Quitline provides services including materials, text messaging, an on-line program and referral to all Michigan residents.

Providers can refer their patients and clients to Quitline, and individual tobacco users can contact Quitline directly at (800) 784-8669, or enroll online at michigan.quitlogix.org/. Additional information, including a fax referral form for providers, is available at the website. Staff and providers in all health care settings can refer patients and clients to the Michigan Tobacco Quitline.

For more information, visit michigan.quitlogix.org/, or call the Health Department of Northwest Michigan at (800) 432-4121. For more information about the Great American Smokeout, visit the American Cancer Society's Web site at www.cancer.org.

The Health Department of Northwest Michigan is mandated by the Michigan Public Health Code to promote wellness, prevent disease, provide quality healthcare, address health problems of vulnerable populations and protect the environment for the residents and visitors of Antrim, Charlevoix, Emmet and Otsego counties.

Early diagnosis focus of National Diabetes Month

ANN ARBOR – During National Diabetes Month this November, the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan will join the International Diabetes Federation to raise awareness of diabetes on Nov. 14 – World Diabetes Day. This year's World Diabetes Day theme is Eyes on Diabetes and will focus on promoting the importance of screening to ensure early diagnosis of type 2 diabetes, and treatment to reduce the risk of serious complications.

Diabetes is a large and growing burden. More than 29 million people in the United States have diabetes, but one out of four don't know they have it. In the state of Michigan, it is estimated that 10.4 percent, 799,350 adults, have been diagnosed with diabetes.

Many people live with type 2 diabetes for a long period of time without being aware of their condition. By the time of diagnosis, diabetes complications may already be present, including kidney failure, cardiovascular disease and blindness. These complications can be prevented or delayed by maintaining blood glucose, blood pressure and cholesterol levels as close to normal as possible.

"Diabetes is the leading cause of kidney failure, causing more than 40 percent of all kidney failure cases," said Dr. Art Franke, senior vice president and chief science officer at the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan. "By focusing on diabetes management and prevention, we are working toward helping people prevent kidney disease altogether."

Managing diabetes is a balancing act, but one that can be mastered. Managing diabetes throughout the day includes following a healthy eating plan, including eating more fruits and vegetables and less sugar and salt; getting physically active — 10 to 20 minutes a day is better than only an hour once a week; taking diabetes medicine as prescribed by your doctor; and testing blood sugar regularly to understand and track how food, activity and medicine affect blood sugar levels.

It's also important for people to pay attention to pre-diabetes, a condition where blood sugar levels are higher than normal, but not high enough yet to be diagnosed as diabetes. In Michigan, more than 2.6 million adults have pre-diabetes. According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, without lifestyle changes, 15-30 percent of people with pre-diabetes will develop type 2 diabetes within five years. By eating healthier and getting more physical activity, people can help prevent pre-diabetes becoming type 2 diabetes in the future.

For additional diabetes resources, community workshops and more, visit the National Kidney Foundation of Michigan at www.nkfm.org/DiabetesMonth or call (800) 482-1455.

Third summer skyrockets SOW business to new levels

Despite setbacks Mexican restaurant still planned

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — On Park Avenue just a half-block off the main tourist drag of Bridge Street, you'll find a surprising sense of optimism despite the location of Julie Mann's restaurant — Smoke on the Water.

Mann said her establishment has had its busiest summer season yet, and she had to hire more staff to help in the kitchen to keep up with the amount of patrons eating there each day.

"It has definitely been a great year for us," Mann said. "This summer skyrocketed us. The first two years were difficult especially being a half-block off the main drag, which makes a huge difference."

She's grateful for patrons that have allowed her to grow in Charlevoix. Mann owes the success to loyal customers and downtown shop owners whose word-of-mouth of her food has boosted pedestrian traffic to her location.

"Word of mouth has been our biggest driver," Mann said. "We get a lot of people coming in telling us people have told them to come here because we are the best place to get breakfast. We hear that all the time. It is pretty awesome to have the support from the community."

"But being number one on apps like Trip Adviser most of the time also has increased interest. It really helps a lot," Mann added.

Everything Mann prepares at Smoke on the water is made in house right down to the ketchup that is served with her famous truffle French fries.

"It was always my vision to serve made from scratch food," Mann said. "That is the most important feature to me. I do not want to serve somebody else's food. I like customers to eat food made from my kitchen. Everything from our bread to the ketchup is made in house."

Mann opened in Charlevoix two-years ago, but her journey to get here was unique.

Her grandmother owned a restaurant in Minneapolis, when she was a kid. Though it was sold when Mann was only 8, her memories of the diner are still with her today.

"It was one of those old time diners with a music box on each table, like the ones you see in old movies," Mann said. "She had it for 17 years before selling it. I was real young at the time, but still remember going there."

Her culinary career kind of began when she was working at the Palomino, a fine dining establishment in Minneapolis, she said.

"It was there I started getting interested in better quality food because this place had great food," Mann said. "I developed great taste as a kid and expanded as an adult."

She always enjoyed grilling and barbecuing and while working at the Palomino she expanded her knowledge at home.

"I started experimenting with different recipes and began smoking different meats on my Weber grill," Mann said. "I enjoyed the smoking aspect of cooking and wanted to expand on that."

It was around that time she met her husband, Ed, a Charlevoix resident who was in Minnesota working. From there the couple moved to Grand Rapids doing odd jobs and some catering. The couple went back to Minnesota to assist her son, who was in car accident.

While in Minnesota, Mann worked at a financial firm as a temp for three days a week.

The company she was temping at wanted her to stay and got her in a permanent position. Mann ended up getting her documents to be a financial advisor. She then got laid off and another firm hired her because I had the proper licenses — Series 7 and 66 — to be a financial advisor. It was then she discovered she could work from home, which led her to move with Ed to Charlevoix.

"I found out I could work from home and that's how we ended up back in Charlevoix and two years later we signed the papers and bought this restaurant," Mann said.

Before opening Smoke on the Water, Mann and her husband Ed were doing some catering in Boyne City with the smoker the couple purchased in Georgia — the same smoker she uses today.

They sold ribs and pulled pork sandwiches for the full summer, but Mann did not like the mobility of catering. Her real dream was a brick-and-mortar establishment open year-round in Charlevoix. Once they place was found the menu was the next decision.

"When we opened I wanted to serve lunch and diner, and Ed wanted breakfast and lunch and of course he won," Mann said. "I never cooked breakfast before. Ed always cooked that meal, but now love it. It is my favorite meal to cook. We are proud to be the most popular breakfast place in Charlevoix. We are extremely busy each breakfast and our Sunday brunch has really taken off. It's not a buffet it is a brunch menu."

From the popular drunken French toast, apple bourbon banana bread to pulled pork sliders; Mann looks to incorporate more breakfast and lunch specials each day.

She even flirted with the idea of opening an authentic Mexican restaurant, but said unforeseen circumstances kept her from moving forward on those plans.

"We were wrapping up our financing and getting all of our ducks in a row, but we ended up butting heads a bit with the property manager at the space we were considering," Mann said. "The owner of the building decided to chose a retail shop. The biggest disappointment about that was it was the only space on Bridge Street that would of fit our restaurant, but it wasn't the only space on Bridge Street that could accommodate retail space."

"Personally it would of been a win, win for the town to fill two spaces than one, but things happen and we moved on," she added.

It was soon after that news Mann began negotiations with the owner of the Consign Design building behind Van Pelt Alley, but then Luther Kurtz bought the building, Mann said.

Julie Mann, owner of Smoke on the Water, takes pride in serving quality smoked foods and house made food for customers to enjoy.

Smoke on the Water remains open year-round serving breakfast and lunch to hungry customers.

ZBA tackles corner lots in zoning ordinance

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Members of the Zoning Board of Appeals admitted the ordinance for corner lots in the city is vague and required some clearing up at a recent meeting on Nov. 2.

There is inconsistent language in the Zoning Ordinance about how to determine the front lot line of a parcel in single-family residential districts for corner lots. The following sections related to corner lots are Sections 5.11(1) and 5.60(1).

One section makes the claim: For a corner lot, the front lot line shall be the shortest of the two lot lines tangent to the street right-of-way or road easement. Another section claims this: A corner lot shall have two front lot lines: a principal front lot line and a secondary front lot line. The principal front lot line shall be the location of the traditional front entrance of the structure.

"I can see how this could cause some confusion," said Greg Bryan ZBA member.

The Planning Commission referred this to the ZBA after Charlevoix resident Madelyn Renaud of 503 West Huribut St., brought the matter before the board because of a dispute over property line, garage and a shed on a neighboring property.

Renaud was upset with how the law defined a corner lot and hoped to see the issue resolved.

"I am glad the ZBA saw there was an issue with the ordinance, but I am not happy about the decision," Renaud said. "It is these little things in the law that drive you crazy with zoning."

The ZBA decided to clean up the language by suggesting a corner lot to have to front lot lines and two side lot lines.

This will now be sent to the Planning Commission to clean up the ordinance.

"Once the Planning Commission is finished they then send it on to the City Council to be voted on so the ordinance change can take place, if approved by council," said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

On April 18, while riding in a reconnaissance vehicle while clutching a machine gun he had only recently learned to dismantle and use, John Srigley was killed by enemy fire. He was part of a cavalry reconnaissance squadron in Gen. George Patton's 3rd Army in Germany. John had crossed the Moselle and Rhine Rivers in the advance before he was killed in action in the Battle of the Bulge, the decisive battle that ended the German invasion into Netherlands.

The war would be over soon (May 6, 1945, VE, Victory Europe Day), but not soon enough for John who had become a casualty. He would not come home. John Srigley is buried in Margraten, the Netherlands-American National Cemetery and Memorial, alongside some 8,000 other American comrades whose bodies never made it home. John left behind a grieving family in Pontiac, his mother, father and two younger brothers, Bruce and Roger.

"We got the telegram telling about John's death when our parents weren't home," recalled Roger Srigley, of Petoskey. "My brother, Bruce was 12, but I was only seven and didn't understand why he was crying. My parents never went over there. I'm not sure why they made the decision not to bring his body home."

The Srigley family was hard-working, patriotic and church-going, according to Roger, who has become the guardian of letters and photos and other memorabilia from the war and his brother's short life. The Srigleys were members of the Pontiac Central Methodist Church and his father, Harold, worked at Pontiac Motors. John attended high school in Pontiac where he was quite popular according to Roger. He was active in scouting and had achieved the rank of first class scout. He was a member of DeMolay, a youth leadership group, and their acting chaplain, an accomplished pianist, a member of the high school band, and was president of youth fellowship at the Central Methodist Church.

"He was just a regular guy," Srigley said. "He was naive I suppose, but he wasn't an angel."

John was engaged to a high school sweetheart, Claire, until the fact that she was a first generation German/American presented a loyalty conflict. John grew up quickly; he experienced war and witnessed its atrocities. He became bedfellows with boys from entirely different upbringings.

"The (two) boys I ride with," John continued in his letter," are the best...I've taken a lot of razzing from the (other) boys because I'm 19 and haven't been in any sporting houses yet. I guess I'm the only 'virgin' in the troop. Ha. Ha! They get a kick out of razzing me, though I don't mind it at all...these guys are all from Tennessee...have bootlegged whiskey a fourth of their lives, fought in beer gardens a fourth of their lives, been drunk and run a gas station a fourth of their lives, and mistreated sheep and stole from anyone they could 'snow' or persuade into giving them something the other fourth of their lives...I know every one of them has been in jail at some time or another...and so you can see how hard it is for a church-going 'virgin,' non-drinking, honest guy like me to get along with these guys!"

In his letter, he often apologized to his parents for complaining about his situation and threw in a little comic relief by confiding in them about one raid that led them all into getting drunk on German Schnapps, his first brush with a bad hangover. Ironically he discovered that the incident had occurred on March 14, his birthday.

"I was drunk for the first time on my 19th birthday and didn't even know it was my birthday," he wrote. "It won't happen again! A guy feels too helpless—can't even manipulate around."

After the war and after the news of John's death an amazing grace presented itself to the Srigley family. A Catholic Church in Simpleveldt, Netherlands which was not far from the cemetery, 14 kilometers, began a mission which would result in a life-long friendship between the Srigleys and one of the church families. The mission was an outreach of appreciation for the American liberation of Netherlands.

The parish sought volunteers to "adopt a grave" of one of the American soldiers buried in the cemetery. They were asked to maintain the plot and to make visits in memory of the fallen soldiers. The Snackers were one such family. They contacted the Srigleys to announce their intent of keeping vigil over their son's grave.

Simpleveldt, Sept. 8, 1947

In the first place our deepest sympathy in the loss of your son, John who for us gave his life so we could be freed from the Nazis. When we adopted his grave, we did not know if he was a father or a son, but to us they were all heroes and friends and all we can do is put flowers on their resting place...John was buried in Margraten on June 21st, 1945. He rests there with all his friends and we people pray and bring flowers to express our thankfulness for our won freedom...Leo, Nette, Willy, Marion, Elsie (Snackers)

The two families exchanged correspondence and gifts over the years, and even today, a grandson of the original Snackers family, Bart Smits, continues to carry the torch and continue the effort. In a letter to the senior Srigleys in 1996, he wrote

"Ever since I was a little kid, I went to Margraten with Grandpa on D-Day and every time I was there it impressed me very much...Before I send this letter grandma gave me everything of you. From photographs to old letters and of course your Christmas cards you send every year," Smits wrote.

Roger Srigley, today, treasures the letters that attest to the relationship his family and the Snackers established many years ago as a result of John's death. He has visited his brother's grave at Margraten on two occasions and has met the Snackers to express his family's appreciation.

"One more coincidence in this story," Srigley said. "I am not Catholic, but I often attend services at St. Francis Church in Petoskey. Ten years ago, an associate pastor of the former pastor Fr. Andre, Fr. Willie Hegener, called me aside after he found out that I had been discussing John and his service during the war with some of the parishioners. He actually knew John and had been a chaplain in his battalion. I he wondered if I knew that John, being a talented pianist, often played for USO troop entertainment. Apparently he played with Mickey Rooney."

One can only wonder what John's future might have been. His life is frozen in time within the words of his letters home, while his body rests far away, beneath a simple white cross in Netherlands, a country he fought to liberate when he was just a boy.

The Margraten Adopt a Grave Foundation

The "Margraten American Cemetery Adopt a Grave Foundation" offers interested parties the opportunity to adopt the grave of a fallen liberator. This is a phenomenon found nowhere else in the world on this scale. The project was started at the end of the war.

new mayor.

"I will support the new mayor on city council," Gibson said.

In the city's 1st Ward Janet Kalbfell defeated Bob Bergmann 292 to 235, taking 55 percent of the vote. The two political newcomers ran for the vacant seat left open by Kurtz.

Kalbfell said she is happy with the election results and thanked her supporters and opponent for a good campaign.

"Bob Bergmann ran a good campaign and I hope he will want to work with city council moving forward," Kalbfell said. "I want to thank everyone who supported me in this race."

Kalbfell looks forward to working with council on a number of issues she highlighted during her campaign. One of them is park protection.

"I think the first thing council needs to address is the parks issue," Kalbfell said. "We need to tighten up the charter to prevent some of the possible problems that were brought up during the campaign." Oleksy defeated incumbent Bill Supernaw 222 to 197 for the city's 2nd Ward seat.

Oleksy said he appreciated the support of the voters and looks forward to serving his constituents.

"I wish to thank the voters of the 2nd Ward for their confidence in electing me to city council," Oleksy said. "In return I will work with the council and represent the city and the 2nd Ward to the best of my ability."

The conservation easement charter amendment was defeated with 816 no votes to 604 yes votes.

The easement ballot question was a petition initiative by a group of citizens in Charlevoix that wanted voters to make the decision about a conservation easement for Lake Michigan Beach Park and Mount McSauba Recreation Area.

"We ran honest campaign," said John Campbell, easement supporter. "I am very pleased that the people of Charlevoix were able to decide this measure."

Gibson who was one of the council members that encouraged this issue to be placed on the ballot agreed with Campbell that the decision was up the voters.

"The most important thing to me is the people of our city were allowed to vote on this," Gibson said. "This type of question should never be decided by six council members."

regarding board priorities based on interscholastic athletic policies, cost in relationship to who'll pay for practice, contests, uniforms, facilities, maintenance costs, coaches and officials and other guidelines and procedures for schools to consider from the MHSAA when forming a sports co-op.

Dvoracek met with Ritter and Joseph in August to first discuss a potential cooperative agreement after applying for and earning MHSAA membership status.

St. Mary School, which has 78 total students including six seventh-graders this year, lacks the students, facilities and adequate staff to support an athletic program on their own.

"There were thoughtful presentations from community members that are passionate about a potential co-op and very thoughtful consideration from the board of education," Ritter said.

"I'm a bridge-builder by nature and I'm always open to helping kids achieve and have access to things," Ritter added. "But as our board eloquently spoke of tonight they are charged with the duty of making sure they are providing opportunities first and foremost to the students under their charge."

Joseph said he believed the second motion regarding a cooperative agreement for track and field this coming spring season was a fair compromise.

"I think what should happen going forward is that the two administrators with their teams, Travis (Garrett, Charlevoix athletic director) should attempt to put together a proposal that the board could consider next spring to see if there's a way to do a co-op or not," Joseph said.

"If there's no way to come up with that kind of a proposal that passes, then we won't do it," Joseph added. "It sounds to me like the board is open to the suggestion of doing this for sports where there's no cuts and when the issue of cost can be addressed somehow."

According to MHSAA guidelines, cooperative arrangements should be sought only in sports where opportunities are not limited and it is not anticipated that students will be cut from a team.

Also, cooperative agreements are not intended for a single participant for a year or two, but for a significant group of students for several years.

Dvoracek said she appreciated hearing from each school board member at the meeting and for their comments.

"It's disappointing, but at the same time I'm glad to have heard from the board for the first time," Dvoracek said. "I'm glad they spoke and now we basically know where we stand and we can move forward and make plans with what we're going to do for the best of our kids."

"At least now I know where we stand with the board members and I guess we can move on," Dvoracek added.

"That needed to happen for me."

Rayders historic run ends

Charlevoix soccer team falls to Cougars in semifinal

CEDAR SPRINGS — Even the best moments in life have to come to an end.

For the Charlevoix boys soccer team and its 12 seniors, that moment came on Wednesday, as the Rayders fell to top-ranked Grand Rapids Catholic Central 3-1 in a Division 3 semifinal at Cedar Springs to end its season.

The Rayders put forth a furious rally in the final 15 minutes to try and mount a comeback, scoring once to cut into the lead, but in the end it came up short.

Freshman Blaise Snabes got the comeback started for Charlevoix, receiving the ball deep in his own end and going the length of the field and past several Cougars defenders before beating goalkeeper Noah Hughes with a streaking shot in the box to get the Rayders on the board with 12 minutes to play.

"Anytime you get a goal in the last 20 minutes, and especially one on an individual effort like that, it gives you a spark," Charlevoix coach Jon Boss said. "That goal came at the right time for us, and we used the momentum we got from that to create more

Bollini repeats as All-State honoree, leads Rayder state final effort

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Michigan International Speedway has been a familiar destination for the Charlevoix cross country team over the years.

A place among the Division 3 all-state honorees is also becoming familiar for Rayder junior Michelle Bollini.

For the second straight year, Bollini earned a top 30 finish at the Division 3 state final to place herself among the elite runners in Michigan, taking 14th overall in 19:29.

Bollini set a comfortable rhythm early in the race just outside the top 30, then turned on the jets in the back half of the race, passing nearly 20 competitors to become all-state for the second straight year.

"It's really exciting to get back here again and beat

BOYNE CITY — Part of the responsibility of being a senior captain on any team is stepping up and taking charge when things are going wrong.

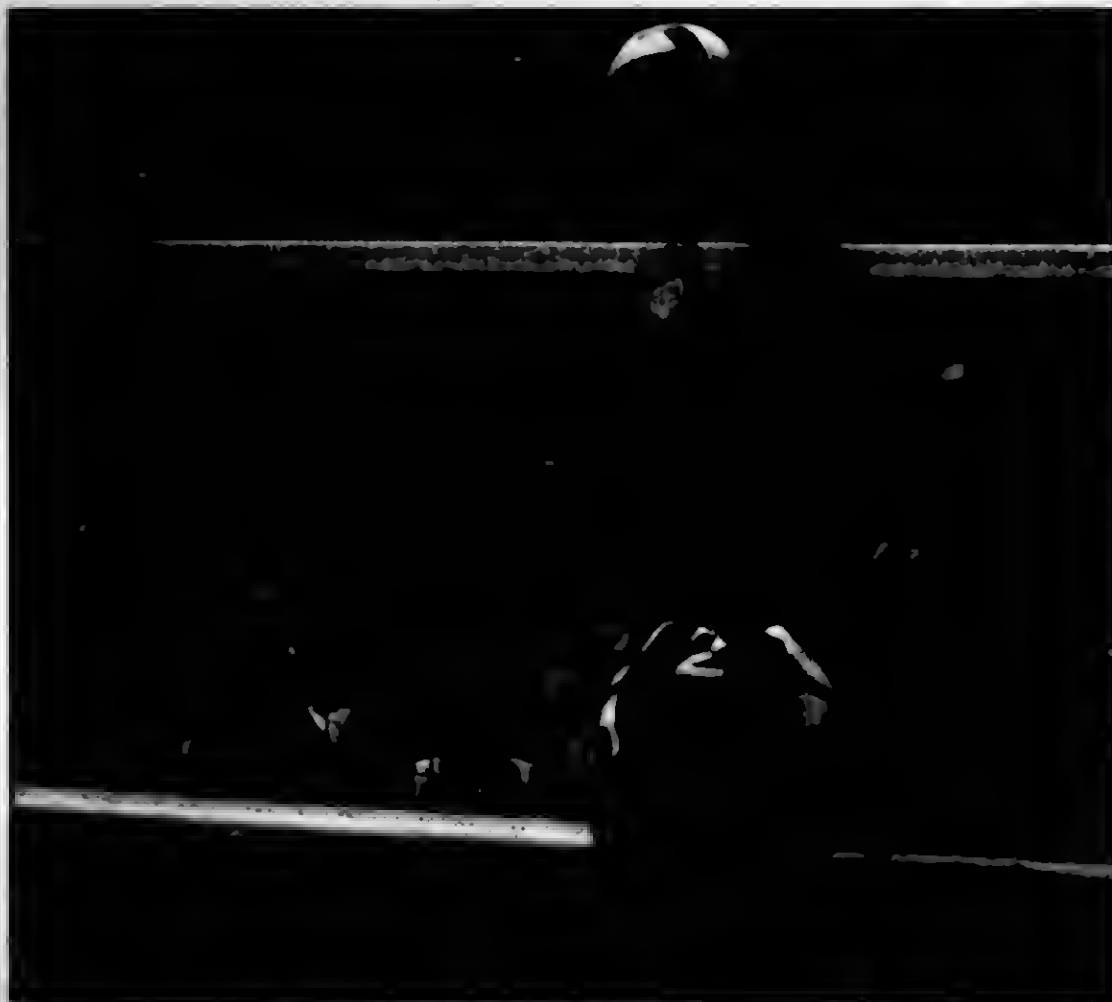

With Charlevoix needing to overcome slow starts in all three of their sets against regional semifinal opponent Johannesburg, Lewiston on Tuesday in Boyne City, that responsibility fell on seniors Becca Moon and Kenzy O'Leary.

And the pair delivered, pulling Charlevoix out of the fire in all three sets and igniting runs that helped the Rayders roll to a 26-24, 25-13, 25-13 victory and their second regional final appearance in three seasons.

"We talked about it in the locker room (before the match), how important our seniors are at this stage because of their experience and leadership, and on top of that (Becca and Kenzy) are two of our most skilled players, regardless of age," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "They came out focused and with a great attitude tonight, and really took charge when we needed it."

With Charlevoix trailing 24-22 and facing set point in the first set, Moon stepped to the service line and served out, helping the Rayders score the next four points to take the set and seal the momentum.

The senior came up big again with three straight kills in set 2 to help turn a 12-11 deficit into a 25-13 victory, and was the one at the service line as the Rayders pulled away in set 3 to seal the match as well.

Charlevoix's Becca Moon (10) blocks Juburg's Haley McVannell during the Rayders' sweep of the Cardinals in regional play on Tuesday in Boyne City.

Overall, Moon had one of her best nights offensively as a Rayder, finishing with 16 kills, five aces, 11 assists and 13 digs.

O'Leary was at the service line as well during Charlevoix's 14-1 run to end Set 2, and finished with five kills, two aces, 15 assists and 15 digs to make a big impact as well.

Senior Beth Veenstra also stepped up with four kills, three aces, three blocks and a strong night serving for the Rayders, while the Charlevoix back row of Julia Doskoich, Ali Jarema and Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta combined for 19 digs and 25/26 on serve-receive.

Freshman Elise Stuck also chipped in 11 kills, one ace, five blocks and nine digs as the Rayders shook off error-plagued starts in all three sets and ended the night in dominant fashion in both the second and third set.

"We definitely made some mistakes and some things we need to clean up heading into Thursday, but I thought we

Opinion:

Rayders' special fall a sign of athletic program's strength

Considered one by one, the individual success of Charlevoix's fall sports teams isn't that surprising.

But add them all together, and it's remarkable that a school with under 400 students could have this kind of sustained success in the same season in every single one of its athletic programs.

On the boys side, the Rayder soccer team was the only public school program and one of just four statewide in Division 3 to reach the semifinal, falling to eventual state champion Grand Rapids Catholic my time and place from last year," Bollini said. "I took it easy and stayed calm for the first mile, and then focused on working my way up to the next group and just keep passing people."

Bollini led an excellent effort by the Rayder girls, who finished ninth overall in the state, up from an 18th place finish last season.

Big runs from freshmen Emma Wachler (85th, 20:58), Emmaline Peterson (131st, 21:35) and Megan Scholten (157th, 22:00) in their first state finals appearance helped Charlevoix move up, and Wachler's improvement in particular has helped transform the Rayders.

"(Emma) had a big jump from running in the 23s midway through the season to breaking 20 by the conference meet, and it was all a mental choice," Charlevoix coach Doug Drenth said. "She realized that the limits she'd been setting for herself were artificial, and that if she just went out there and ran without limits, maybe she could do something special.

"It's something that's kind of been emblematic of our entire season and a lot of the improvements we've made as a team."

Another Rayder that made a big leap on Saturday was junior Rachel Nesburg, who ran one of her best times of the year to finish 121st (21:27) and place for Charlevoix, while senior Isabel Hess finished 89th (21:06) in a solid final outing.

The Rayder boys also wrapped up their season with a strong finish, taking 14th in the state in a deep and fast field that was one of the best Division 3 has seen in a while.

Charlevoix's Noah Carson wrapped up a stellar career by breaking 17 on the state final course and taking 33rd (18:56), just three spots shy of all-state honors for himself.

Fellow seniors David Ritter (83rd, 17:31) and Luke Buday (87th, 17:32) were close behind with solid finishes in their final races as well.

"Noah, David and Luke all had great finishes to their cross country careers on a tough course and against a tough field today," Drenth said. "All three of those guys are running great and still have room to get even better."

"They're motivated, starting to see their true potential and are really excited for track season and what I think is going to be an amazing year when it's all said and done."

Freshman Ben Lentz (165th, 18:17) and junior Ben Peterson (187th, 18:51) had strong finishes as well to round out the scoring runners for the Rayders, and Caleb Kenwabikse (204th, 19:17) and Joshua Carlson (212th, 19:28) placed as well.

counterbalanced those mistakes with a lot of spectacular plays as well," Randall said. "Overall, I was really happy with our effort and the way we overcame a slow start."

"I think a lot of our problems tonight were just the nerves you always have when you're playing a match of this magnitude, and I think we'll be able to handle it better on Thursday."

The Rayders will seek their first regional title since 2011 on Thursday against a familiar foe in Lake Michigan Conference champion Traverse City St. Francis.

The fifth-ranked team in Class C according to MIVCA, the Gladiators are a familiar foe for the Rayders, having beaten them in two conference matches this season and having won several meetings over the last three years.

That said, Charlevoix did win the two teams' most recent matchup, a three-set thriller in the quarterfinals of the Leland invite, giving the Rayders confidence that they can pull the upset.

St. Francis also needed five sets to get by McBain in the other regional semifinal, overcoming a 2-0 lead for the Ramblers, who Charlevoix also had a late-season win against.

"We're excited for that match, because I feel like our players have the exact right attitude heading into it," Randall said. "We respect St. Francis, but our players didn't want them to lose to McBain tonight."

"We wanted to get a chance to play them in a winner-take-all match and take our best shot, and I think that's a sign that we're confident in ourselves and we're focused on the task ahead."

That match will take place on Thursday at 6 p.m. in Boyne City, with the winner advancing to Charlevoix for the quarterfinal next Tuesday against either Calumet or Rudyard for a spot in the final four in Battle Creek.

Look for coverage of those matches in the Nov. 18 edition of the Charlevoix Courier.

Charlevoix 3, Inland Lakes 0

EAST JORDAN — It didn't take long for the Charlevoix volleyball team to make it clear that they were bringing home a third straight district championship on Thursday in East Jordan.

The Rayders seized control of the match early in the first set and never let up, sweeping past district final opponent Inland Lakes in a 25-14, 25-14, 25-13 victory thanks to a stellar team defensive effort.

Against a team that had shown its offensive talent in a district semifinal victory against Harbor Springs on Wednesday, the Rayders left no openings for Bulldogs to exploit and quieted Inland Lakes at the net.

With effective blocking at the net, strong back-row play and good backup on tips, Charlevoix had an answer for everything Inland Lakes threw at it in the victory.

The Rayders were especially dominant at the net, as Moon, Elise Stuck, Ellie Louiselle, Beth Veenstra and Kenzy O'Leary combined to shut down the Bulldogs' impressive outside hitters and force Inland Lakes on the defensive.

That allowed Charlevoix to control the pace offensively and tee off on kill attempts, helping several of their hitters to have big nights.

Stuck finished with 10 kills, 10 blocks and nine digs to lead the Rayders, Moon chipped in 10 kills, three aces, 10 digs and 19 assists and Veenstra added nine kills and a block.

O'Leary chipped in six kills, 11 assists, three blocks and nine digs, Louiselle added four blocks and two kills, and Nichole Hart finished with two blocks.

Julia Doskoch, Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta and Ali Jarema combined for 23 digs and 100% on serve receive in the back row for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix 3, East Jordan 1

EAST JORDAN — The Rayders got a tough test against East Jordan on Wednesday for their Class C district semifinal matchup, as the Red Devils stormed out to a win in the opening set, but Charlevoix quickly recovered to take the match 3-1.

After being tied at 18, East Jordan took a 23-20 lead then used that momentum to take a 25-21 opening set win.

In the second set, Charlevoix again pulled out to an early lead in a 7-3 game, but back came the Red Devils to tie the set at 11-11.

Charlevoix's attack then took over late, as they kept their composure to take a 25-22 win.

That momentum of tying the match at 1-1 rolled over for a big set three for the Rayders, as a 15-8 lead midway through eventually turned into a 25-12 win for Charlevoix.

After being down a set early on the night, Charlevoix had a chance to close out the Red Devils in set three, but the close would come as their toughest test yet.

Holding a 22-17 lead late, the deficit for East Jordan shrunk from five down to two after a hit into the net by the Rayders, but a kill from Rayder senior Nichole Hart and then an ace by Beth Veenstra got Charlevoix to a 24-20 lead.

An eventual kill by freshman Elise Stuck finished off the Red Devils and sent Charlevoix to another district final appearance.

Stuck led Charlevoix with 16 kills, 21 digs, three aces and two blocks, while Moon had nine kills, 29 digs and four aces.

Also for the Rayders, Kenzy O'Leary had five kills, 10 digs and four aces, Veenstra had five kills, two aces, two blocks and four digs and Julia Doskoch added 10 digs an ace and went 13-for-14 on serve receive.

chances.

"We came awfully close to getting a second goal and starting to push for a third, but we just couldn't put it in the back of the net, and we ran out of time."

Grand Rapids Catholic Central proved to be too much for the Rayders in the first 60 minutes, winning the majority of the 50/50 balls and creating three goals to take a commanding lead.

Alec Winden got the Cougars on the board 17 minutes in, cleaning up a rebound that the Rayders couldn't clear, and added a second goal on a beautiful through ball right before the half.

Up 2-0, Catholic Central turned the pressure up in the second half, and while Charlevoix goalkeeper Jacob Harrod turned back several chances with strong saves to keep the Rayders in the game, the Cougars eventually broke through with a goal by Fernando Garcia in the 54th minute to make it 3-0.

"Credit to Catholic Central, they're an excellent team, and they came out and played 80 minutes at a championship level," Boss said. "I thought our effort was good at the start, but we weren't able to match their intensity until the final 20 minutes, and by that point we were down three goals."

"If we play the full 80 minutes the way we played the last 20, the game is a lot closer, and maybe it's a different outcome, but we didn't and Catholic Central did."

The loss to the Cougars, now 20-1-3 and the likely favorite to bring home the Division 3 title on Saturday, doesn't diminish what the Rayders (19-5-3) accomplished this season.

After a rocky start, Charlevoix won its second-straight district title, then took home the regional championship for the first time in school history and becoming the only public school and the only school under 500 enrollment to reach the Division 3 final four.

It's a fitting end for the Rayder seniors, who won two conference titles, two district titles and a regional crown in the last three years as a unit on varsity.

"This group did something no one in the history of the program has done, and tonight they proved they belonged and that that accomplishment was no fluke," Boss said. "They should be tremendously proud of what they accomplished this year, and I'm incredibly proud to have been their coach for this run."

"It's been a blast, and it's something I know all of us will remember for the rest of our lives."

Senior starters Christian Matye, Kevin Pearl, Nick Bradley, Matt Good, David Ritter, Noah Carson, Cam Clark, Graham Kroon, and Collin Turkleson all leave a lasting legacy with the Rayder soccer program, with Ty Fuchs, Wesley Crandell and Vladimir Barneveld each making major contributions to the last three years as well.

All told, the senior class has set a great example for classes to come to follow.

"The thing that stands out the most about this group is their ability, and the hard work they put in every day to turn that ability into results," Boss said. "They really are a special group of guys, and it's been an honor to coach them."

Central in a 3-1 match.

That's in the same season that the football program went 7-3 and was one of 32 schools to qualify for the Division 6 playoff, and at the same time that the boys cross country team reached the state finals and finished 14th out of 146 schools.

Not to be outdone, Charlevoix's girls squads had banner years as well.

The Rayder girls cross country team finished ninth in Division 3 at the state final, the girls golf team made its first state final appearance in program history with a runner-up finish at the regional, and Charlevoix's volleyball team has already collected a district title and will be playing for a regional title and a spot in the final eight in Class C on Thursday.

It's a significant amount of success across the board for a school of Charlevoix's size. Ordinarily, the limited pool of potential athletes to draw from would make it a virtual impossibility to field this many statewide-competitive teams in the same season.

So how has Charlevoix managed this kind of success? I see four factors that have allowed the Rayders to excel in this fall season.

First, something has to be said about the depth of the talent pool Charlevoix is drawing from. The Rayders are blessed with several strong classes of athletes, and especially in a gifted senior class that should finish with several all-state honors across their various sports in the coming weeks.

That manifested itself clearly on the playing field, as time and time again the Rayders' experience, talent and senior leadership helped Charlevoix win important games and bring home trophies.

Secondly, Charlevoix has an excellent set of coaches at the helm of their fall athletic programs, and an incredibly motivated and skilled set of assistant and subvarsity coaches supporting the head coaches behind the scenes.

Ron Bindi, Jon Boss, Doug Drenth, Audra Randall and Jennifer Sell, along with their staffs, all have impressed me with their knowledge, passion, leadership and teaching ability in my time in this position, and definitely deserve their share of the credit for this season's success.

Their impact on Charlevoix athletics can be seen in the results they put out every year, and they've earned plenty of recognition from neutral parties as well, whether it's Bindi bringing home the Detroit Lions Coach of the Week award earlier this season, or Sell earning regional coach of the year honors from the MIGCA.

Third, the Charlevoix athletic department, headed by Travis Garrett, has done a great job of maximizing the Rayders' limited talent pool with well-designed policies on dual-sport athletes and facility usage.

Multiple Charlevoix teams benefited from the use of dual sport athletes this fall, including soccer and boys cross country, which each got huge contributions from seniors Noah Carson and David Ritter on the way to their strong finishes.

By developing a routine and flexible system of allowing athletes to compete in two sports at once, encouraging cooperation between coaches and laying out clear responsibilities for all parties at once, the Rayders gave all of their teams the best chance to be successful this fall and should serve as a model for other schools looking to make such arrangements work without major headaches.

Finally, Charlevoix has been fostering an amazing culture among its student athletes for the last couple of years that is bearing fruit so far this season.

You can see it in the stands at any Rayder athletic event, as athletes from various other sports are a constant presence cheering on whatever team is playing.

That encouragement and positive support between athletes, as well as the motivation coming from seeing their fellow peers succeed on the field and wanting that success for themselves, has been a huge part of this fall run.

No matter how you slice it, there's no denying Charlevoix's athletic program is in a good place right now.

With the winter season coming, that could mean even more hardware and honors coming the Rayders' way.

Veterans Day

2016

History OF VETERANS DAY

SAM ERICKSON

The first Armistice Day celebration took place in 1919 and marked the first anniversary of the Armistice. Thirty states made it a legal holiday and President Woodrow Wilson led the festivities. Armistice Day was made a federal holiday in 1938, making it one of the most recent holidays in America. The name was officially changed to Veterans Day with legislation proposed in 1953.

Most holidays in the United States have been moved to Mondays to create a long weekend. The same was done for Veterans Day, but veterans groups protested and it was moved back to the traditional date of November 11. Most groups thought it would raise the profile of the holiday, but it has, in fact, had the opposite effect. While more people are observing the holiday in recent years, most businesses do not close for the day. Only government offices and banks are closed. Official ceremonies center on the Tomb of the Unknowns in Arlington National Cemetery in Washington, D.C. A color guard from all branches of the military patrols the site through the night, a presidential wreath is laid and Taps is played over the grave.

Veterans Day is both a state and a federal holiday in all states. It coincides with international celebrations of Armistice Day and Remembrance Day in other parts of the world. The holiday is observed on November 11 because major hostilities in World War I were ended formally at 11 a.m. on the 11th day of November, the 11th month, in 1918 when Germany signed the Armistice at the Versailles Palace in Paris. Veterans Day has a different focus than Memorial Day, as Veterans Day is intended to honor and thank the living veterans in the United States for their service and to acknowledge their contributions to American society.

How does Veterans Day differ from Memorial Day?

Memorial Day is meant to honor and remember veterans who have died in the service of their country or because of wounds from service. Veterans Day is meant to honor all veterans.

Gaylord Quilts of Valor group honoring veterans

LORENE PARSHALL

GAYLORD — The Gaylord Quilts of Valor group is on a mission to track down every World War II veteran in Otsego County and encompass them in the healing warmth of a quilt created to honor their service.

Quilts of Valor is a national program of volunteers who have created more than 140,000 quilts for veterans. Originally, the Gaylord group was sending the quilts they made to the Michigan representative of the program, but recently decided there were vets in their own backyard who should be honored.

Longtime quilter Judy Stone is the original founder of the Gaylord group and, along with Diane Sehiak, co-chair of the local program.

"I had heard of Quilts of Valor, and once I retired, I was looking for a way to give back to the community," Stone said. "I started Quilts of Valor in 2013 with Delphine (Miller) at her quilt shop. She sells older quilting books and magazines for $1 and puts the money in a jar to help us buy supplies. So far we have completed 35 quilts."

Stone said after every World War II veteran in the county receives a quilt, the group will create quilts for Korean War, then Vietnam vets.

On Friday, Sept. 16, World War II veteran Al Nearing was presented a quilt on his 97th birthday. His wife, Ruth, children and their spouses celebrated the occasion with him at the Gaylord Regional Airport where the quilt ceremony was held.

Nearing was drafted into the U.S. Army as a communications chief and among the many medals he won was a Silver Star and five bronze medals. He was honorably discharged with the rank of first sergeant.

Stationed in Salzburg, Austria, during the war, Nearing was present at the Dachau Concentration Camp in Germany the day after the Allied Forces liberated the camp. He said local townspeople were required to go through the camp to ensure they understood the horrific things that had taken place there.

Kandus Schalter, who enlisted in the U.S. Navy in 1943, was honored with a quilt in August. She served out the war in Washington, D.C., in the communication field — women didn't usually serve overseas at that time — and was honorably discharged with a rank of petty officer second class. She, too, was honored at the airport, accompanied by a group of close friends she'd known for years and a great-niece.

Schalter had the additional honor of being at the airport when U.S. Army Reserve and member of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, four-star Gen. Joseph L. Lengyel, and U.S. Army Reserve Brig. Gen. Leonard Isabelle Jr., commander of the Michigan National Guard, flew in on their way to Camp Grayling to take part in a large military exercise. Both officers commended Schalter on her service.

The first veteran given a Quilt of Valor once the group decided to focus on local vets was lifelong Gaylord resident Clarence "Pee Wee" Ralston. He was honorably discharged as a corporal with a tech five classification.

Members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars Post 1518 or of the VFW Auxiliary were present when all three quilts were awarded to the vets.

Diane Newman is facilitator of the local quilt program. She tracks down the vets, interviews them and arranges dates, times, locations and contacts everyone who will participate. She also gives a brief history of the veterans' lives at the beginning of the programs.

"I became involved because I have a huge interest in the needs of veterans," she said. "I was a part of the group that made quilts for the veterans at Patriot Place. Why not comfort our veterans by putting a quilt around their shoulders?"

Newman said she had the names of four World War II veterans when they began the local program, so she has one more to go. But she has heard there are more veterans of that war in the county, and she is determined to track them down.

"Tom Brokaw had it right," she said, referring to the newscaster who wrote a book about the World War II era. "They truly are 'The Greatest Generation.'"

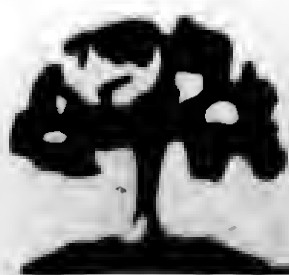

The Quilts of Valor group meets the third Thursday of every month at Delphine's Quilt Shop, 114 N. Otsego Ave. For more information, contact Judy Stone at (231) 262-1018.

Local group connecting veterans with civilians through camps

ARIELLE BREEN

GAYLORD — Everyone has a story.

Team Red White and Blue Gaylord is using this concept to help smash the stereotype that civilians and veterans are unable to relate to one another — one story and one relationship at a time.

Earlier this month, a room full of strangers came together for a Team RWB storytelling camp event that attracted participants from around the nation to Gaylord for several days of bonding and learning about personal storytelling.

"We started off as 25 strangers and left feeling incredibly connected and close and like you have a little extended family now," David Chrisinger, storytelling camp leader said.

Connections

Chrisinger, a University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point veterans reintegration class instructor, said he uses storytelling to connect people and help them feel important.

"This is about making people feel connected, inspiring each other, educating each other being seen and seeing others — and what that can do for your confidence levels and for your world view and your perspective and your outlook," Chrisinger said.

"If you can make people feel better in those ways they're going to be better community leaders, better citizens, husbands and wives and fathers and mothers."

He said sharing personal stories is one way to bridge the gap for some veterans who are distrustful of others, but said stories useful for everyone.

Storytelling participant Creighton Burrell wrote an open letter to veteran students at University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point and posted it online where he relayed the importance of reconciling civilian life with service experiences.

"What does a civilian know about being a veteran?" reads an excerpt.

He lists experiences many veterans can relate to such as using baby wipes for personal hygiene in Afghanistan, losing friends in combat and losing friends to suicide after returning home.

"Guess what? I have (experienced that); and (the civilian) doesn't need to."

In the letter, he equates veteran life experiences to a shipping container filled with items and said a veteran needs to take specific care of flammable or explosive items when the metaphorical items are mixed.

"Well, you don't get a choice about some of the things that get put in your (shipping container)," reads a section of the letter. "You can ignore the way you left it, and maybe make out alright long enough to forget it's even messed up! — Life throws unexpected bumps in our path.

Maybe the flammables get knocked around, and start seeping into the things you love — but you don't notice. Another bump, a spark, and a small flame starts to slowly consume the relationships or good in your life," reads the letter.

Gaylord Chapter

Matt Soderquist, Team RWB Gaylord chapter captain, said the overall goal of the organization is to "enrich American veterans' lives by connecting them to the community through physical and social activity."

The Gaylord chapter hosts local activities like Adopt-A-Highway cleaning days, weekly Wednesday runs and local races.

Soderquist said traditionally the leadership camps are physically focused on activities like surfing, rock climbing or trail-running.

"Storytelling camp was the first non-athletic-based leadership camp," Soderquist said. "We had people from San Francisco to New York, literally."

And when choosing a storytelling camp location — Gaylord was a natural choice.

"When we were discussing a storytelling camp we knew that we wanted the location to be somewhere more removed from inner cities and out in nature to allow for reflection and a good atmosphere for writing and storytelling — and we obviously have that here," Soderquist said.

He said RWB is a non-profit organization, but it isn't a charity.

"We see it as a challenge, as an opportunity for both veterans and civilian community members to take on leadership roles in the community and connect and build meaningful relationships," Soderquist said.

Soderquist said on the national level, roughly 70 percent of members are veterans. He said Team RWB Gaylord has about 105 members — approximately 55 percent veteran and 45 percent civilian.

The Gaylord team is looking for more volunteers for community events.

Anyone interested in Team RWB can call Soderquist at (989) 619-7245 or visit teamrwb.org

Local barber keeps vets looking sharp

JUDY WAGLEY

GAYLORD — "It's really appreciated by everybody here; it means a lot to us. We want to recognize those who reach out to us."

Sberidan Franklin said he and his comrades at Patriot Place want to acknowledge Blades Barber Shop, 105 N. Center Ave., where Lisa Priest and Kayleigh Johnson offer free haircuts to the men who live in the veterans' transitional housing community.

"They have truly gone above and beyond the call of duty as a local business to honor their local veterans by providing this service to us each and every month," Franklin said. "That, in turn, makes us truly feel that our service was not performed in vain to our country."

Each month, Johnson said, a group of eight to 12 vets are transported from Patriot Place downtown to Blades.

"We basically throw them a little party," she said. "They get their coffee and doughnuts; we like to make them feel special. It's the least we can do. They've done so much for us."

Priest, who opened Blades in April 2015, offers a discount every day on haircuts to all vets, and offered free haircuts to vets last Veterans Day.

Priest and Johnson then decided to take the step to cut the Patriot Place residents' hair free of charge throughout the year.

"I'm patriotic anyway," Priest said.

"We basically throw them a little party. They get their coffee and doughnuts; we like to make them feel special. It's the least we can do. They've done so much for us."

Kaleigh Johnson

"Why not pay it forward?"

Priest, who once worked as a barber on a military base, and Johnson, whose stepfather is a Vietnam veteran, display their patriotism throughout Blades. Priest painted an American flag on most of one wall; Johnson keeps her stepfather's Marine cap at her work station.

Franklin said the atmosphere there is welcoming and comfortable for him and his fellow vets.

"I like the fact that you could walk in the door and see all of the military memorabilia on the walls," Franklin said. "We can congregate there. It's a homey feeling — like being at the USO."

Franklin moved to Gaylord in January after serving in the U.S. Army for 13 years as a military police investigator on bases all over the world.

"I have never been in a community that supports its vets like Gaylord," he said. "It's made me feel warm and welcome."

Franklin said the free haircuts are important for vets who want to look sharp and well-groomed but may be on a tight budget.

He added that when he visited Blades for the first time, he was long overdue for a trip to a barber.

"It felt so good; it was fantastic," he said. "They do a good job."

Priest said when one Patriot Place customer sat in her chair, he shed tears because for many years he had never let anyone cut his hair.

"But he let me do it," she said. "It's amazing that a haircut — such a small thing — can make such a big change."

Johnson agreed.

"When you are cutting someone's hair, they are not facing the mirror," she said. "When you turn them around and see the smile from the transformation — it's worth the price of a haircut. It's when you feel better when you look in the mirror, and you can say 'Yeah, that's me.'"

How to show your appreciation to members of the military

Many grateful men and women want to show their appreciation to those who risk their lives to defend their country, but they may not always know how. The following are a number of ways you can show your appreciation to members of the military.

 Volunteer with a veteran's association. Volunteering is another way to show veterans and active service members how much you appreciate the sacrifices they have made. Volunteer at a veteran's hospital or help to organize an event that's commemorating the efforts of local veterans and active service members.

bers. Petition a town council for a special parade to honor your community's military personnel, including veterans and active duty members.

local high school or university to establish the scholarship in the name of a local veteran or active duty service member.

community can benefit from servicemen and women who share their stories. When hosting a community event, ask a soldier to be a keynote speaker.

Military-Missions.org or Any-Soldier.com can ensure your packages make their way into the hands of soldiers.

 Publicly display your patriotism. Active duty service members and veterans joined the military to defend our way of life, and you can show pride for your country and appreciation for their efforts by hanging a flag outside of your home.

 Pick up the tab. Surprise a person in uniform by paying for his or her meal at a restaurant. It's a simple gesture, but it shows how much you appreciate that service member's sacrifice.

Gestures that show military personnel how much you appreciate them need not be lavish. Any and all expressions of gratitude can make a world of difference.

WHEN THE WAR ENDS

Resources for American veterans and their families

The challenges faced by veterans upon being discharged of duty are multi-faceted. Fortunately, there are a vast number of programs in place to ease the lives of veterans and their closest family members. Though by no means exhaustive, here are some of the more noteworthy resources available. For complete details please contact your nearest Veterans Affairs office.

HEALTH RESOURCES

Most veterans who served at least 24 consecutive months are eligible for VA's health care benefits. However, certain facets of medical care — including dental treatments — are contingent upon each individual veteran's eligibility. In general, veterans are authorized to receive the following types of care:

- Regular medical exams
- Immunizations

- Specialty care
- Inpatient care
- Mental health care

In addition, veterans and dependents of veterans are eligible for TRICARE health insurance and in some circumstances dependents and survivors are covered by CHAMPVA.

EMPLOYMENT RESOURCES

Veterans and their dependents are eligible for employment counseling and training through the Vocational Rehabilitation and Employment program. Job search skills and career choice assessments are part of this program.

EDUCATIONAL RESOURCES

There are many different benefits programs that allow veterans to further their education. More than one may be applicable to individual veterans. Oftentimes spouses and dependents are also eligible for funding. Furthermore, there are benefits available for veterans who wish to pursue an apprenticeship and for those who would like to start their own business.

OTHER RESOURCES

There are a vast number of other programs in place. Most notable among them are:

- Home loan and housing assistance
- Disability compensation
- VA pension benefits
- Memorial benefits
- Life insurance

In addition, veterans can receive discounts and other perks at many businesses throughout the country.

AFTER COMBAT

WHEN THE WAR ENDS

Common health problems veterans face

When veterans come home after serving our country, they're often beset by health issues. Here are some of the most common problems they face.

Chronic pain

Veterans often report unremitting back, neck, shoulder and knee pain. These types of musculoskeletal issues often linger for years after service.

Mental health issues

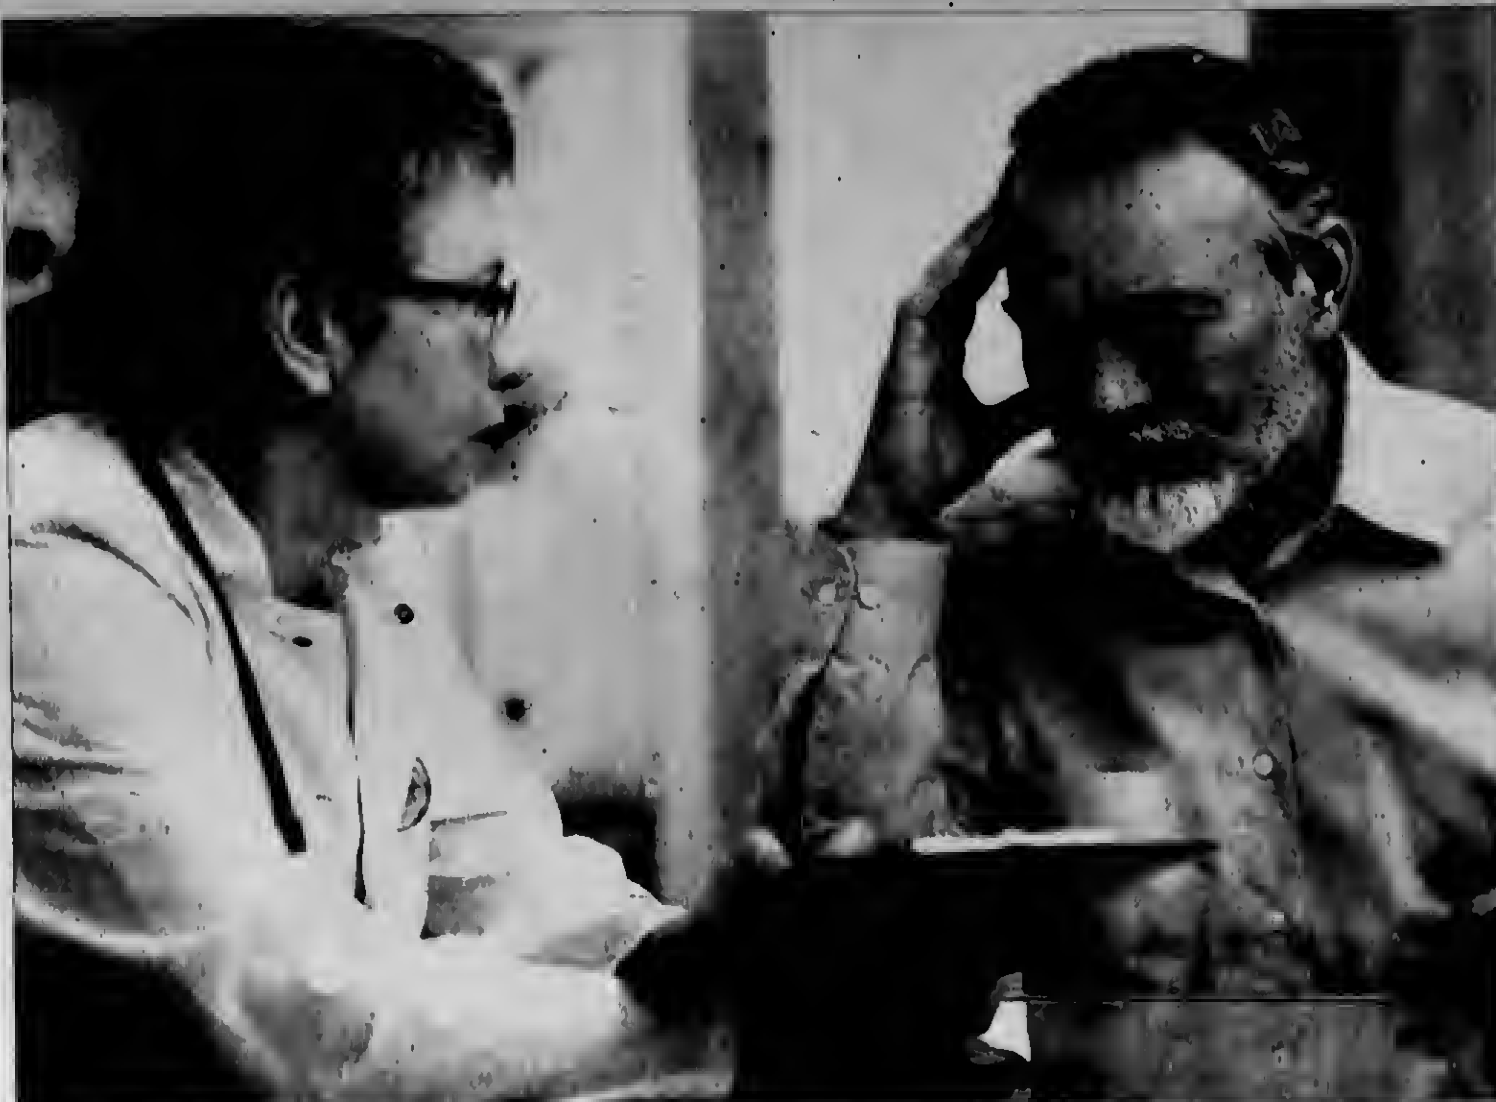

While PTSD is the most publicized mental health issue vets face, depression and general anxiety disorder are more common. Substance abuse is also prevalent among veterans.

Chemical exposure

Nerve agents and toxic chemicals are commonly used on the battlefield. As a result, veterans exposed to these substances are frequently diagnosed with heart health issues such as deformities and functional abnormalities.

Infections and diseases

While all military personnel are required to get immunized before they're deployed, not all infectious diseases can be prevented with a vaccine. Some of the illnesses contracted overseas have serious long-term effects and in some instances can even be fatal.

Hearing loss and impairment

Frequent exposure to gunfire, heavy artillery, loud engine rooms and even noisy aircraft can result in hearing complications. Veterans are often impacted by chronic tinnitus or other permanent damage to their hearing.

Traumatic brain injury (TBI)

A blow to the head often causes TBI. Some of the possible consequences of this condition include frequent headaches, difficulty concentrating, language disabilities and a short attention span.

These health complications can make life challenging for our veterans. Former military personnel should seek out the medical treatment they need while those closest to them are urged to offer support and empathy.

Nightmares and flashbacks are symptomatic of PTSD.

Common signs of post-traumatic stress disorder

Post-traumatic stress disorder (PTSD) is characterized as a stress reaction to a violent or life-threatening event that escalates over time. Those who are affected struggle to resume their normal lives months—sometimes years—after the trigger event. While there are many resources available for those impacted by PTSD, the first step is to recognize that there's a problem. Though each case of PTSD is unique, some of the defining characteristics are as follows.

Avoiding

Avoidance behaviours are also common in many cases of PTSD. Withdrawing from those things that remind the affected individual of the past event, such as certain people, places and activities, is often part of the equation, as is a more general withdrawal from friends, family and pastimes that were once enjoyed. In some cases, avoidance manifests as keeping excessively busy.

Re-experiencing

The most common symptom of PTSD, often triggered by a smell, sound or image, is vividly reliving the traumatic event. This can occur in the form of nightmares or flashbacks, and is often accompanied by physical symptoms such as nausea, sweating, pain and trembling.

Hyperarousal

Another way PTSD exhibits is as edginess and inability to relax. This type of anxiety is called hyperarousal. It can result in insomnia, difficulty concentrating and irritability.

If you or a loved one is showing signs of PTSD please call VA's Veterans Crisis Line 1-866-273-8255 (press 1) or chat anonymously with a responder at veteranscrisisline.net.

On the home front: Reintegrating into civilian life

Once the initial excitement of coming home starts to diminish, veterans are left with the sometimes-daunting task of reintegrating into civilian life. It can take months to re-establish routines and relationships that were once the norm. Here are several guidelines to facilitate the return to civilian life.

Practicalities

Dealing with the following concrete details can help veterans gain a sense of order.

- Make sure military files are up-to-date in regards to any awards or promotions received and that discharge papers are in order.
- Unpack and clean all gear so that it's still serviceable should it be needed again.

- Renew driver's license and car insurance. Give the vehicle a tune-up, especially if it hasn't been used in awhile.
- Rescind power of attorney.
- Review finances and make a new budget that reflects current circumstances.

Work

Veterans who are re-suming a position had before service should notify their employer of their return. Those who need to seek employment should take immediate action to begin the process of securing work. Investigating and applying for educational programs is a necessary step as is updating resumes. Free employment services are offered through your local Veterans Affairs office.

Family

As much as veterans miss their families, it can take some adjusting to become reacquainted with their spouses, children, parents and other family members. Patience is key. Family members will require time and attention to re-forged old bonds.

Self-care

In the midst of everything else, veterans should be sure to take care of themselves. Eating well, getting adequate sleep and exercise, and engaging in activities that are meaningful are good steps to take.

Wreaths Across America

For the fourth consecutive year, Greenwood Cemetery will host Wreaths Across America, a national effort to place holiday wreaths on the graves of veterans throughout the country.

In 2013, the Petoskey Cemetery placed 740 wreaths on veteran's graves, nearly half the veterans' graves at the cemetery. For the past two years each veteran, more than 1,400 men and women, has had a wreath placed on their grave.

"It would be a shame not to place a wreath on the grave of every veteran," said superintendent Karl Crawford. "The community has supported this project with donations of all sizes."

Greenwood Cemetery is encouraging members of the community to support the Wreaths Across American program and hopes to promote care for our veterans whether they have family to decorate their graves or not. The Cemetery also encourages the community to use their facilities as the honored place to inter their loved ones, especially veterans.

Greenwood Cemetery currently cares for the graves of men and women who served in wars from the time of the Mexican/American war (which began in 1846) to the Iraq War (which began in 2003). Many veterans did not see duty in a hostile place but their willingness to offer their lives to protect our freedom does not go unnoticed.

When you donate, you may specify the wreaths for a particular veteran's grave.

Wreaths cost $15 each, or $30 for two. For every two wreaths ordered, the Cemetery receives a third wreath free from the national organization. Any unused proceeds from one year are used the following year.

A ceremony will be held on Saturday, December 17, at 11:45 a.m. (sharp) followed by the placing of the wreaths in the cemetery. The public is invited to attend the ceremony whether they purchased a wreath or not. Volunteers are welcome to help place wreaths following the short ceremony.

The sponsorship form is available on the Greenwood Cemetery website at www.gwood.us, or call the cemetery directly at (231) 347-6531 for a form. Forms need to be returned to the Cemetery no later than November 21. Please call the cemetery at (231) 347-6531 with any questions.

How can I help?

Donate: $15 per wreath, $30 for 2 wreaths, $150 for ten wreaths

ASK OTHERS TO DONATE:

In past years some donors contacted friends, business associates and family to encourage their support. The Cemetery is happy to supply brochures to help you with appropriate information.

ATTEND THE CEREMONY:

The ceremony will be held Saturday, December 17, at 11:45 a.m. Ceremonial wreaths will be placed and shortly after volunteers will place the wreaths on the graves of the veterans throughout the Cemetery. Contact the Cemetery office for directions on where to park.

For more information, call Greenwood Cemetery at (231) 347-6531. Thank you.

Returning to civilian life
AFTER COMBAT

WHEN THE WAR ENDS

Careers veterans might be well suited for after service

Military service instills qualities and skills that translate exceptionally well into the civilian workforce. Loyalty, teamwork, leadership, efficiency insights, familiarity with heavy equipment and advanced technology, organizational abilities, calmness under pressure, and effective time management are just some of the things that veterans bring to the table. While some career paths may require further education or training, time spent in service can give veterans a head start on a number of career paths.

Military skills are transferrable in the civilian workforce.

Police officer

Parallels in structure and values between the police force and the military can put veterans at ease. In turn, police departments appreciate the experience, skills and qualities veterans provide.

Engineer

The role of engineer is one that may suit technically minded veterans who love to build things from the ground up. Though a bachelor's degree is required, these positions are well paid and in high demand. A wide variety of industry sectors requires engineers.

Construction

Construction has far more to offer than just swinging a hammer, though veterans can certainly get their hands dirty if they choose. The industry also offers a number of management positions — project manager, foreman, etc. — that may be a good fit for those with team-leading abilities.

High school teacher

Veterans often feel the need to continue to give back to their communities and their country. Teaching is one surefire way to contribute meaningfully while maintaining a good work-life balance. Summers off are a nice perk.

Other options

IT, administration and business management may also be good fits for veterans. After service, military professionals should explore options, gain any necessary training and soldier on.

Downtown blaze

STEVE ZUCKER/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

A pair of firefighters react as flames erupt from the front of the Round Lake Gallery in downtown Charlevoix Sunday, after the building's front windows broke. A fire that authorities said began in the basement of neighboring Johan's Cafe around 2:15 p.m. spread to the neighboring business.

Johan's, Round Lake Gallery destroyed, 4 shops damaged

STEVE ZUCKER
(231) 439-9346 - szucker@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Two downtown Charlevoix businesses were effectively destroyed and four more damaged when a fire broke out in a building's basement Sunday.

Firefighters from the Charlevoix Fire Department were called to Johan's Café, 327 Bridge St., at about 2:15 p.m. Sunday to a report of a fire in the basement. Charlevoix Fire Department Shift Commander Bob Roloff said flames were already through the roof when he arrived on the scene a few minutes later. He said he immediately called for mutual aid from the Charlevoix Township, East Jordan, and Boyne City fire departments.

Emergency crews shut down Bridge Street (U.S. 31) from Park to Antrim streets while crews were fighting the fire. Sunday's strong westerly wind filled Bridge Street and East Park with smoke as fire crews worked from both the front and back sides of the building to contain the fire.

The fire eventually spread to the Round Lake Gallery, the business that is located immediately to the north of Johan's. At one point, as fire crews on Bridge Street side of the building were working on Johan's, the front windows of the Round Lake Gallery broke and moments later flames came rolling out the window openings.

Charlevoix Police Department Deputy Chief Scott Hankins said at least the Round Lake Gallery and Johan's were open at the time of the fire. He did not know if any of the other businesses were open at the time.

Roloff said when he arrived on the scene, no one was around either of the businesses.

Hankins said he was told that an employee at the Round Lake Gallery had been in the basement of that building, noticed smoke, came upstairs and was told by someone there was a fire next door.

Roloff said well after the firefighting effort was under way, he spoke to an employee at Johan's who said smoke started coming up through

What now? Cleanup continues some remain closed, make plans to reopen

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — Cleanup continues this week after a fire in downtown Charlevoix destroyed two adjacent businesses on Sunday and put several other businesses in limbo before the holiday shopping season.

Spl/Sgt. Daniel Drew with the Michigan State Police Fire Investigation Unit Department said at the present time it is a challenge to make a determination to what caused the fire.

"Unfortunately, at this time the floor collapsed and I am unable to access the basement where the fire reportedly began," Drew said. "The investigation is very preliminary at this time, but what I see does suggest the fire started in the basement of the bakery."

Drew said once the buildings are boarded up and access to the basement is available he will return with the private investigators from the insurance company to complete process.

"We will work together doing our jobs separately to determine the cause of the fire," Drew said.

Nobody was injured in the fire, but the buildings were damaged so extensively that the future of them is unknown at this time.

Kathy Ackerman, owner of Round Lake Gallery, had no words to describe the loss she faced as she toured the devastation Monday.

"I am just so glad no one was hurt," Ackerman said. "Everything is gone. It's a terrible feeling to see this."

Her emotions ran high as she thanked first responders for their work battling the fire on Sunday. She also thanked the community for their phone calls and the "out pouring of support."

"A lot of people have come forward and the outreach from the community is tremendous," Ackerman said. "I am very lucky to live in a community like this. It shows me how much the

Some local candidates out-spend opponents to win seats

LONNIE ALLEN

CHARLEVOIX — It's a familiar story: A big influx of money shakes up a political campaign and this candidate outspent and outspent the opponent by so much to win the election, but how much is spent in local elections to win?

According to the latest county campaign finance disclosure reports filed Oct. 27, two of the city candidate winners — mayor-elect Luther Kurtz and councilwoman-elect Janet Kalbfell — outspent and outspent their opponents in this election.

Kurtz spent a little more than $7,000 in his bid to win a term as the city's mayor, compared to opponent Shirley Gibson, who spent a little more than $2,000 in her campaign.

Much of Kurtz's campaign support came from his own company Ahvon Inc., along with donors out of Rochester and Mount Pleasant who summer in Charlevoix.

Gibson's donations came from a variety of addresses in Charlevoix and one out-of-state address.

Kalbfell was the next to spend more than $2,000 in the city election, receiving donations from real estate investors with out-of-state addresses. She also received local donations from business owners and residents.

Kalbfell's opponent Bob Bergmann did not file a campaign finance statement with the county clerk's office, nor did Tom Oleksy or Bill Supernaw presumably because neither of them has collected or expended more than $1,000 on their respective campaigns.

According to Michigan Campaign Finance rules, candidates and groups that advocate a position on ballot proposals are required to form campaign committees. Those committees involving local offices or at the county level are required by the state law to file reports that detail the campaign contributions they receive and their expenditures. If the committee intends to receive or spend less than $1,000, it can request a waiver from reporting requirements, said Charlevoix County Clerk Cherie Browe.

"Basically we take them at their word," Browe said. "It's the honor system when candidates sign the waiver."

If the person is on the ballot in a given year, he or she must file the mandated reports before and after the primary election — if a runoff race is necessary and scheduled — and be-

Walk, run and/or swim on Thanksgiving Day

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-4558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Before spending family time at the table on Thanksgiving Day, Charlevoix families have the option share time together with a walk, run or swim.

Charlevoix Area Hospital will sponsor the sixth annual Turkey Trot 5K run/walk event on Thanksgiving morning.

This event encourages the community to get out and exercise with family and friends before sitting down to the big, holiday meal. The run/walk event begins at 8:30 a.m. with registration at 7:30 a.m. at Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital, 14700 Lake Shore Drive.

This year's 5K run/walk starts will take a slightly different route than former years, adding a trip down a portion of Bridge Street where participants can stop mid-run for some warm apple cider, refill their water bottle with fresh, filtered water, use the public restrooms with its available baby changing station, warm up, or just check out Munson Healthcare's new Wellness Workshop.

"We are very excited for some new features added to our Turkey Trot this year," said Amanda Evans, Registered Dietitian, diabetes program coordinator. "We have changed up the course a tiny bit and now we will be running/walking past our new Wellness Workshop. We welcome you to stop on in to have a sip of apple cider, refill your water bottle with fresh, filtered water, use our public restroom (baby changing station available), or just to say hi and check out the new location."

Runners/walkers are asked to bring a non-perishable food item to help support local food pantries. Strollers and leashed pets are welcome, and participants can get their photos taken at a photo booth. Everyone is encouraged to bring cameras, phones and smiles and to feel free to dress up in Thanksgiving-style attire.

"Our Thanksgiving-themed 'photo booth' will be set up in the entrance of the hospital for you to take part in before or after the event," Evans said. "Additionally, we are encouraging (but not requiring) everyone to dress up in Thanksgiving style attire. This could be a turkey hat, an entire turkey costume, or a pilgrim outfit. We sure hope you will join us for a trot before the big meal."

Registration is now available online at shop.cah.org, in person at the Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Wellness Workshop at 411 Bridge St. in downtown Charlevoix. Pre-registration ends at midnight Nov. 20; after that, the cost increases by $5. Pre-registration costs are $15 for adults and $10 for youths. Price includes a long-sleeved T-shirt or for another $10 a hooded sweatshirt. Early shirt pickup will be available on Nov. 23, at the Wellness Workshop or shirts can be picked up at the event prior to the race.

Also that day the 15th annual Douglass Meredith McNabb Thanksgiving Veterans Memorial Swim, will take place at 11 a.m. at Lake Michigan Beach.

The event is sponsored by the Charlevoix Elks Lodge 2856, the swim honors fallen Vietnam veteran, Doug McNabb, brother of charter Elks member John McNabb. McNabb's dream of honoring his brother has become an annual event in Charlevoix and has been an organized fundraising philanthropy of the Elks' organization since 2009.

"It's all for a good cause," said Ed Rogalle, local Elks member. "The Elks are dedicated to the cause of remembering those who have served."

Registration and pledge forms are available at the Elks' Lodge located at 12735 N. U.S. 31, Charlevoix.

The 2016 swim goal is $2,000. Donations of $5, $10, $20 or more will be greatly appreciated.

Thanksgiving offers the opportunity for a two-part fundraiser for the Elks: the swim is for the vets and families. Also circulating around the community is the organization's "turkey" pledge form requesting donations for the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project.

This project puts together a Christmas dinner basket for local qualifying families. The baskets include: turkey, mashed potatoes, green beans, corn, peaches, pears, salad, oil, pancake mix, syrup, eggs, bread, margarine, milk, peanut butter, jelly, brownie mix and cookies.

Checks for contributing to this and/or the Memorial Swim can be made payable to the Charlevoix Elks' Lodge. Visa and MasterCard are accepted at the Lodge or by calling (231) 237-0200. Donations on the day of the swim will also be accepted.

LETTERS to the editor

To my fellow Charlevoix residents, supporters and friends

Editor:

I thank you for your time and energy during this election. Personally, I was very torn between being a voting member on City Council or being mayor, with no legislative powers, when I decided to run. As with all elections, having a choice is our democratic American way. Thank you for choosing the job I need to do for Charlevoix and that is be a voting member of Council. I appreciate your vote of confidence and I will not let personal agendas get in the way of real business.

Our town is facing issues — some known, some unknown — that require our vigilance and pulling together to keep the Charlevoix spirit we know and love. I encourage my fellow residents and supporters to continue coming to meetings, getting involved and making a difference.

Thank you again.

to all in attendance, Moses was certainly dancing.

The group formed a long line and were actually following the moves in a line dance that was truly amazing. Each teen had the beat down pat. They did not want to stop the dancing.

To all of us who had volunteered to help make the evening a success, we were pleased that it gave us an insight on how much good these events can be for our young people. The Halloween Teen Party turned out to be our very own blessing. Our hearts were filled with love and excitement at seeing these young people so happy and sharing dance moves and laughter.

These are lifetime memories for all of us to remember how lucky we are Up North. It reminds us of our safety on Halloween Night and what it is to be living in a very special town we call Charlevoix. It is a community where kind and caring adults want to do all that they can to help keep their youth safe and able to enjoy all special holiday events.

One memory that will be put in my 2016 bank will certainly be the Halloween Teen Dance at Center Point Assembly.

How lucky we are

Editor:

On Sunday evening I had the privilege of going to a Halloween dance/party planned by Toni Jakubowski, of the "Will You Be the One," an organization that reaches out to help mentor young people in this area.

I attended the party held at the Center Point Assembly at 0520 14-06. It proved to be a blessing for me and the young teens who were sent an invitation to join in such a fun evening. The hall was all decorated and the tasty buffet was prepared by interested church members. It was a chance for many of the teens in this area to truly shine and attend a party planned just for them. What a blessing for me and others to see many; some mentally and physically challenged young people forget their problems and enjoy a great evening of friendship, music, dancing, meeting new friends, playing games at the tables and also trying things they had only just imagined doing.

One young man stepped up to the mike and pretended to be a star singer. The DJ who volunteered his group handed over his mike.

Cari and Kris two counselors at Bjorn's House actually picked a resident up and helped him move his limbs so he could dance to the fun music. The look on Bjorn's face was truly a blessing for all of us to see.

Another adorable teen named Moses, was almost jumping out of his wheelchair with glee and keeping rhythm with the music. Moses movements were on a perfect beat to the music playing. In his mind and

It is noted that the recent Courier had a list of candidates and issues. I was glad to see it, as I hadn't seen anything in previous elections.

Question: Is there a League of Women Voters in our community? A group, if not the editor, who can submit pertinent questions to the candidates. Such questions as where they stand on important issues, how they plan on achieving them. What their background is, level of education.

Merely listing the names does not tell us anything about who these people are or what they stand for.

I think the Courier is capable of much more.

Downtown lighting is awesome

Editor:

I would like to thank John Campbell and all the others that had a hand in the downtown lighting project in Charlevoix. Every time I walk downtown in the evening I am in awe of the beauty of the lights. I have also noticed the lighting of the boathouses on Round Lake. What a wonderful idea to add to the beauty of our wonderful town.

Thank you for all your hard work.

True North: Joy of the Season

It's time to get your winter jackets ready after an unusually warm start of November. The trees are bare, the air is crisp, winds swirl the fallen leaves down the street. Everyone is preparing for Thanksgiving and Christmas — It's a blizzard of special events, baking, shopping, organizing, list checking, and a partridge in a pear tree. And then, in a flurry of bows, wrapping paper and excited shrieks, it's done. The plates are empty, bellies are full, the surge of energy through the house subsides, and we remember to breathe.

I'm right there with you, surveying the disaster, unable to figure out which area of chaos to tackle first.

When my husband and I first got married, we did the run all over town to attend every holiday event — It took the wind out of our holiday sails, and we quickly decided that was not how we were going to spend those special days. We, very much against the grain, decided to forgo the traditional Thanksgiving with our family, and we spent our turkey day just the two of us. In the peace of the north woods — It was pure bliss.

We split the Christmas celebrations to one family per day, and it made for a much more enjoyable holiday season. The rush from one house to the next was eliminated, and we could relax and visit.

Having a family and moving to a new city helped us create even more family traditions that suit our idea of the season.

I want to step back, to encourage my kids to look outside of the gimmies and really think of others during the holiday season. Our advent calendar is actually a kindness chain, each link putting us one day closer to Christmas, as well as giving us an idea of a little thing we can do for someone else.

Call an older relative who may be lonely, do a good deed for a neighbor, pick out toys we no longer play with to donate — those are the things I want my kids to continue to do on their own as the years go by, to make a difference, to be kind, to feel the true joy of the season. Gifts are fun, but thinking of others instead of yourself — giving our time, our talents, lending a kind hand or a kind word — this is what I hope everyone can embrace, and hopefully spill over into year-round actions.

However you celebrate this time of the year, I wish everyone safe travel, good deals, fast metabolism, and balance. My advice to people who dread this time of year — pick the most important things to you and your family and JUST do those things. Take everything that makes you crazy and cross it off the list.

How, dear neighbors, do you get through the holiday season with your sanity intact? Share your great ideas with me on Facebook and Instagram.

LOOKING BACK...

Charlevoix received its first hard street surface when downtown Bridge Street was paved from Antrim Street to the bridge in 1904. Until then, every street in town was dirt. Bridge Street alone required 300 barrels of water a day during the dry summer period to keep the dust down. This paving was the catalyst for the arrival of Charlevoix's first automobile the same year, owned by pioneer doctor Robert Armstrong, seen here proudly posing in this new acquisition with his children by his side. Dr. Armstrong was the grandfather of local resident Bruce Shanahan.

the floor vents. When workers went to check on the smoke, they opened the door to the basement and were met with "a ball of fire." The employees shut the door and evacuated the building.

No injuries were reported as a result of the fire.

It took fire crews until after 5 p.m. to get the bulk of the fire under control.

At one point fire crews called in an excavator from Swanson K & D to help in the firefighting effort. The excavator knocked down portions of the front of Johan's and a small portion of the Round Lake Gallery building to gain access to areas where the fire was still burning — especially the basement areas.

At one point during the firefighting effort, fire crews went to the roof of the building to cut ventilation holes in the roof. They abandoned that effort as the fire continued to expand. Later, all fire crews were ordered off the roof, as it was reported that it was beginning to sag.

Roloff said Monday that the last Charlevoix

Fire Department crews left the scene shortly before 9 p.m., but were then called back a short time later when someone reported that it appears that more smoke was coming from the building. He said crews returned to the scene and sent an additional deluge of water into the basement. Two firefighters and one truck then remained on the scene through the night to make sure the fire didn't rekindle and to provide scene security.

Roloff said it appears that the fire damage was limited to the Round Lake Gallery and Johan's Café, which were gutted by the fire. He said the remaining businesses on that section of the block, The Clothing Company, Charlevoix Wear, Ga Ga For Kids and Muddick's Fudge all had smoke damage.

Roloff said there were two apartments in the back of the buildings. Those apartments sustained damage, as well.

Also assisting at the scene Sunday were the Charlevoix and Jordan Valley EMS and deputies from the Charlevoix County Sheriff's Office who helped with traffic control and scene security.

businesses and people here are loved. I am lucky to have a very supportive family who have been great helping me through this."

The fire is expected to have started in the basement of Johan's Café, 327 Bridge St., at about 2:15 p.m. where it eventually spread to the Round Lake Gallery, the business that is located immediately to the north of Johan's.

The Round Lake Gallery was the home of many artists' work displayed on consignment. Business insurance purchased by the gallery typically covers what the gallery owns, if that, said ID Friley, on behalf of Ackerman.

"Although it is important that artists insure their own artistic property, many artists cannot afford this added expense," he said. "Often, even if insured, artists are only compensated for materials not the value of their art. We are asking for your support to help the artists and vendors recover from the losses of this devastating fire by visiting www.Gofundme.com/RoundLakeFire."

Charlevoix mayor-elect Luther Kurtz, offered on behalf of the community, condolences to those affected by the fire.

"The community's heart aches for their loss," he said. "It is my hope we can come together as a community to help them through this and we should support the businesses when they reopen."

Insurance adjusters and cleanup crews remained on site this week, clearing debris and cleaning up in front of Johan's Café and Round Lake Gallery.

Charlevoix Fire Department Shift Commander Bob Roloff would not estimate the value of the loss, but it is clear though, that the economic loss to downtown merchants is high.

Jacqueline (Jacq) Dipert, owner of the Clothing Company, said she hopes to reopen by Thanksgiving. Dipert, who supports the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project coat drive said the coat drop-off box will be located inside The Lake House while she is closed.

"We have to have the store cleaned before we reopen," she said. "During that process we will still offer Clothing Company coupons when they drop off coats at the Lake House."

Kirby Dipert, of Charlevoix Wear, said there are to many unknowns for him to know when he can reopen for business.

"I have to wait and see what is next," Dipert said. "I know I will not be open in time for the holidays."

Leon Perron, of Celeste Muddick's Fudge said the Department of Agriculture requires him to discard his entire inventory. He expects to be closed until sometime in December.

"Many of our paper products are specially printed and will take time to replace," Perron said. "It's a tough loss, but it could have been much worse."

Jodi Bingham, of Ga Ga for Kids, posted to her Facebook page a heartfelt thank you to the first responders and community for the support. She said she does not have a date when she will reopen, but will update people via her Facebook page.

Clayton Brown, owner of Johan's, said he has not spoke to insurance adjusters yet, but he plans to remain in Charlevoix.

"We are not leaving Charlevoix," Brown said. "Hopefully we will be back up and running by next summer."

Brown said the business was open when the fire began and he is very grateful that no one was injured.

"Our employees did a great job getting everyone out and calling 911," Brown said. "I commend all the people involved and the community for their support of the first responders from the many communities who helped Charlevoix get the fire out."

Brown is upset about the amount of loss his neighboring businesses have felt because of the fire.

"I feel saddened for all the losses that have occurred from this fire," Brown said. "My heart goes out to those businesses dealing with this damage."

City manager Mark Heydlauff, said he has received phone calls from members in the community to offer support or help to the businesses that are closed due to the fire.

"We have had some people reach out to offer help with storage of inventory or help salvaging things and some offering help for short term relocation to those affected," Heydlauff said. "It's been great to see people reaching out with whatever they have to offer. Whether it was Subway bringing sandwiches to our first responders, Terry Left from the Village bringing chicken, and B.C. Pizza donating pizza that evening, there was number of people doing what they can to offer assistance. Whether it was a sandwich or a storefront people are doing what they can to help."

fore and after the general election in November.

Failing to submit any single report or filing late results in fees and fines.

In the Charlevoix Township supervisor race and Hayes Township races, county documents showed that Chuck Center and Tim Kuchanny did not file a campaign finance statement because of waivers.

But in Hayes Township, Matt Cunningham and Boh Jess each spent more than $1,500 to seek seats on the township board, while incumbents Marlene Golovich (clerk), Rohin Kraft (treasurer), Jim Rudolph and Paul Hoadley (trustees) had no statements on file.

Cunningham raised $1,695 and spent $1,495 in the primary to carry $200 over to the general election, where he spent an additional $129. Much of Cunningham's primary election money came from his mother, Leslie Cunningham, and their business RB Lyons Inc., and about $200 in donations from residents in Hayes Township, according to documents.

Jess raised $1,299 in the primary and carried a balance of $700 for his write-in candidacy to spend $1,700, according to documents. Jess had donors with out-of-state addresses also along with donations from a developer out of Mount Pleasant.

Charlevoix County chief deputy clerk Cookie Borths said candidates who have not completed the final forms showing final expenditures after the general election will submit those in the next few weeks.

Veteran of the Month

Bernard Edgar 'Bill' Sturgell

The Veteran of the Month for November 2016 is Bernard Edgar "Bill" Sturgell who was born March 5, 1924, in East Jordan. Sturgell graduated from East Jordan High School in the class of 1942 and on March 5, 1943, in Detroit, Sturgell enlisted in the U.S. Marine Corps.

Following Basic Training, where he qualified sharp shooter with the rifle on May 6, 1943 and bayonet on May 12, 1943, he departed the U.S. on Jan. 6, 1944 arriving in the South Pacific Theater of Operations on Jan. 31, 1944, and was assigned to an Amphibious Motor Transport Unit moving Marines from their transport ships to the beaches of the islands they were invading.

During one invasion in the Marshall Islands, seven or eight amphibious landing craft, loaded with Marines, were hit by a tidal wave causing their boats to sink with heavy loss of life, but Sturgell was able to swim, along with 12 other Marines, to a pier where they were rescued.

Sturgell participated in action against the enemy at the Marshall Islands until Feb. 14, 1944 and at Guam, Marianas Islands, from July 21, 1944 to Aug. 20, 1944, when he departed the Pacific Theater of Operations returning to the U.S. and was stationed at the Naval Training Center, Great Lakes, Illinois.

On Dec. 5, 1945, at the Marine Separation Center, Great Lakes, Illinois, Sturgell received an Honorable Discharge having attained the non-commissioned officer rank of Corporal and received the following decorations, citations and campaign awards: The National Defense Service Medal; The South Pacific Theater Campaign Medal and The Good Conduct Medal.

Sturgell returned home going to work at General Motors Corporation in Pontiac.

On April 4, 1946, in Boyne City, Sturgell married Helen M. Munson and went to work for the East Jordan and Southern Railroad until its closure in 1962. Then, he worked as an agent in the R.A. Campbell Insurance Agency in East Jordan until his retirement in 1986. Sturgell frequently enjoyed a bad round of golf.

He was a member of the East Jordan United Methodist Church, The American Legion Post No. 227 in East Jordan, a past member of The East Jordan Rotary Club and Lions Club.

He was an active member of the Charlevoix Masonic Lodge No. 282 and was a Past Worshipful Master.

On Oct. 29, 2014 Bernard Edgar "Bill" Sturgell answered the final call and is being honored by his wife Helen, his children James, Brian, Bruce, Mary Jo and their families.

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital is a leader in patient satisfaction. Physicians, nurses, and support staff work hand-in-hand to provide superior quality care. And while she won't take credit for it, her staff supports that Lyn Jenks, CEO, is the driving force behind everything.

In light of her recently announced retirement, a very special part of the evening will pay tribute to Jenks's many contributions to Charlevoix Hospital. This year, "Gifts of Love," where bidders traditionally pledge gifts toward a chosen hospital need, will be called "Gifts of Lyn." While the proceeds will benefit an important component of the hospital's laboratory, they will also honor the leader who has created a strong and bright future for the hospital.

Seating is limited to this event. It is important to purchase tickets or to make a donation no later than Monday, Nov. 21, to do so call Faye Parrish at (231) 547-8501.

Empty Bowls Luncheon set for Monday, Nov. 21

PETOSKEY - The 24th annual Empty Bowls luncheon will be from 11:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. on Monday, Nov. 21, at the Stafford's Perry Hotel in Petoskey.

that will be filled with soup prepared by Stafford's chefs and served with baked goods from Johan's and Crooked Tree Breadworks.

Emmet County and 3,000 in Charlevoix County are food insecure. Many must choose between paying household bills or medical expenses before buying food for their family. The Manna Food Project and its partner agencies provide food to those in need so they don't have to make those tough choices.

Tickets are available for purchase at the Grain Train, Sturgeon River Pottery, Petoskey Chamber of Commerce and Manna Food Project. For more information, visit www.mannafoodproject.org or call (231) 347-8852.

Rayders fall in regionals to old nemesis T.C. St. Francis

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

BOYNE CITY — The Charlevoix volleyball team knew it would need to be near-perfect to upset conference rival Traverse City St. Francis, the fifth-ranked team in Class C, in the regional final on Thursday in Boyne City.

And the Rayders turned in a performance that good — for one set, at least.

Ultimately, that level of play proved to be too hard for Charlevoix to maintain over the course of a best-of-five set match, as the Gladiators turned up the intensity and pulled away for a 24-26, 25-12, 25-15, 25-19 win and the regional title.

"We came out with great energy and intensity in the first set and had a great start, but we just couldn't maintain it," Charlevoix coach Audra Randall said. "We made some unforced errors in the second game that really hurt our momentum, and while I thought our focus and desire were there, we just didn't have the energy level we needed to capitalize on that first set win."

The Rayders played one of their best sets of the year in the first set, going blow-for-blow with the powerful St. Francis front line and completing several improbable defensive rallies, including digging a ball out of the net and sending it back over for the set point in a 28-26 victory.

But though Charlevoix was able to find kills throughout the contest, hating the Glads' 6'4" middle hitter Juliana Phillips and her teammates took its toll and sapped the Rayders' strength over the course of the set.

"I don't feel like any of my hitters were shut down at any point, but tonight was definitely more of a challenge than other matches, and it did have an effect on how our offense operated," Randall said. "We set up a rotation where our biggest players were able to challenge their big hitters at the net, and we did a good job of that, but the tradeoff was that offensively we had our biggest hitters matched up with theirs and that meant we had more balls blocked than we might have otherwise."

While the Rayders struggled to maintain a high level of intensity, the Gladiators raised their game in the second and third sets, stepping up offensively and defensively to put Charlevoix in a difficult situation.

It wasn't until the fourth set that the Rayders were able to recover their offensive rhythm, and, backs against the wall, they fought to stay alive, jumping out to a 6-2 lead and holding even with the Gladiators at 18.

But two unforced errors in a row allowed St. Francis to take a 20-18 advantage, and the Gladiators never looked back, closing out the set and the match.

"It's just unfortunate timing, because in a lot of cases you can overcome a couple of mistakes like that, but at that point it just really put us in a tough spot," Randall said. "I was really proud of the way we came back and fought hard in that set, but that comeback was something I was expecting because of who these girls are and the work they've put in this season."

"It just didn't work out for us tonight, and that's hard to take right now."

Senior Becca Moon led the Rayders with seven kills, 12 assists, 20 digs and an ace in her final match. Kenzy O'Leary chipped in seven kills, nine digs and eight assists, and Ellie Stuck added seven kills, four blocks and 13 digs.

Seniors Ali Jarema and Julia Doskoch chipped in nine digs from the back row, and junior Kelsey Crandell-Marfuta added nine digs as well.

Beth Veenstra finished with three kills and two digs and Ellie Lousselle added three blocks and two digs as well for Charlevoix.

Charlevoix's graduation losses are heavy, including setters Moon and O'Leary, hitter Veenstra, back-row specialists Doskoch and Jarema, and versatile rotation player Nichole Hart.

"It's rare to have a senior class this big and have every single one of them be a major contributor, but this class really stood out in that way," Randall said. "They were focused from the start, had a clear goal they went after and put the work in every day to get there."

"They're leaving an amazing foundation for the classes to come to build on, but at the same time, they won't be easy to replace."

While several strong players depart, there's still a lot of talent returning for the Rayders next year to chase a fourth straight district title, and the work has already begun.

"Time moves on, and while you want to stay in these great moments forever, you can never stop thinking about the future," Randall said. "We need to figure out ways we can improve defensively as a team, and we need to find a setter."

"I've already got a couple ideas and I'm hoping that if we can keep working, we can keep this run going."

Stingrays qualify six for states in season opener

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

HARBOR SPRINGS — The swimming season is just getting started, but the Charlevoix Stingrays have already guaranteed themselves an exciting finish.

In their first meet of the year, a dual hosted by the Harbor Springs Hammerheads, six Stingrays swimmers posted qualifying times for the Michigan Team Swim League state championship meet at the end of the season.

The Stingrays were led by newcomer Blaise Sytsma-Reed, 7, of Charlevoix, who won the 25 yard butterfly (24.53), the 50 freestyle (46.92) and the 25 backstroke (23.47) in her age group and beat MTSL qualifying times in all three events.

A decorated veteran also qualified in three events for the Stingrays, as Thomas Gardner, 17, of Petoskey won the 50 freestyle (24.54), 100 freestyle (55.04) and tied for first in the 100 breaststroke (1:17.53) in his age group, and McKenna Ebert, 17, of Charlevoix also won the 100 backstroke (1:13.28) and was second in the 100 breaststroke (1:24.75) in her age group to qualify in both events.

Competing up an age division, Joe Gaffney, 8, of Charlevoix, also earned a spot at the state final, winning the 50 yard breaststroke in 49.95 to qualify, and Jack Frenzt, 7 and Jake Veurink, 8, of Petoskey each won a race to qualify in their age group as well.

Frenzt won the 25 yard backstroke in 25.47, while Veurink, a first-time competitor, won the 25 yard breaststroke in 31.22.

Charlevoix Stingrays swimmer Blaise Sytsma-Reed, 7, won three events and qualified for the MTSL state finals in her first meet with the team.

All in all it was a good showing for the Stingrays, a team comprised of over 50 area youth from Charlevoix, Petoskey and Ellsworth who compete out of the Charlevoix Area Community Pool.

With a large portion of the team competing in the pool for the first time, Stingrays coach Thea Murray is encouraged by what she's seen so far and excited for the improvement to come as the team's swimmers gain more experience.

"We had a great start to the season, with one-third of our swimmers competing for the first time," Murray said.

Grace Kelbel
Potoskey, Sr.
A first team All-State golfer for the Northmen this season, Kelbel made a return trip to the state finals where she set a Potoskey girls' golf record with a 78. Also a two-time Player of the Year for the News-Review.

Cara Smith
Harbor Springs, Sr.
A consistent low scorer for Harbor Springs, Smith put together her strongest season in her last year as a Ram. She averaged a 95 on the course and shot a low of 87 to help get Harbor Springs back to the state finals.

Abbey Scholten
Charlevoix, Jr.
Came on big for the Rayders in her second season of varsity action, shooting a team low of 92 to help get Charlevoix to their first ever state championship appearance. Shot season lows of 87 at Grayling and 89 at Cheboygan.

Calli O'Neill
Harbor Springs, So.
A big reason the Rams were able to make a trip back to the state finals this season was the emergence of O'Neill, only a sophomore. Harbor's No. 1 golfer through the season, she finished the year with an average of 93.77 on the course.

Emily Sabook
Charlevoix, Sr.
A varsity member since the program began in Charlevoix three years ago, Sabook saved her best golf for her final season. She helped the Rayders to the state finals, where she shot 94, and a first ever team win in Grayling, shooting a 95.

Ashley Lamb
Potoskey, Fr.
Only a freshman, Lamb stepped into the No. 2 spot on the varsity this season for Potoskey and consistently shot below the 100 mark, including rounds of 91, 92 and 93. Missed the regional match with an injury.

Madi Bezilla
Harbor Springs, So.
Playing her second season on the Rams' varsity team, Bezilla averaged 95.83 for Harbor Springs this season, third best on a lineup that once again made a trip to the Division 4 state finals. Also won a 9-hole event with a 38.

Area Coach of the Year: Jennifer Sell, Charlevoix

Charlevoix girls' golf head coach Jennifer Sell has been with the Rayder program since its inception just three years ago and the Rayders have come a long way in that short amount of time. Sell helped lead the Rayders to their first ever Division 4 state championship appearance this season when they traveled to Forest Akers West Golf Course in East Lansing. Charlevoix also claimed their first ever team trophy this season in Grayling where they shot a low round among D3 and D4 teams of 389 in their opening match of the season. Charlevoix also put together rounds of 390 and 396 on the course this season and earned a second place finish at their Division 4 regional in Manistee. Along with the News-Review Coach of the Year honor, Sell also earned a Regional Coach of the Year honor from the Golf Coaches Association of Michigan. With just one senior and three sophomores in her state finals lineup, good things should continue with Sell at the helm of the program.

Grace Kelbel goes from worst to 1st; earns 2nd Player of the Year honor

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

PETOSKEY — Petoskey golfer Grace Kelbel had a rough freshman season, to say the least.

After taking up the game seriously for the first time just a week before the season started, Kelbel averaged 109 strokes for her 18-hole rounds, with a high round of 140 that left her well back of many of her teammates.

To see Kelbel now, after she earned all-state honors and set the Petoskey program record with a 78 in her final round at the Division 2 state finals on Oct. 15, and it's easy to get caught up in how far she's come.

The truth is, however, that it's that disappointment, along with a ferocious work ethic, that helped Kelbel reach those heights and bring home the agolfer of the year award for the second straight year.

"I just hated playing that poorly every day," Kelbel said. "I can remember coming home from matches in tears and asking my dad (Walloon Lake Country Club pro Pete Kelbel) what it would take to fix my swing."

"We'd go out and hit golf balls until the sun went down, just trying to figure out ways to get better."

Despite being the daughter of a PGA pro, Kelbel had little experience on the course, and that meant she was playing catch-up to players who'd been golfing since they were little.

But with the help of her father as well as Petoskey coach and Boyne Resorts pro John Myers, Kelbel made up that gap with relentless effort, adding early morning and late night golf sessions to a full high school practice routine.

That constant repetition worked wonders this season, as it gave Kelbel the confidence to overcome a rough start to both the crucial play-off at the regional to make the state final and a triple-bogey to start the final round on Saturday at The Meadows in Allendale.

"Because of the work Grace's put in, she has every conceivable scenario covered," Pete Kelbel said. "No matter what adversity she faces, she knows that the shot she needs to get out of it is one she's made a hundred times before."

"In golf, solid fundamentals are so key to a quality round, and it's her work ethic and the time and effort she's spent that allows her to do the things she does."

Everything came together for Grace on the final day of the Division 2 state final at The Meadows, as she bounced back from the triple-bogey to shoot three-over par over the next 17 holes and break the school record.

That result, the one she'd been chasing all season long, also earned her a top 10 finish in the event and all-state honors, the first Petoskey golfer to do so.

"I think all season long I'd been so focused on the record and my score, it got in the way of playing a little bit and I wasn't able to play the way I wanted," Grace Kelbel said. "In that final round, I finally pushed all that stuff out of my mind and really focused on playing shot by shot."

"I didn't even think about how I was playing or what I'd done until I was back in the clubhouse."

That final round ensured Kelbel's place as the best golfer in the young program's history, a stunning turnaround from the beginning of her career.

"I just think it proves that if you work hard at something and really put your time and effort into it, you can do amazing things, no matter who you are," Kelbel said. "It also makes me think about all the people who helped me get to where I am today, including my dad, without whom I wouldn't have gotten this far."

"I owe a lot to my coaches at Petoskey, John Myers and Will Jackson for everything they did for me as a player, and to Harbor Springs assistant coaches Shaun Bezilla and Keith Fitzpatrick as well, who helped me out whenever I was around them and gave me a lot of good advice."

Supersized play

Petoskey's Wineman earns Player of the Year status

DREW KOCHANNY

(231) 439-9345 • dkochanny@petoskeynews.com

PETOSKEY — Petoskey senior Connor Wineman is far from an imposing player on the soccer field.

But if you asked keepers around Northern Michigan, and the state for that matter, Wineman is one of the last players they're going to want to see coming down the field towards their goal.

For what the 5-foot-8, 150-pound Michigan State commit lacks in size, he makes up for with undeniable talent on the field and unmatched work ethic off the field.

"He's really unassuming walking the halls of Petoskey High School and you would never know that he's a Big Ten athlete," Petoskey soccer coach Zach Jonker said. "But soccer is a unique sport. A lot of it comes down to your quickness and he's got exceptional quickness."

"His first step is fantastic. His balance and ability is unlike anything we've had in the past. Then you combine those qualities with his overall skill set and that's why he's going to be able to play at that level."

All of those intangibles Wineman possesses and has built through countless hours in the gym and on the field eventually led to some big accolades this season.

A three-year varsity player, Wineman earned Dream Team recognition from the Soccer Coaches Association of Michigan, an honor handed out to the top 11 players in the state, regardless of division, while also being joined on the team by Traverse City West's Dalton Michael.

"Obviously it means a lot," said Wineman of the Dream Team. "I wasn't really expecting it. I was hoping to get first team All-State, but the Dream Team was a really nice thing to get on top of it. I read that we were the first to receive it in Northern Michigan

One of Petoskey's smallest players on the field, few players around the state brought in a bigger season around the state of Michigan this season than Petoskey's Connor Wineman.

"I've been around the program for 25 years as a player and coach and he is without a question the best dribbler we've had."

Zach Jonker, Petoskey soccer coach

since Aaron Chatfield, so just knowing how good of a player he was — I got to see him play and it was amazing to watch him — it's great to be put in a standard at his level."

When Jonker reached out to let Wineman know he received one of the highest honors a soccer player can earn in the state, he was of course at the gym, working on getting better.

"That is kind of really what distinguishes him is he's always been willing to go above and beyond and he's a little different and put the work in," Jonker said.

"He's truly a self-made player. He's really passionate about the game and has put in countless hours working on his individual technique."

"We've had a really, really strong tradition of soccer at Petoskey and we've had only a handful of first team All-State players. We never had a Dream Team player."

On top of the Dream Team, Wineman became the Northern Michigan Review's Player of the Year, first team All-State in Division 2 and earned first team All-Big North Conference honors.

Wineman finished the year with the Big North Conference lead in points after scoring 23 goals and adding 14 assists, which says a lot in a league that produced Michigan's Mr.

Soccer.

The distinguishing trait that makes Wineman jump out on the field has been his ability to work through traffic and make big things happen in the tough situations.

"I've been around the program for 25 years as a player and coach and he is without a question the best dribbler we've had," said Jonker. "He's able to keep the ball so close and run with it at top speed and that's where he was most dangerous. He's also got a really quick release. He doesn't need much space to get a shot off. That's what made him dangerous because all he needed was a tiny little window of space to release a shot."

Originally from the Clarkston area, Wineman moved up to Petoskey before starting the seventh grade, with Petoskey's rich soccer tradition fitting him well.

Long before he made his way North though, Wineman was busy honing his future skills.

"Most of it comes from when I was younger, my dad tells me that I used to carry a soccer ball around everywhere I went and I used to play all the time," added Wineman. "It's pretty much just hours and hours of practice. My coaches have helped me along the way, like Coach Jonker and some of my club coaches when I was living in Clarkston were really influential to my soccer career too."

After all of that work off the field and before the accolades of the postseason, Wineman had to deal with being a marked man in nearly every game out this season, sometimes even double-teamed.

"He was still always a threat," said Jonker. "He led our league in scoring despite the fact that in most games he was marked and a lot of times double marked. Obviously teams had to be keying on him."

Now with Michigan State and Division I collegiate soccer up next, Wineman knows there's going to be doubts from opponents when they see him on the field, but it's nothing he hasn't gone through before, and thrived.

"Obviously it's going to be a huge change between any of the soccer I've played so far," he said. "Pretty much throughout my entire soccer career I've had to prove my position on the field and make people know I'm there."

"Sometimes I can body players off, but that's really not my strong suit by any means. I try to use my technical skills and my pace to beat defenders in other ways."

That's certainly worked like a dream so far.

Fire investigators: Excavator to be used to access basement

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The fire that caused major damage to Johan's Café and Round Lake Gallery in downtown Charlevoix almost two weeks ago remains under investigation.

Fire investigation officials expect to be back on the scene to complete their look into the cause of the blaze after Thanksgiving.

Spl/Sgt. Daniel Drew of the Michigan State Police Fire Investigation Unit said access to the basement is limited and it is hard to make a determination as to the cause.

"We have been crawling around down there like rats and it's just not safe," Drew said. "We need to make it safe so we can get in there and do some real work."

The fire is believed to have started in the basement of Johan's Café, 327 Bridge St., at about 2:15 p.m. on Nov. 13, where it eventually spread to the Round Lake Gallery, the business that is located immediately to the north of Johan's.

The story behind Black Friday

COMPILED BY LORRAE ALLEN
allen@charlevoixcourier.com

Today (Nov. 25) is Black Friday, the familiar name for one of the biggest shopping days of the year.

It makes sense that the term "Black Friday" is attributed to a day of the year when retail companies enter the black in their books — make a profit.

The day after Thanksgiving is, of course, when crowds of turkey-stuffed shoppers descend on stores all over the country to take advantage of the season's biggest holiday bargains. But the real story behind Black Friday is a bit more complicated—and darker—than that.

The first recorded use of the term "Black Friday" was applied not to holiday shopping but to financial crisis: specifically, the crash of the U.S. gold market on Sept. 24, 1869. Two notoriously ruthless Wall Street financiers, Jay Gould and Jim Fisk, worked together to buy up as much as they could of the nation's gold, hoping to drive the price sky-high and sell it for astonishing profits. On that Friday in September, the conspiracy finally unraveled, sending the stock market into free-fall and bankrupting everyone from Wall Street barons to farmers, according to documents in the Library of Congress, that refer to hearings into the matter by James Garfield.

The most early modern reference to the term Black Friday also does not refer to deal-busting shopping day. Back in the 1950s, police in the city of Philadelphia used the term to describe the disorder that ensued on the day after Thanksgiving, when hordes of suburban shoppers and tourists flooded into the city in advance of the big Army-Navy football game held on that Saturday each year. Each Friday after Thanksgiving Philadelphia police were required to work extra-long shifts dealing with the additional influx of crowds and traffic into the city.

Today, the most commonly repeated story behind post-Thanksgiving shopping links the Black Friday tradition to retailers. As the story goes, after an entire year of operating at a loss — in the red — stores would supposedly earn a profit — went into the black — on the day after Thanksgiving because of the influx of holiday shoppers buying discounted merchandise.

Though it's true that retail companies used to record losses in red and profits in black when doing their accounting, this version of Black Friday's origin did not become popular until sometime in the late 1980s.

Retailers began marketing the start of the holiday shopping season, as Black Friday and the result was the "red to black" concept, and the notion that the day after Thanksgiving marked the occasion when America's stores finally turned a profit was born. The Black Friday story stuck and the one-day sales bonanza has morphed into a four-day event, and spawned other "retail holidays" such as Small Business Saturday/Sunday and Cyber Monday.

Harsha House to receive MCACA funds

CHARLEVOIX — Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs has recognized the significance of Charlevoix's historic museum with a capital improvement grant for repairs and renovations. The Charlevoix Historical Society was recently awarded $8,899 in grant funding for needed enhancements to its museum at 103 State St., Charlevoix.

This grant was awarded through a peer review process and was one of 559 applications to compete for Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs fiscal year funding.

The organization's grant recognizes the museum's impact on cultural tourism in Charlevoix, which will be used for the first phase of a planned two-phase renovation project. The first phase, commencing this winter, will cover interior renovations to the office space, as well as exterior repairs to the roof, gable fascias, dormer wood shakes, sheathing, and masonry. While the Historical Society has put aside reserves for this purpose, additional funds of $15,000 will be raised to complete the $40,000 project.

"The Michigan Council for Arts and Cultural Affairs plays a key role in assuring that Michigan taxpayers and all visitors to the state have access to high quality arts and cultural experiences," said Charlevoix Historical Society president Denise Fate. "We are very grateful for their support."

The grant requires matching funds of an equal amount from the historical society, which will come from other private foundations and individual donors.

The Harsha House, built in 1891, has an extensive collection and displays on the Charlevoix area's history and people. The Historical Society is celebrating the home's 125th year with a series of planned improvements and fundraising to ensure the museum is preserved and offers continued enjoyment to the community. The Harsha House serves as museum and head-quarter offices for the Charlevoix Historical Society. This year, more than 2,000 people visited the museum and the current exhibit, "The Working World: Business and Industry in Charlevoix," was well received by museum visitors, Fate said.

The Harsha House, a Victorian Queen Anne-style house built in 1891 by the Harsha family, was donated to the Charlevoix Historical Society in 1979 with the condition that it be used as a museum. It was designated a State Historic Site in 1991.

After the Historical Society took possession of the house in 1979, fundraising for restoration and expansion began. In 1980, with almost $40,000 in proceeds from the 1976 book Bob Miles' Charlevoix, Dale Boss constructed the museum annex onto the rear of the house. Many volunteers were involved over the subsequent years in major renovations which gradually transformed the house's lower level into three restored Victorian parlors.

Lions club Christmas tree sale kicks off today

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Lions Club annual Christmas tree sale will begin on Nov. 25 at Charlevoix Ace Hardware. The sale again will be in the greenhouse, which will provide cover for the trees and allow flexible hours for people to purchase Christmas trees.

Lions Club members will sell trees in the evening and on the weekends as in the past, but patrons also can purchase their tree during Charlevoix Ace Hardware Hours, said Charlevoix Ace owner Mark Greyerbiehl. "Our goal is to give back to the community by giving space and time to help Lions Club members out during the busy Christmas season," Greyerbiehl said. "Last year, the sale worked well and we want to continue that tradition in this location."

To add to the Christmas spirit, Ace Hardware also will offer wreaths and other decorating greens during the Lions Club Tree sale, Greyerbiehl said.

The Lion's partnership with Ace Hardware helps logistically and offers more selection for patrons who may want to purchase other Christmas accessories when picking out their Christmas tree.

"Having the sale helps the Lions and us because together we can offer a one-stop place for Christmas and other holiday decorations," Greyerbiehl said. "You can grab a tree, wreath, and pick up extension cords, a tree stand or your other Christmas needs from the store in one easy stop."

The Christmas tree sale, which runs from black Friday, Nov. 25 through mid-December, is an annual charity fundraiser for Charlevoix Lions and features Fraser fir, Black Hills spruce and Douglas fir.

The price of the tree is determined by height, according to club organizers.

As people get ready to purchase a holiday tree this year, consider visiting the Charlevoix Lions Club Christmas tree sale. Every penny of profit from a tree purchase will go to charity, and helps out members of the community at the same time, organizers said.

Want to become a shoreland steward?

It's easy for those of us who live on or around Lake Charlevoix to take the beauty and water quality of our lake for granted because it has been that way for so many years. However, lakes in Northern Michigan, and yes including Lake Charlevoix, are now experiencing threats ranging from invasive species to pollutants carried by rainwater runoff.

Another threat to the lake is the loss of natural habitat along the shore that fish and other aquatic animals need for their existence. In fact, the Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership, www.mishorelinepartnership.org, has determined that the loss of natural shoreline is the biggest threat to the overall health of Michigan lakes.

So, what can we do?

The Michigan Natural Shoreline Partnership, with the assistance of a number of environmental organizations and lake associations in Northern Michigan, including the Lake Charlevoix Association, has developed the MI Shoreland Stewards Program. The MI Shoreland Stewards Program is a voluntary web-based survey that asks property owners living on a lake about how they manage their property, not just the shoreline, but their entire property.

The survey divides the property into four zones: the upland area where the house and other buildings are located, the buffer or greenbelt between the upland and shoreline, the shoreline and the lake. The survey is interactive in that it includes links associated with the survey questions that provide explanations and tips.

At the completion of the survey, your property will be rated as gold, silver or bronze and an appropriate certificate will be generated. If your property doesn't yet meet the standards for one of these three levels, a starter level will be indicated. In all cases you will be provided with suggestions for improvement. You can then retake the survey once improvements have been implemented.

If you are a lakefront property owner and are curious as to how your property stacks up, the MI Shoreland Stewards Program is for you. It's quick and easy to complete as well as being educational and fun. You can access the survey at www.mishorelandstewards.org.

John Hoffman is a board member of the Lake Charlevoix Association and each month a member of the association will submit a Lake Charlevoix Association column that is intended to educate and inform residents about the watershed. For more information, visit lakecharlevoix.org.

Handling the holidays and loss

The signs of the holiday season are ubiquitous: holiday decorations in the stores, piped in Christmas carols, holiday displays at the malls, TV programs focusing on selecting the perfect gift, holiday parties and gift exchanges at work. In many cases, this bustle of activity contrasts markedly with the emptiness and despair of grief.

Grief is healthy, and necessary. Grieving means we acknowledge the loss, but it doesn't mean those of us left behind can stop living until it's over. In fact, it can be viewed as a time to start new traditions, while honoring the old ones.

Dilemmas associated with the holiday season

1. The requirement of cheerfulness. There is an expectation during the holidays that people should be cheerful. One mourner explained that she hated going to holiday gatherings. "I could not be cheerful and I did not want to bring other people down by being sad."
2. The mine field of social exchanges. On many occasions, the innocent remarks of others may put a knife through the mourner's heart. Shortly after the death of their son, the parents attended a holiday dinner hosted by the boy's grandparents. The host began the meal with a blessing, "Thank you for bringing the whole family together." The father was so distressed by this remark that he left the table.

3. The complexity of decisions. Bereaved individuals must navigate a difficult path in deciding how to handle decisions about family activities and rituals. As one mourner indicated, "I was not sure whether I should hang my son's stocking or not. I decided to hang it, because after all he is my son. But my husband thought that this was not a good idea. He told me that I was 'in denial.'"

4. The ambush. During the holidays, mourners are often hit by powerful feelings that are evoked by some reminder of the loss. Consequently, they experience what Noel and Blair (2000) have called "the ambush." As one mother explained, "I was taking out the Christmas ornaments and I came across an ornament that Timmy had made in kindergarten last year. It had his hand print on it. I dissolved into tears." Although natural and normal, such experiences are often frightening in their intensity.

There's no "right" way to cope with such a loss. Some choose to skip the holidays, which is difficult because we're surrounded by holiday music, messages and events. Others try to celebrate just as if their lost loved one is still there, which can make the person's absence even more painful.

It's important to know there are local, professional resources — right here in Northwest Michigan — that are capable of helping you during a painful time. Even though you didn't choose the circumstances that are leading you to grieve, you have a choice in how you respond to your grief. You can choose to be kind to yourself, take care of yourself, and take advantage of those resources.

Hospice of Northwest Michigan's "Handling the Holidays" workshop is one of these local, professional resources that takes place the first part of every November. This workshop can provide tools and resources to get you through the holidays. All grief support and bereavement programs for those dealing with painful losses of any kind are available year round and are free of charge and open to the community.

We are here for you in ways you never knew were available before.

LOOKING BACK...

Winter is soon to be upon Charlevoix, so it might be instructive to discover how the winterscape once looked at what was then the town's busiest intersection. This striking photo was taken in the very latter part of the 19th century. On the extreme left stands the tall Charlevoix Roller Mills that started out as the Rifenburg Milling Company, then became the Argo Milling Company, and is now the site of the Weatherlane Inn. To its right appear the sheds and smokestack of the Charlevoix Lumber Company and the piles of lumber along its waterfront, now the Edgewater complex, seen through the railing of the bridge. This swing bridge was the third bridge, and first swing bridge, to cross the channel, set dead center in the channel. It was situated on an elevated turntable placed above the island of pilings that protected it from collision with the hundreds of vessels that passed through. Beyond the bridge, at the lumber company's wharf, appears a "two-sticker" schooner, the word "sticker" referring to its masts. At the south (right) end of the bridge, a horse is about to draw a wagon across the structure. Below the horse, the first bend in the channel is easily made out. And at the far right stands the Lewis Grand Opera House, built in 1883, two years before the grist mill and five years after the bridge was installed. So, at the time, everything was quite up to date in Charlevoix city. It is apparent from the photo that the lake waters were experiencing one of their periodic lows, as shown along the bleached boards of the south revetment and the series of markings on the pilings below the mill.

Summer Concert Series offers sponsorship opportunities

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Main Street is preparing for another season of great live music for the 2017 Summer Concert Series. The events are guaranteed to be fresh, fun and free. The Charlevoix community and its visitors are gifted with easy access to live, multi-genre music, all summer. The program is possible only through generous sponsorships, many dedicated volunteers and outstanding regional musical talent.

Bickersteth, Brown and Associates Wealth Advisors, Fox Charlevoix, and Northern Michigan Review were pleased to participate as 2016 premier sponsors for the Charlevoix concert series.

"These businesses recognize the priceless value of giving back to the community and reaching an audience of several thousand throughout the season," said series co-chair Jean Musilek. "These companies saw a benefit from the series and we are pleased to have them return as the Premier Sponsor titles for next summer."

New for the 2017 season, the series will include entertainers in many downtown locations.

"We heard from merchants, Charlevoix residents, and performers of a desire to have more music and entertainment throughout our main street area," said series co-chair Maureen Owens. "We want concert goers to visit merchants and see talented performers throughout downtown."

According to Musilek, there are new sponsorship levels to help fund the expanded line-up. While some sponsors have already signed on for next year, there are two partner sponsors available for $1,500, eight concert sponsors available for $500, and new this year is the neighbor sponsor for $100.

"Many people want to support the momentum of Charlevoix Main Street with their time, talents and finances," Musilek said.

Owens said the committee, which also includes Nathan Dean, Sarah Hagen and Kevin Prior, are still booking acts including familiar favorites and new talent.

"We want to keep the series fresh," Owens said.

The shows will still kick-off in late June at 7 p.m. on Thursday evenings at Odmark Performance Pavilion in East Park.

Those interested in volunteering for the series or to help underwrite the events can email Maureen Owens at maureen-owens@hotmail.com or Jean Musilek at jean-musilek@hotmail.com.

Winter Merchants Open House in downtown Charlevoix Dec. 3

CHARLEVOIX — Downtown Charlevoix merchants will be armed with entertainment, samples, refreshments, special sales, giveaways and more on Saturday, Dec. 3, during the Charlevoix Merchant Open House.

In addition to the great sales, Santa will be escorted through town on a city fire truck at approximately 11:15 a.m. to spread some holiday cheer. Little ones can wave at Santa as he goes by. Saint Nick will be dropped off from 11:30 a.m. - 1:30 p.m. at Charlevoix Cinema III where he will stay and visit. There is no fee for your child to visit with Santa, and everyone is invited to stay and watch a free full-length movie "The Secret Life of Pets" at 2 p.m. sponsored by Charlevoix State Bank. For entry, bring a non-perishable food item to benefit the Charlevoix Food Pantry. While children enjoy the movie, parents can relax, sample and shop at the Open House without interruption.

The fourth annual Hot

Cocoa Contest will be from noon-5 p.m. Chocolate lovers can follow the "Cocoa Trail" to sample and vote for their favorite hot chocolate recipe. Participating restaurants, caterers and specialty food shops will set up cocoa stations in downtown stores for sampling convenience. Just look for the "Cocoa Trail" posters in the store-front windows to stop in, sample and vote. The Cocoa Trail is also available online at www.charlevoix.org.

The annual Merchant Open House will feature a special seasonal tree lighting this year. Hospice of Northwest Michigan will host an inaugural Lights of Love event beginning at 5 p.m. in East Park in which Charlevoix will boast a second decorated tree for downtown. Individuals, businesses and organizations can remember loved ones (even pets) for the holidays by purchasing ornaments or sponsoring lights for the tree.

For more information, call (231) 547-7448.

Charlevoix will 'Live Life Local' again this year

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Main Street will sponsor the Live Life Local downtown shopping campaign for the 2016 holiday season.

"It was great to see so many new faces in our stores last year," said event coordinator Jodi Bingham. "This year should be even better."

For every $50 a shopper spends at a qualifying business, they can receive an entry for a drawing to win up to $500 in Chamber Checks from the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. Three prizes are available with the first prize being $500, second prize is $300, and the third prize is $100.

"Downtown is the core of vibrancy in our community," said DDA/Main Street board chair Dan Barron. "The Live Life Local Campaign is a great way to remind residents, visitors, and shoppers from our region to visit our merchants throughout the year. We are pleased to partner with our downtown retailers yet again for this event."

The contest begins the day after Thanksgiving and entries can be submitted at The Clothing Company and The Lake House until Dec. 24. As long as a receipt is dated between Nov. 25 and Dec. 24, entries will be accepted at the Chamber of Commerce from Dec. 26-Dec. 30. Winners will be drawn on Jan. 4, at the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce.

Bingham, who owns Ga Ga for kids in downtown Charlevoix, enjoys the partnership with other businesses in downtown.

"It is great to be part of a downtown community who works so well together," she said.

Cards of caring expands mission in Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — The 2016 Northwest Michigan Cards for Caring mission is expanding this season to help relieve Seasonal Affective Disorder in local seniors at Boulder Park Terrace and now, for Hospice of Northwest Michigan patients and the families of those who have passed away within the past year.

Volunteers for the effort are asking for local families to supply a signed, unsealed Christmas, Season's Greetings, Thinking of You or greeting card for disbursement to the Charlevoix High School. The cards should be signed with perhaps a warm wish penned inside the card placed in a blank, unsealed envelope. Cards should be dropped off at the Charlevoix Middle/High School no later than Dec. 9. Cards will, in turn, be read and sorted and then delivered to those in need.

This project is an expansion of previous years' efforts to provide seasonal greetings cards for seniors in the nursing facility at Boulder Park Terrace.

Promoters feel it is the responsibility of current generations to offer comfort and support to the numbers of people who are facing illness and hardship especially in the winter season. The organization believes it is important that individuals are aware that they are not alone and that they are still remembered by the community. This feeling of connectivity can be demonstrated by something as simple as a card of greeting and a warm message.

With reduced sunlight the bio-hormone melatonin increases and serotonin, a brain neurotransmitter, decreases causing depression. The resulting symptoms of depression can often be exacerbated by certain types of medication and the added stresses that the holidays bring.

The good news is that social interaction can actually reduce depression and perhaps in some instances, save lives. Bryan James, an epidemiologist at the Rush Alzheimer's Disease Center in Chicago, noted that higher levels of social interaction — even peripheral interactions — can have a high payoff, according to greatergood.berkeley.edu.

Cards director and Charlevoix High School senior Emily Mercer points out that the bright spot in any day for someone that has been suffering and who may not have family in the area can be the cheer delivered at mail time.

Northwest Michigan Cards for Caring is also accepting unused holiday cards from previous years to aid its effort.

meeting to address more specifics of the upcoming construction," Lake said.

This $1.9 million investment will include substructure and steel repairs, as well as electrical and mechanical upgrades. The project also includes replacing the traffic warning gates and the electrical switches needed to ensure the bridge operates smoothly and properly, reconstructing the bridge roadway approaches, and painting the steel superstructure.

The contractor for the project, Aniaan Corp. of Grand Haven, is scheduled to begin mobilizing its crews on Dec. 12. Work is scheduled to begin with the bridge in the closed/down position, on Dec. 26, Lake said.

Lake added most of the work will be achieved while maintaining two-way vehicle traffic on the bridge, shifting traffic to each side as work progresses.

Some of the work will require the bridge to be locked in the up/open position for six-hour periods (11 p.m.-5 a.m.) on 12 consecutive nights, with exact dates to be determined. During those overnight closures, traffic will require a 67-mile detour on M-66, M-32, U.S. 131, and U.S. 31.

"We are still anticipating nightly closures, but there is the potential to move those dates up," Lake said.

Residents and business owners who are interested in understanding the project more are invited to attend the MDOT meeting, said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"We look forward to the continued dialogue to make sure the project goes smoothly for all in our community," Heydlauff said.

City officials along with local law enforcement and emergency services personnel are also planning to attend the meeting.

Emergency services coverage during the closures should not be an issue because the city has strong relationships with surrounding townships, Heydlauff said.

"We saw that cooperation between departments with the recent fire and we expect to see the same type of cooperation once we know the specifics of the bridge closures," Heydlauff said.

Stafford's Weather Vane Restaurant and Subway invite Black Friday revelers to warm up with some hot cocoa and cookies from 4-6 p.m., in East Park next to the community Christmas tree. Cookies and cocoa will be served by volunteers from the Charlevoix Chamber Ambassador Committee.

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Wellness Workshop and the Charlevoix Courier also will offer hot cocoa and candy canes from 4-6 p.m. at 411 Bridge St., across the street from Odmark Performance Pavilion. The Wellness Workshop also will be a warm-up station that offers a water bottle refill station, restrooms and baby changing area available to anyone enjoying the downtown festivities.

At 5:30 p.m., the 6th annual Holiday Parade will make its way down Bridge Street. The parade will take place on U.S. 31 between Hurbut and Clinton streets downtown. There will be music, lighted floats and more. The final parade entry will be Santa and his helpers who will stop in East Park to brighten the night by lighting the community Christmas tree for the first time this holiday season. The tree will be lit at approximately 6 p.m., accompanied by music and caroling provided by Charlevoix Middle/High School Performing Arts.

FIRE

It took fire crews until after 5 p.m. to get the bulk of the fire under control. The two businesses were destroyed by the fire and four others suffered from smoke damage causing them to be shut down. The Clothing Company expects to reopen its doors on Nov. 25.

"I will be open by Thanksgiving," said owner Jacqueline (Jacq) Dupert.

Because so much debris remains in the basement of the bakery, investigators are bringing in an excavator.

Drew said the investigators are working with insurance companies that represent the different businesses, building owners or other entities that have a stake in the fire. All require notification before the excavator can come in and remove the floor and other material.

That is why the investigation is on hold.

"We need to wait for that excavator to come in and remove the floor so all of us can go in to see where the origin of the fire is at," Drew said.

The excavator will most likely close U.S. 31 to some or all traffic once the work begins.

"We know the state wants to do an additional investigation of the fire," said city manager Mark Heydlauff. "During the excavation process, we will do what we can to cooperate with them to keep traffic away from the work site."

also will be collecting coats this year.

"Having an additional businesses on board will be a major benefit in providing needed dropoff locations for the coat drive, which enables the Christmas Project an opportunity to provide donated coats and jackets to families serviced by the Christmas Project," said Joan Lemerand, who organizes the annual coat drive. "The coat room is just one program in the many that provides to those in need at Christmas. The tremendous community support helps us provide coats for the entire family."

Special collection boxes for gently used jeans are also available at both the Charlevoix and Petoskey Gilks and as with the coats these items are much in need, Lemerand added.

The decorated Christmas collection boxes will be at the sponsored businesses after Thanksgiving, which is the kick off of Shop Local in downtown Charlevoix, and available through Dec. 10.

As the project collections begin, second- and third-graders at Charlevoix Elementary School are gearing up for their part in the annual giving event.

Third-grade Charlevoix Elementary school teacher Julie McLean and her students participate in the blanket project, which last year provided 120 hand-made blankets to seniors and families at Christmas.

"Each year the dynamics of the project change, but the outcome is the same," McLean said. "Students help make fleece blankets while learning the value of giving back to the community they live in."

As the blankets preparations get on the way, McLean uses the time to hold discussion with students about community giving and its impact on people.

"They get very excited about the work," McLean said. "I try to show them that as a community it's not always all about us. That there is value of looking at others needs. It's important for the kids to realize that there are some children in our community who are not fortunate enough to have warm blankets."

Hearts to Holly, Charlevoix Rotary and the Chicago Club all pitch in to make the blankets a success.

"Everyone does their part to make sure the children have the material to make the blankets," McLean said.

Second-grade teachers Krista Jarema and Chris Isch have alerted families of the annual penny drive where their students bring in coins to raise funds to purchase toys for the Community Christmas Project.

"We are already planning the shopping day for the kids," Jarema said. "Students really enjoy being part of this and we encourage everyone to give their coins for the cause."

Last year, year more than 400 children and 250 families were served at the Bethany Lutheran Church, which serves as a storage, organization-central and distribution headquarters.

For 34 years the Community Christmas Project has grown to include a variety of facets into the mix, creating a number of vital community partnerships such as the "Giving Tree" at St. Mary Church and the Episcopal Church's "Angel Tree," which allows community members to purchase gifts for area children and Toys for Tots have boxes all over Charlevoix waiting for community members to fill them for children throughout the community along with Charlevoix State Bank's Mitten Tree.

The success of the Community Christmas Project comes from the passion of women like the late Mary Helen Riggle, Rita Oriowski, Lucy Martin and Bev Boss, along with others who envisioned no family going without during the holidays, organizers said.

For more information about the Christmas Project programs and how to donate your time, contributions or how to adopt a family in the "Giving Tree" or "Angel Tree" contact co-chairs Mary Everleigh at (231) 547-5548, or Rebecca Jeake at (231) 547-3588.

Red Cross Nov. donation opportunities

PETOSKEY – This November, the American Red Cross encourages eligible donors to give the gift of a blood donation to help ensure a sufficient blood supply throughout the holiday season.

A decline in donations occurs from Thanksgiving to New Year's Day when donors are busy with family gatherings and travel. However, patients don't get a holiday break from needing lifesaving transfusions. In fact, every two seconds, someone in the U.S. needs blood.

The Red Cross encourages donors to start a new holiday tradition and bring family and friends together to donate blood or platelets. Donors of all blood types are needed to give this November to help ensure a sufficient supply for hospital patients. As a thank you for donating around the Thanksgiving holiday, all those who come to donate Nov. 24-28 will be invited to download a set of recipes from celebrity chefs.

To make an appointment to give blood, download the www.redcrossblood.org/bloodapp Red Cross Blood Donor App, visit www.redcrossblood.org or call (800) RED CROSS (800) 733-2767. Donors are encouraged to make appointments and complete the RapidPass online health history questionnaire at www.redcrossblood.org/RapidPass to save time when donating.

All blood types are needed to ensure a reliable supply for patients. A blood donor card or driver's license or two other forms of identification are required at check-in. Individuals who are 17 years of age in most states (16 with parental consent where allowed by state law), weigh at least 110 pounds and are in generally good health may be eligible to donate blood. High school students and other donors 18 years of age and younger also have to meet certain height and weight requirements.

The American Red Cross shelters, feeds and provides emotional support to victims of disasters; supplies about 40 percent of the nation's blood; teaches skills that save lives; provides international humanitarian aid; and supports military members and their families. The Red Cross is a not-for-profit organization that depends on volunteers and the generosity of the American public to perform its mission.

Local realtors receive Realtor Emeritus awards

CHARLEVOIX — Three local realtors received awards at the annual general membership meeting of the Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association of Realtors on Oct. 18, at the Weathervane Restaurant.

Association president, Tara Belford, presented the Realtor Emeritus Award to Steve Andraea of RE/MAX of Charlevoix, Rik Lobenherz of Berkshire Hathaway HomeServices in Charlevoix and Mark Kowalske of Cold-well Banker Schmidt in Boyne City.

The Realtor Emeritus designation is the most prestigious and highest honor that can be bestowed on a member by the National Association of Realtors. People that have maintained membership in the National Association for a cumulative period of 40 years are eligible for the status.

Andraea, Lobenherz and Kowalske joined the National Association of Realtors, Michigan Realtors and the Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association of Realtors in 1976.

Each recipient has served as board president and each has remained with the Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association throughout their 40 year careers.

The Antrim Charlevoix Kalkaska Association is proud to recognize the valuable and lasting contributions they have made to the real estate profession in their communities.

National Community Foundation week

The following is a guest commentary submitted by Chip Hansen, president of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation, and David Jones, executive director of the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation. National Community Foundation Week was the week of Nov. 14-18.

At a time when our differences are highlighted and many feel very divided, there is one thing we can all agree on: We love this corner of our country in northwest Michigan. Out of that affection and the desire to see our communities thrive, local people came together to establish the Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation 25 years ago. Since that time, we have worked diligently to connect donors with community needs and help people make a difference close to home.

When our incredible natural surroundings are protected and accessible, people make visiting our region a priority and all of us can enjoy our lakes, beaches, forests, and trails. When our children and families have the support they need, our communities are strengthened. When our history is preserved and our creativity is encouraged, our experiences are enriched.

The community foundations are supporting these vital areas of our communities and more by strategic grantmaking, this year alone totaling $4.3 million. Of equal importance is the effort to grow endowment resources so that years from now, whatever the current need or opportunity, your local community foundations will be able to respond for the good of friends and neighbors across the region.

As we celebrate National Community Foundation Week, we thank the thousands of individuals, families, businesses, and organizations who have made the good work of your local community foundations possible. We encourage you to learn more about how you can enhance the quality of life in Charlevoix and Emmet counties through the community foundations. Becoming involved is simple; the results are remarkable.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation and the Petoskey-Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation are public charities dedicated to improving and enriching the lives of people in their counties. The organizations hold various funds, all established by local donors. Some funds are earmarked for specific causes; others are open-ended to meet changing needs. The funds are held in permanent endowment so they can continue to grow and generate income to enhance the quality of life in our counties now and for generations to come. For more information, please contact the Charlevoix County Community Foundation at (231) 536-2440, www.c3f.org or the Petoskey Harbor Springs Area Community Foundation at (231) 348-5820, www.phsacf.org.

— ANOTHER — THANKSGIVING Miracle

© Rachel Cohen Photography

Michigan Beach – Charlevoix, Michigan

As you may remember, last Thanksgiving we had a miracle of saving the lives of 2 campers and their doggy who had no place to stay for the winter but the forest outside Mackinaw City.

I am happy to tell you that the Lord has given us another Thanksgiving miracle here in our hometown of Charlevoix.

Several weeks ago, I came back to Charlevoix from our home in Washington, DC to go fall kayaking with Team Schuiling. When I was downtown several people came up to me and told me that many of our citizens have no money to buy food to eat.

I was shocked and saddened by the stories they told me. I sat down on a park bench by our harbor and said a prayer.

The Lord asked me to help! I'm happy to tell you all that Karen and I will be giving the Charlevoix Food Pantry - the wonderful charity that has helped our less fortunate for over a quarter century - $375,000 to buy food for our brothers and sisters of Charlevoix.

Hopefully in the future, no one in our community will go to bed without having food to eat.

What if I had not come back to Charlevoix to kayak?

What if I hadn't gone for a walk downtown?

What if no one had come up to me and told me how our fellow citizens were hurting and could not buy food to eat?

Truly another Thanksgiving miracle for us all.

I hope, in the spirit of this Thanksgiving, that you will have the opportunity to help our less fortunate as we did.

It is why we are on this earth – to help others.

HAPPY THANKSGIVING TO YOU ALL.

With Affection,

Bill & Karen Schuiling

New faces, strong returners bode well for Charlevoix in upcoming season

JAMES CRONSTEDT
(231) 439-9343 • jcronstedt@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Last year was a season to forget for the Charlevoix girls basketball team, until the very end.

But that ending, along with a few new faces, has the Rayders looking like a team trending upward in 2016-17.

The Rayders capped a rough season in 2015-16 with a surprise run to the district final, and the return of all but two of the players from that squad bodes well for Charlevoix.

That's before you factor in the addition of a few new faces that could play big roles this season.

"We're still a young team, with only one senior, but many of the girls on our team got a lot of playing time as freshmen and sophomores on the varsity last year," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We just want to keep competing and keep growing as a team, because I think this group has a ton of potential in the future."

That future might come sooner than expected if returning junior starter Natalie Nesburg, as well as rotation players Emily Chomiczewski and Raigan Novotny, can take the next step.

Those three struggled with turnovers against pressure last season as first-year varsity players, but should be improved with experience, and the return of junior Rachel Nesburg, who missed all but two games with an ACL tear last season, should help as well.

Charlevoix and coach Liz Shaw (right) are looking forward to big improvement in 2016-17, with most of last year's team returning.

"Rachel's a player we really missed last season, because she's such a great leader and a stable presence on the court," Shaw said. "She's really stepped in this season and taken charge, which is great to see."

In the post, senior Beth Veenstra returns as a starter for the Rayders, while Ellie Louiselle and Olivia Jeakle should see increased minutes.

"Beth is our lone senior on this team and she brings good size and a lot of experience," Shaw said. "She's good both offensively and defensively and we're expecting her to have a strong season."

Along with those returning players, Charlevoix has another option in the post in 6-foot freshman Elise Stuck, who's expected to have an immediate impact on the varsity and who gives the Rayders three legitimate post players who are 5-11 or taller.

Another freshman, Abby Cunningham, will also see playing time, adding to a deep rotation that will give Charlevoix flexibility throughout the season.

While the Rayders are unlikely to knock off state-ranked squads in Traverse City St. Francis and Kalkaska, who will battle for the Lake Michigan Conference title this season, Charlevoix is in position to compete with Elk Rapids, Harbor Springs and Grayling for a top four finish.

A tough nonconference schedule that includes games against Cheboygan, St. Ignace, Bellaire and Petoskey should help prepare the Rayders for a potential state tourney run as well.

With St. Ignace, a state power in Class C, no longer in the same district, Charlevoix will have a chance to return to the district final this year and potentially bring home its first district title since the 2013-14 season.

The Rayders open the year at home, on Tuesday, Nov. 29 against Petoskey, and also travel to Cheboygan on Thursday, Dec. 1.

GAYLORD — Despite multiple first place finishes, the Charlevoix Stingrays took narrow losses to the host Gaylord Gators in both the boys and girls sides of a dual meet on Saturday, Nov. 12.

Thomas Gardner of Petoskey led the Stingray boys squad with three first place finishes, in the 200 freestyle, 50 freestyle and 100 backstroke, and Joe Gaffney of Charlevoix also won three titles, in the 100 individual medley, 50 butterfly and 50 backstroke.

MacKenzie, of Petoskey, also took first place in the 9-10 100 freestyle, and Mullaney took first place in the U8 25 breaststroke.

On the girls side, Elizabeth Barrutt, 17, of Charlevoix took first in the 100 butterfly and 50 freestyle, and Christina Barrutt, 15, of Charlevoix took first in the 200 individual medley, with both qualifying for the end of year MTSL state meet with their times.

Blaise Sytsma-Reed, 7, of Charlevoix won the 25 butterfly and backstroke for the Stingrays, and also joined her sister Lena, Grace Ewing of Petoskey and Addison Boop of Charlevoix on a winning 200 freestyle relay team.

With two meets in the books, the Stingrays now have nine state qualified swimmers, with the Barrutt sisters and Crook joining six from the season opener.

The Stingrays are off until Dec. 3, when they return to Gaylord for their first invitational.

Football
Dream TeamLove of the game helps Reeves bring home Player of the Year honor

JAMES GENSTERBLUM

(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

HARBOR SPRINGS — From the moment he strapped on pads for the first time as a third grader, football has had a special place in Harbor Springs senior Kern Reeves' life.

As an outlet for his energy and emotions growing up, as a source of balance and motivation for hard work, and as a place where he found a second family in his teammates, Reeves is grateful for the opportunities the game has given him.

"It's a one-of-a-kind game, because growing up it's one of the few ways you could work out your aggression and your anger and turn it into something positive," Reeves said. "The physicality, the discipline, the bonds you form; it all changes you for the better and I'm blessed to have been a part of it."

Of course, Reeves didn't just passively benefit from those opportunities, he went out and made the most of them, becoming one of the main engines of a Rams squad that had its best two year run in 15 years over the last two seasons.

Reeves rushed for over 1,000 yards to help the Rams break a 15 year playoff drought as a junior in 2015, but he saved his best year for this season, rushing for 1,187 yards and eight touchdowns on 162 carries while splitting time in the backfield, adding 117 yards and three touchdowns on nine receptions, and returning two kickoffs for touchdowns.

That production helped Harbor Springs overcome a 0-3 start to make the postseason for the second straight year, and also has earned Reeves Petoskey News-Review player of the year honors.

On offense, Reeves earned a reputation as the Rams' wrecking ball, almost never going down on first contact and frequently carrying multiple would-be tacklers for extra yardage.

That knack for creating yards after contact comes from 11 years of football experience, along with almost as many years spent in the weight room, Reeves said.

"The weight room is the foundation of success in football, no matter which position you play," Reeves said. "In the backfield, you need to have good running legs and a strong core to take hits, stay upright and keep driving."

"The only way you build that is by committing to the weight room every day, and building it up over years of work. That's what we did as a class at Harbor Springs, and it's why I think we were able to achieve what we did as a group."

While Reeves was electric both years offensively, it was the leap he made as a defensive player this season that

Whether it was on the offensive side or on defense, few teams had an answer to slow down Harbor Springs' Kern Reeves this season.

pushed him to another level as a player.

After a solid junior campaign at linebacker, Reeves made the move to free safety this season and thrived for the Rams, finishing with 101.5 total tackles, including four for loss, three interceptions, three forced fumbles, three pass break ups, four fumble recoveries and 2.5 sacks.

Reeves credited his massive jump in production defensively to his changed perspective as a free safety.

"Being a free safety still plays to my strengths, because I'm the clean-up crew on the back end and I can just come straight downhill and try to make a play most of the time," Reeves said. "That said, as a safety I see more of the field, and that perspective really helped me understand how our defense functioned and where I needed to be to make plays in a way that I didn't before."

Even when an injury forced Reeves to return to linebacker late in the season, that new understanding meant that he continued to make big plays for the Rams.

Perhaps Reeves' most important performance this season was as a leader.

Together with fellow Rams captains Cam Kennard, Skip Schorfhaar and Noah Erxleben, Reeves set the tone for the team and helped engineer a four-game winning streak to end the season.

"Kern's an interesting guy, because you have guys who are vocal leaders and guys who lead by example, and he's kind of both," Harbor Springs coach Rob Walker said. "He's quiet in practice, leading with his work ethic and focus, but when he gets on the field a different side of him comes out."

"He just finds another level as a leader and you really see the difference on the field in the way he's encouraging and motivating his teammates."

Reeves' career might yet continue on the next level, as the senior is still exploring his college options and is open to any opportunities that might pop up.

But no matter what happens next, Reeves will never forget what it felt like to suit up for the Rams on Friday nights.

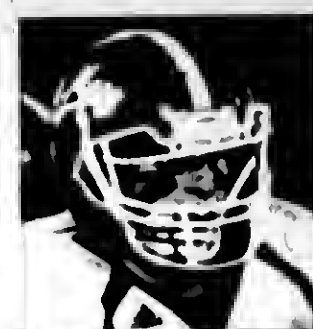

"That feeling before games when you take the field with your teammates, the band is playing and the crowd is cheering you on, it's something special," Reeves said. "There's nothing like that feeling, so you have to make the most of it while you have it, because it's gone too fast."

Coach of the Year:

Ron Bindi, Charlevoix

A football lifer, Bindi has been successful everywhere he's gone, but few accomplishments are as personal as what the coach was able to do in turning around his alma mater. A player under legendary Charlevoix coach Don Carey during his time in high school, Bindi brought an old-school focus on discipline and attention to detail over the past four years that paid dividends this season, as the Rayders finished with their best record in a decade, a playoff berth and Charlevoix's first win over rival Boyer City since 2011 despite fielding just 18 players on the varsity. Bindi's performance this season also attracted the attention of the Detroit Lions, who named him one of their coaches of the week.

Round Lake Gallery plans for future on Bridge Street

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — The devastating fire that destroyed two Charlevoix businesses and caused extensive smoke damage to the adjacent buildings on Nov. 13, cannot hold owner Kathy Ackerman down. Ackerman who owns the properties is understandably in the state of disbelief over the losses, but is dealing with the impact of the fire on a day-by-day basis.

"I am sad that this tragedy has affected so many artists and businesses. They are all as stunned as I am," Ackerman said, who opened Round Lake Gallery in June of 2012, featuring work by more than 100, mainly Michigan artists, vendors and craftspeople.

The store, with its prime location overlooking the harbor, showcased art, sculpture, hand-made articles, clothing, jewelry and home décor. Very little of Ackerman's inventory was spared in the fire; most was either damaged or destroyed.

"I'm still in the state of shock," she said, "but with the support of my family and so many friends in the community, I will be able to move forward."

Last year, however, Moses-McWatters lost her son, Jeremy Moses, to cancer in April as well as her mother earlier in the year in January and her father unexpectedly passed in June.

"I love Christmas and I was always the one to do a large Christmas and last year I realized it was just going to be my husband and I and about two or three people," Moses-McWatters said. "We went from about 20 people down to that."

Pearl Harbor remembered

CHARLEVOIX — Seventy-five years is a long time to carry a detailed memory of a specific moment about a day. But Dec. 7, 1941, wasn't an ordinary day.

The day that President Franklin Delano Roosevelt said would live in infamy certainly has in the memories of those old enough to remember that day.

Like other historic events in United States history, people alive can remember precisely what they were doing when they heard that the Japanese attacked the U.S. Navy base at Pearl Harbor; and some resident seniors at American House are among a shrinking number of Americans alive today who can remember the day Pearl Harbor was bombed.

The day came to be known as Pearl Harbor Day, which is set aside to honor the American servicemen who fell that Sunday morning in Hawaii. As we honor those servicemen, some American House seniors describe in detail and in their own words what they were doing when they learned of the attack.

Krist Food Mart stations expected to open by February

STEVE FOLEY
(231) 439-9397 - spfoley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Just after the new year, residents and visitors in Charlevoix will have two new options to fill up their tanks — along with their stomachs.

Construction continues on a pair of Krist Food Mart convenience stores and gas stations on both the north and south ends of Charlevoix with a completion date tentatively set for the middle to the end of January of the south side location, said construction superintendent KC Atanasoff of KSK General Construction Incorporated.

"We're done with all the external work and both roads (Mercer and Stover) are both fully reopened," Atanasoff said. "We're looking forward to getting the building shell completed within the next two or three weeks and a completion date on the south side story mid to the end of January."

Atanasoff said once the stores are completed, it takes about a week to merchandise.

"The north side location will be about a week behind that," Atanasoff said. "Somewhere around the first or second week of February the south side will open and a week to follow for the north side location."

The Krist Oil Company, which independently owns and operates 73 convenience stores across the Upper Peninsula, Northern Wisconsin and one in Minnesota, is one of the largest gasoline and diesel distributors in the U.P., according to the company's website.

School board approves spring athletic coaches, eighth-grade trip

STEVE FOLEY
(231) 439-3977
sfoley@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Public Schools Board of Education approved eight coaching positions for the upcoming spring athletic season and an eighth-grade trip to Washington D.C. for the 2017-18 school year as part of Monday's regularly scheduled meeting.

As recommended by Charlevoix Middle/High School athletic director Travis Garrett, the board unanimously approved Nick Vuilleumot for the varsity baseball coaching position along with Morgan Stewart, JV baseball; Nick Barnum, boys track; Doug Drenth, girls track; Tom Mielke, varsity softball; Sonia Dorst, JV softball; Keith Grunch, boys golf and Audra Randall, girls tennis.

The board also voted unanimously to approve Todd Klinger to coach the eighth-grade girls' basketball team this winter season. Also, the board approved a request submitted by Vuilleumot to approach local businesses to advertise and support Charlevoix baseball by displaying 4-by-8-foot banners, which will be hung on the fence of the field.

"It's really a bonding experience and we're traveling together those entire four days."

Todd Klinger

The board, which on Monday consisted of Douglas Bergmann, Tom Kirinovic, Mike Moon and Matt Peterson, also approved unanimously an eighth-grade trip to Washington D.C. for the current seventh-grade students for the 2017-18 school year.

Following a recent successful trip with the current eighth-grade students as organized by Middle/High School principal Suzanne Klinger and her team, a request was put in to plan the trip along same fall timeframe (Nov. 7-12) for next year.

"Time-wise as far as athletics, it's worked out well," Klinger said. "We've also noticed a huge difference in D.C. in just the traffic. Before in May it's tour bus, tour bus and tour bus and you really can't take in the whole city and get a perspective of everything around you."

Klinger also said now when student and supervisors visit the National Mall, they bike to the monuments rather than tour them by bus.

"It's super fun and the tour guides have been great," Klinger said. "The kids take in a lot during that time. It's something we want to keep on the trip."

Klinger, who presented a short video highlighting the eighth-grade trip following Monday's meeting, said the recent visit to Washington, D.C. was a great bonding experience.

"It was good being there during election week and on Veterans Day," Klinger said. "This year's eighth-grade class reminded me in four years we'll be there again on inauguration Day, because we take our seniors to inauguration."

"It's really a bonding experience and we're traveling together those entire four days," Klinger said. "They really just take care of each other and when they come back that comradery and team building and we're the class of 2021 will carry them for the rest of the year. It's an awesome experience."

Superintendent Michael Ritter updated the board of student growth committee work along with the facility study committee, which plans to meet Nov. 30 to look over survey data and information gathered regarding four potential options for the future of the school's three properties.

The Charlevoix Pack 11 Cub Scouts also attended Monday's board meeting as part of their Webelos activities as Brendan Anderson, Dylan Clapp, Killian Berrou, Peyton Scott, Justin Wittaler, Joshua Schultz, Jeremiah Cole and instructors Dave Clapp and Ryan Anderson were given a tour of the school's CTE (career and technical education) program classroom and lab by machine tech/CAD instructor Dwan Thola.

Kirinovic lauded the Cub Scouts attendance at Monday's meeting, and for Anderson and Berrou for asking questions during the public comments section.

"I want to thank you both for asking questions and for being respectful," Kirinovic said. "That's a great thing and we don't often ask enough questions as adults, I'm glad you guys are doing that and I encourage you to continue to do that because it's a great way of knowing what's going on."

City approves purchase of new police vehicle

LOREN ALLEN
(231) 547-4658
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The city soon will be adding a new police cruiser to its fleet.

Charlevoix City Council members unanimously approved a motion to purchase a 2017 Chevrolet Tahoe from Fox Charlevoix for $38,142 at their Nov. 21 meeting.

Charlevoix Police Chief Gerard Doan told the council he received a bid from Berger Chevrolet in Grand Rapids in cooperation with MI Deal for the same model with a police package for $40,986, but Fox Charlevoix came in with a lower bid which will include same police package and a three-year/36,000-mile warranty bumper to bumper and a 5-year/60,000-mile power train warranty.

"The vehicle from Fox Charlevoix is the same as what we were offered through the MI Deal program," Doan said.

The police vehicle will replace an aging 2009 Ford Crown Victoria with more than 100,000 miles.

"It is the oldest car we have in the fleet," Doan said.

The aging patrol car will be stripped of its law enforcement equipment and kept by the city to use as a training vehicle or for city business, he said.

Some of the police equipment will be repurposed for use in the new vehicle along with upgraded equipment to meet today's law enforcement needs.

"We will use what we can, but we will also need to purchase proper equipment to fit the Tahoe," Doan said.

The funds are set aside for the purchase of the vehicle in the 2016 police budget, which also includes money to pay for additional law enforcement equipment for the vehicle.

The Capital Improvement Plan recommends that two new vehicles be purchased every three years to keep the fleet up to date, he said.

Doan will meet with Fox Charlevoix representatives within the next week to finalize the details of the purchase before the city can take possession of the vehicle.

"At this time I do not know when we will get the new vehicle until my meeting at Fox," he said.

Charlevoix is part-time home to Olympic marathon runner

AMIE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — It's a long way to Rio, but 34-year-old Desiree Linden of Rochester, Michigan and Charlevoix is familiar with "going the distance."

A high school runner in San Diego, California, her home town, Linden was recruited by Arizona State University, where she ran cross-country for Charlevoix's Walt Drenth, current track and cross-country coach at Michigan State University.

Upon graduation, she joined the Hansons-Brooks Project located in Rochester, a training ground for Olympic hopefuls who qualify for the program. Only 150 athletes with a qualifying marathon time of 2 hours and 47 minutes are allowed entry; the top three runners from this elite group represent the USA at the Olympic Games. Linden is sponsored by Oakley, Timex, Power Bar and Brooks Running Gear who have awarded her a stipend as she trains.

"My time there is my full-time job," Linden said.

She has been in training at Hansons-Brooks since 2005. Although she did not qualify for the 2008 Olympics, she continued to train, running several marathons including the Boston and Chicago as well as competing in other marathons and world championships. In 2012, she placed second out of the three Hansons-Brooks finalists. Unfortunately, she was not able to complete the race due to a broken femur.

Undaunted, Linden went back to training at Hansons-Brooks after three months of therapy. It took almost a year to be completely healed from the injury and the 2016 Olympics were on the horizon. The next three years were focused on her goal of the 2016 Olympics. She ran the Boston Marathon, the New York Marathon and another in Berlin in preparation. This time she came in second once again and qualified to compete in Rio.

All three American marathon runners placed in the top 10. Women from Kenya, Ethiopia and Bahrain locked down the first three positions. Shalene Flannigan and Amy Cragg who trained in Portland, Oregon came in sixth and ninth respectively. Linden placed seventh.

"It was the best performance of American women marathon runners in the history of the Olympics," Linden said, who is understandably proud of her well-deserved accomplishment.

"We traveled there in June to check out the course and were pleasantly surprised to learn that the media hype about crime and the Zika virus were completely blown out of proportion," she said. "Both of our families came to Rio to be there for us and none of us ever felt unsafe. We never even saw a mosquito."

Linden and her husband, Ryan, met in Rochester and started dating and training together in 2007. Ryan's parents have a home in Rochester and also a summer home on Lake Charlevoix. He shares in his wife's passion for running. The 34-year-old ran and swam in high school and ran while attending Michigan State, though independently from the team.

He is currently employed by Mallory Safety and Supply Company in Rochester and claims running as an avocation. He has also participated in marathons including the Boston in 2012, one year before they were there. The couple who spend their free time at their Charlevoix home, run some races together, but Ryan prefers the triathlon (biking, running, and swimming) events. He tries to run two or three a year and recently ran the Iron Man Triathlon in Hawaii.

As for Desiree, she will be back at Hansons-Brooks training and anticipating the 2020 Olympics in Tokyo.

"As long as I'm healthy and having fun, I'll continue to train and compete," she said. "I love the Olympics. It's the only time every four years that most people really care about the sport I love."

Multi-tasking while behind the wheel: Just stop

Good evening, I'm the driver behind you. I just left work and I'm on my way to pick up my child at his after-school program. After that, I need to get home so I can make dinner, get lunches ready for tomorrow and go over my son's homework with him. There's probably a load of laundry I need to do as well. Once my son goes to bed, I should finish up some freelance work projects. I have things to do, and I know you do too.

I've been behind you for about 10 minutes now, so I feel like I can tell you a few things.

I notice that every time we're stopped at a red light, you grab your phone and start typing away. When the light turns green, you put the phone down.

I suppose you're proud of yourself for not texting while actually driving. Maybe you feel it's OK to pick up your phone while stopped to answer that text.

But here's the thing — you're still behind the wheel. And you're distracted. Did you even notice that three kids just crossed in front of you on their bikes? What would have happened if one would have fallen in front of your car without you noticing, and then had the light turn green?

HOW I SEE IT

Rachel Brougham

I know, I know — you have a million things to do. You're a busy parent, just like me. And if you could just get one more thing crossed off your to-do list while waiting at a red light, you'll save yourself some time. I mean, sending that text just takes a second.

I admit, I've done it too. I've had ideas for columns while sitting in traffic so I've texted them to myself. I've checked for an email. I've just checked to see if that person sent a new text. And for those who were behind me all those times, I'm sorry.

The thing is, I know what happens when someone takes "just a second" to check their phone while behind the wheel. A few months ago, a driver doing that very thing rear-ended my car. About a year before that, another driver backed into my car because he was distracted.

Just now I honked at you because the light was green and you were still looking at your phone. There's a long line of cars behind us and none of us want to sit through another red light at this intersection.

But instead of waving a polite "thank you" at me, you shot me a nasty look in your mirror and motioned like I was the one out of line. You think I'm the insensitive one here? If you were having your text conversation at home, or even in a restaurant, I wouldn't bother you. Except we're both on the road and you're the one being insensitive.

And we all know what you're doing. You're not fooling anyone when you look down at your lap. We know you're not making sure you're buckled in.

By now we all know texting and driving is bad. But we should also know multi-tasking at stop signs isn't good, either. It's dumb, it's dangerous and it's against the law.

So maybe just leave the phone down and keep your eyes on the road. I don't want to have to take my car to the shop yet again. Or deal with something even worse.

LETTER to the editor

Spaghetti dinner success because of restaurant support, volunteers

Editor:

The Charlevoix Historical Society extends its profound thanks to Charlevoix's Villager Pub and Terry Left for once again providing a venue for our supremely successful fundraising spaghetti dinner in early November. The tremendous support of this local restaurant over the years has helped us continue to do the work of restoring and maintaining our three historic structures: the Depot, the Museum at Harsha House and the South Pier Lighthouse. A special thank you also goes to all of the volunteers who served. Including Mike Hinkle and his staff from Charlevoix State Bank, as well as Terry's wonderful staff at Villager Pub for supporting the volunteers. Many, many thanks to The Pub and the State Bank for being great community benefactors.

Fabulous Fall for Charlevoix Public Schools

There is something special about being a Charlevoix Rayder that my family and I have quickly learned this past year. I think coach Ron Bindi stated it best during our football banquet the other night when he said "I will always be proud to be a Red Rayder."

We have much to be proud of from the past and the present in Charlevoix. I want to focus on just a couple from this fall.

Our students continue to perform at a high level as evidenced by our local and state assessment results in math and reading. In an effort to increase our achievement in math, our teachers worked with our administrative team this past spring to select math programs K-8 to provide the much needed consistency in approach as our students move through our district. The board of education supported the program expenditures this fall and we are off to a great start.

Thanks to our 2015 bond, we are able to move forward with plans to build an auxiliary gym at our Charlevoix Middle/High School campus. A team led by Travis Garrett, our athletic director, have been working with Ray Kendra from Environmental Architects to design the facility. Thanks to board approval in October, we anticipate taking this project to bid in January in hopes of breaking ground in May 2017.

Last February, we enlisted the help of community members, parents, and staff to study the current and future facility needs in our district. The committee has provided excellent guidance throughout the process and we are thankful to have received feedback from our community and staff in large part due to our facility surveys. The facility study committee will be meeting this week to determine the next important step(s).

Along with the success in the classroom, we have had many accomplishments on the field this fall. All of our sports teams have been very successful and I greatly appreciate our sports reporter, James Gensterblum, for highlighting that success in his recent article he entitled, "Rayders' special fall a sign of athletic program's strength". It is worth the read if you didn't catch it.

I wanted to close by sharing a few opportunities to see our fine arts programs in action in the coming weeks. Our performing arts will be performing 7 p.m. Friday and Saturday, Dec. 9-10, with a final performance 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 11, in our auditorium. Our band concert will be held at 7 p.m. Monday, Dec. 5, and our K-2 Christmas program will be held 6 p.m. Tuesday, Dec. 20. I hope to see you there.

LOOKING BACK...

This photo was taken from the roof of the tall Argo Milling Company grist mill building that stood beside the channel bridge, now the location of the Weatherlane restaurant. While the superstructure was made of metal, the roadbed was made of wood planking. At left, up in the girders, appears the bridge tender's house, from which the men who swung the bridge had a view down the channel and into Round Lake. Exactly 100 years ago, the Charlevoix Courier printed an article in which longtime bridge tender Elmer Johnson reported a peculiar phenomenon at the structure. It is known that marchers in formation, in particular massed military troops, have long been ordered to break rhythmic stride when crossing a bridge because the sympathetic vibrations they would otherwise create had the potential to shake it to pieces. To quote the Charlevoix Courier: "The time when rods and stays creak the loudest and the up and down heavings of the framework are the most severely felt high among the girders is when some inoffensive little dog steps on the planking. Ridiculous, you say. No, it is a well established fact and the explanation is this." The article then goes on to tell how the rhythmic pattern of a dog's trot is different from that caused by a man, horse, or car. The article concludes: "But it is so serious a matter that on many suspension bridges dogs are absolutely forbidden unless carried across. Elmer Johnson says that he can tell the moment a dog steps on the bridge."

Armchair Theatre presents: 'All is Bright'

CHARLEVOIX — The Armchair Theatre of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts will host a holiday open house called, "All is Bright" 2 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 4.

To celebrate the season, piano stylist Ruth Willis will feature holiday music joined by Santa played by guitarist Billy P and his elf, vocalist Kate Heady. The timeless classic movie, "A Christmas Carol" based on the novel by Charles Dickens will be playing during the day.

Ruth Willis is chair of the Performing Arts Committee at the Circle and has been a piano stylist since her teenage years. Trained in classical piano, Ruth now plays hundreds of melodies for various events.

"As a piano stylist, I play as an actress," Ruth said, "You play the feelings inside that the songs sometimes hide."

Ruth is a great admirer of Beegie Adair, another piano stylist that Ruth said, "plays with skill and freedom."

Billy P and Kate Heady met at the Morel Mushroom Festival in Boyne City where they were both contestants at an open-mic event. Billy is from Cheboygan and takes advantage of his white beard while playing the role of Santa. Kate performs as Santa's elf as she felt too young to be Mrs. Claus. Together they perform seasonal songs and a few surprises.

This heartwarming afternoon will be the perfect time to browse at "The Snowman Shoppe" which showcases holiday gifts created by area artisans. A bonus to holiday shopping at the Circle of Arts is the complimentary gift wrapping station where visitors can listen to music, have a beverage and some food and leisurely wrap and personalize gifts.

"All is Bright" will conclude the 2016 season of Armchair Theatre at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts. It will be the 30th program produced by the Armchair Theatre since its debut of "Poe's Last Night" showcasing David Crawford, internationally known actor at Castle Farms in the summer of 2014. The performances have included plays, orations, dance dancing and music, featuring both professional and amateur actors and musicians from Northwest Michigan.

There is a suggested $5 donation for the Armchair Theatre productions.

Local community foundation releases 2016 report

EAST JORDAN — The Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently released its 2016 annual report, "Giving Back. Moving Forward." The report builds on the recent re-branding that the foundation undertook last year, that focuses on the idea that when people give back it helps move the community forward.

"Our whole organization exists because people are willing to give," said Chip Hansen, foundation president. "Giving back is something that we as a foundation are able to do because of the generosity of so many friends who are supportive of our mission. We can't thank them enough for the way they have made community improvements a priority here in Charlevoix County."

This year, the foundation distributed 532 grants totaling more than $1.8 million, which is more than has been distributed in any year prior. The grants support causes both small and large. Grant amounts range from as little as several hundred dollars up to tens of thousands of dollars. These funds support local, state, national and international nonprofit organizations in a variety of ways. Foundation grants offer assistance across multiple areas that benefit the community holistically, including health and human services, arts and cultural programming, recreation, education, environmental conservation and more.

In the report, photographs and articles detail the impact of several grants. One featured grant helped bring a nationally-known speaker to area schools to talk about ways students can be "victim-proof." Another grant helped Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital expand and update its surgical wing. Several additional grants supported programs through Raven Hill Discovery Center and the Little Traverse Conservancy that encourage children to engage with nature in hands-on ways. The report also discusses grants that supported Challenge Mountain, an organization that provides recreational activities for youth with disabilities and their families. Members of the Foundation's Youth Advisory Committee are also mentioned, as the committee continues to provide leadership and learning opportunities for teens, making grants that benefit youth in the county.

"Every year, I look at the impact that our grants are having across the county, and I'm amazed," Hansen said. "There are hundreds of projects that have been made possible because of the generous nature of so many people. The Community Foundation plays a role in so many things that we take for granted, such as paved walking/biking trails, beautiful tree-lined streets, access to health care, school reading programs and other educational enhancements, concerts in the park and even hospital medical equipment all exist in part because of support from the Community Foundation."

The foundation report also lists each of its 257 funds, each with a distinct purpose defined by the donor who established it. Some are unrestricted to be able to meet the changing needs of the community, and some are earmarked for specific causes. To receive a copy of the "Giving Back. Moving Forward." annual report, call (231) 536-2440 or visit www.ccf.org.

The Charlevoix County Community Foundation is a charitable organization that is dedicated to improving and enriching life for all who live in our area. Founded by a group of local citizens in 1992, the organization has grown to be a valuable resource for our county, distributing millions of dollars in grants over the past twenty-plus years.

Moving forward means dealing with the minutiae of insurance issues and the loss of the original artwork in the gallery.

"We can't move into the planning stage of restoring and rebuilding until we receive the State Fire Marshal's assessment," Ackerman said.

The investigation into the cause of the fire could take another few weeks, said Bob Jess, of Jess Construction, of Charlevoix.

"Until then our hands are tied," he said.

Ackerman and Jess became acquainted when in 2015 they teamed up to develop a patio area behind Johan's bakery, the patio a Charlevoix Leadership Class project. Unfortunately the patio also was destroyed in fighting the blaze.

"Bob has been with me for consultation from the day of the fire," Ackerman said, "and continues to offer construction ideas."

The future of the building remains unknown until engineers can get in to view the structure.

"A lot depends on the structural engineer's evaluation as to what we can design for the space," said Jess.

In the meantime he will be drawing up preliminary drafts based on suggestions and discussions among Ackerman and a small group of advisers including Jess, realtor Alicia Doan and Ackerman's family members.

"It's a process of dream, plan and construct going forward and we are only beginning to recover," said Ackerman.

Dreams include replacing the three separate storefronts, adding condominium units above, and/or creating new spaces designed for the possibility of connecting two buildings into complimentary businesses. Design and materials ideas are being discussed.

"You will need to consider handicapped access and parking along with facility purpose," said Doan.

Involved parties agree that their decisions will be made with careful forethought as to the functionality of the property. What Charlevoix needs and how the buildings will look will be carefully considered in conjunction with the Charlevoix Main Street project.

An account has been set up by Ackerman on the "GoFundMe" website to help raise money for artists who have taken a loss. The rental occupants of Ackerman's other two buildings affected, Johan's and Charlevoix Wear, are still weighing their options as construction of new buildings may not be completed in time for the summer season.

"We are all hopeful that this tragedy will somehow be turned into something positive for our family and for the community."

Rosalyn J. Goldstick, 97

Rosalyn J. Goldstick completed her most incredible poem of life on Saturday, Nov. 26, 2016, at the age of 97 years young.

She was born to David and Esther Lieberman on Sept. 8, 1919, in Sapulpa, Okla. Her family moved to Atchison, Kan., where she attended school and business college. Too short to enlist in the Armed Forces and too small to tackle teaching high school students, she worked for a doctor until World War II and then for a factory providing food supply to the troops.

Rosalyn met Clarence E. Goldstick while at the U.S.O./G.S.O. club, and after the war ended, married him on Sept. 27, 1947. She came to Charlevoix (after visiting in the summer!) to start their family. As soon as her feet hit the ground she joined Temple B'nai Israel and their Sisterhood, Charlevoix Chapter 72 Order of the Eastern Star, the VFW Auxiliary, and later the American Legion Auxiliary.

Even while working and raising a family, she went on to volunteer for the Charlevoix Hospital, Charlevoix Historical Society, Charlevoix Public Library and the Rainbow Shop. She dedicated herself to helping her many friends establish a Senior Citizens Center where she remained a volunteer until her health failed.

Rosalyn's hobbies included writing poetry (two books published), creating newsletters for organizations, reading, knitting and crocheting, potlucks and fundraising. Her passion in life was helping others in any way she could and was selfless in serving.

She was preceded in death by her sister, Doretha Rosen; and husband, Clarence Goldstick.

Surviving are sons, David Goldstick and Jon Goldstick; daughter, Trudi Rightsell; grandchildren, Jacquelyn Ferguson, Edward Goldstick and Kendra Rightsell; and great-grandchildren, Alexis, Jonathan, Jacob, Rosalyn and Brinley.

Visitation is scheduled at Winchester Funeral Home, Thursday, Dec. 1, from 6-8 p.m. Funeral services will be held at Winchester Funeral Home, Friday, Dec. 2, at 11 a.m., followed by burial services at Greenwood Cemetery in Petoskey. A private family dinner will follow.

Memorial donations may be made to: Temple B'nai Israel, P.O. Box 2416, Petoskey, MI 49770.

Please visit Rosalyn's guestbook at www.winchesterfuneralhome.com.

Krist Food Mart stores offer competitive gas/diesel prices, pay at the pump, ATM, lottery, propane cylinder exchange and free automotive air. In addition, the two locations will provide services such as convenience store-type shopping and grocery options including meats.

The two Charlevoix locations will be the first two constructed in the Lower Peninsula. The company had been looking to bring their stores to the area several years.

Atanasoff said two locations are being constructed in order to meet the demand of customers at both ends of Charlevoix along U.S. 31.

"Just with the bridge and the amount of traffic, especially seasonal traffic, they wanted to accommodate both ends of the city," Atanasoff said. "Plus you have highway 66, which also funnels a lot of traffic along 31."

Atanasoff said he and crew members have been working diligently with the Michigan Department of Transportation, Charlevoix Township and the municipality throughout construction in order to keep traffic moving smoothly and safely.

"I just know they're (Krist representatives) excited to open them up," Atanasoff added. "They want to fit the needs of customers and there was a need for a grocery store option on the north side of town."

Chuck Center, Charlevoix Township supervisor, said he and township members welcome both locations to the area.

"They've passed all the necessary requirements and have been very cooperative with our planning commission," Center said.

Krist also agreed to move eight trees from near the south side location to township property.

"Before they bought the property, there were trees planted as part of the township's Southside Beautification Project," Center said. "They (Krist) agreed to have them moved and paid to have them moved. Four trees were moved by the bike path and four trees were moved near the township hall on the north end of town."

PEARL HARBOR

Benton Harbor.

"I was in the kitchen with my dad and we were listening to a program on the radio when the program was interrupted about the news of the bombing," Peters said.

"The news came across that the Japanese had bombed Pearl Harbor and I could tell my father was upset. It was scary to know we were attacked."

It was the next day when Roosevelt would give his speech to the nation.

"I remember the day that war was declared — Dec. 8, 1941 — everything was different even at school things were different," Peters said.

Daily life was different and several times each week her family huddled around their radio to listen to President Roosevelt and his fireside chats.

Shoes, butter, sugar, gasoline and cars were rationed. Friends were gone from school.

But no one seemed to mind. Everyone wanted to support the war effort, she said.

"Some of these boys that were in school immediately were old enough to go into the military service. They didn't even get to finish high school," Peters said. "All of a sudden, that one day changed our whole lives."

Helen Pike, 100, of Beaver Island said in early August of 1941 several men on the island associated with the Coast Guard were relocated to assist with the war effort.

"They were shipped out for some type of sea duty because of the skills of operating small boats in rough seas," Pike said. "I guess that put Beaver Island involved with the war before Pearl Harbor."

Pike was living and working downstate when she heard the news about Pearl Harbor.

"I was living in Grand Rapids and just come from church at St. Andrews Cathedral," Pike said. "It was on the radio that Pearl Harbor was gone. I couldn't believe it. No one could believe it. Japanese ambassadors had been in meetings in Washington, D.C., negotiating with our government. They have been going place to place assuring everybody there that they were here on peace."

After the bombing and war was declared, it was clear the people were angry at the men who were supposed to be promoting peace in the nations' capital, Pike said.

"I didn't know what was going to happen to the Japanese ambassadors, but it was clear that everybody I knew wanted to hang them," Pike said. "It was treachery. Everything appeared as if they were trying for peace. They had been buying metal from us for 10 years. We were just angry and it was a very traumatic time for all of us."

Betty Zipp, 91, of Charlevoix, was in the 10th grade and she was home with her family when they heard the news about the bombing.

"It was late Sunday when the radio program was interrupted about the bombing," Zipp said. "We were just stunned. I didn't know much about what it meant at that time, but my parents were terribly upset."

The next day, Zipp and her family listened to the radio as President Roosevelt asked Congress to declare war.

People went to church, work, school and did everything they could to help the country. They sang patriotic songs in school, knitted and other projects.

"We were ready to help after that," Zipp said. "We did knitting and we went to work making helmets and did whatever we could to help our country. We also remained prepared in case another attack came to America."

The attack, which killed more than 2,400 Americans, galvanized the country and set the course for the rest of World War II.

"One thing it did do, young men enlisted by the millions," Zipp said. "We were just amazed at how quickly everyone came together to turn this country toward victory after the attack. (Americans) wasted no time."

family to get me through the holidays."

Moses-McWatters took to social media one evening and put out a request on Facebook looking for a family to adopt to cover the cost of a Thanksgiving dinner.

When she awoke the following morning she discovered there were 12 families that needed help.

"I couldn't afford to do it all and I didn't want to pick so I developed a group and put it out there," Moses-McWatters said. "We accomplished everything we put our mind to and had a complete Christmas for 27 kids ranging from stocking stuffers, outfits, wrapping paper, gift tags, tape and everything."

"Families didn't have to do anything but wrap the gifts."

Moses-McWatters' Facebook page titled Jeremy Moses' Holiday Adoption has grown throughout the year to now more than 1,000 members. It features auction items which are updated almost daily from various community members and businesses.

"Starting in January, we had some stuff around the house I didn't want and I put up an auction on Facebook," Moses-McWatters said. "It started to evolve. I'm starting to get donations from different people and businesses to the point where now I'm putting up things every day."

One room inside Moses-McWatters' home located on Old U.S. 31 South at the former Safe Harbor Baptist Church is filled with Christmas items ready to be delivered to families in need.

"Last year, my budget was around $3,200," Moses-McWatters said. "This year it'll be a little bit more."

Moses-McWatters said this year she and her other son decided to reach out to more families affected by cancer or other severe illnesses.

"I got a hold of a social worker at McLaren and got a hold of the Monson hospital social worker and went to a meeting at Fillmore's with a group called the Cancer Crusaders and told them what we wanted to do," Moses-McWatters said.

Currently, Moses-McWatters has 15 families she'll assist with Thanksgiving dinners. She's already made several deliveries with turkey and all the Thanksgiving meal trimmings.

"We're pulling together and we can always use a little extra financial help," Moses-McWatters said. "I would love next year to help 50 families or even 100 families, but in order to do that we need financial help and the more I can get people involved, the better."

Moses-McWatters said helping others in need around the holidays not only makes her feel good, but it's been a great grief coping mechanism, which has helped fill a large void of her loss.

"Jeremy loved Christmas and even the last Christmas that we had, he was excited to get the kids in bed and was planning who would get what and what to put in each stocking," Moses-McWatters said. "Even though he wasn't feeling well, he enjoyed it."

"This is my way of giving back."

She's also always looking for new members to the Jeremy Moses' Holiday Adoption Facebook page, along with monetary and donation items.

"I want to do this for as long as I'm able to," Moses-McWatters said. "It helps me through the holidays and we are really hoping to be more centered on cancer patients or those suffering with severe illness."

"If we can change somebody's life in a matter of hours for the holiday, it makes it worth it," she added. "People did that for us when we were going through tough times with my son."

Stuck's big night leads Rayders past Petoskey in season opener

DREW KOCHANNY
(231) 439-9345 • dkochanny@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — One would never have guessed that Tuesday night came as Elise Stuck's first varsity game as a Charlevoix basketball player.

Up against a Class A program with size to match most teams around the state, Stuck seemed unfazed by the leap from middle school basketball to varsity in a year's time.

Led by the 6-foot-1 freshman's double-double on opening night, the Rayders pulled out a thrilling 43-39 home victory over Petoskey on Tuesday, erasing the memory of a 36-point loss to the Northmen last season.

Coming off an All-State volleyball season, and blocking out some high expectations, Stuck finished with a 21-point, 11-rebound night.

"I'm really proud of her because there's a lot of people talking about her and that's pressure," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said of her freshman. "She came out and played within herself and did things that I asked of her that we didn't even practice. She just rose to the occasion."

Shaw came away impressed with her entire Rayder team as well, as they moved on from the tough breaks of a year ago.

"I expected us to come out and play hard," she said. "Last year we took so many hits and they hurt, so I know that there's fire in these girls this year. They just want to keep getting better and rise to the top. It doesn't surprise me.

"I'm so proud of them. I knew Petoskey was going to be tough and when you have tough vs. tough, it's a close game like it was the whole night."

Petoskey trailed 10-7 after the opening quarter, then fell behind by five early in the second quarter due to some breakdowns on the defensive end.

"I think we had some communication breakdowns," Petoskey coach Bryan Shaw said. "We had girls that weren't here over break and it showed tonight because they didn't know what we were doing."

Foul issues took over for both teams midway through the second quarter, but neither team would be able to pull out with a commanding lead due to troubling trips to the line on each side.

The Rayders still clung to a one point lead in a 21-20 game at halftime.

In the third quarter, each team traded baskets for just a total of eight points, with Stuck and Petoskey's Jalynn Byers picking up four points each in another one point game.

Belvedere named MGCOA 2016 Michigan Golf Course of the Year

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix's Belvedere Golf Club has long been one of Northern Michigan's most beloved courses.

Recently, that praise has begun to come in from more than just Northern Michigan.

The latest honor comes from the Michigan Golf Course Owners Association, who named the club's course, founded in 1925, as the 2016 Michigan Golf Course of the Year.

"We were notified by MGCOA that we'd been nominated by someone, and put together a package for their consideration," Belvedere general manager David Gray said. "Obviously, it's a huge honor to be selected out of the many excellent and deserving courses throughout the state, and it's another sign that as a club we're doing well right now."

According to a press release from the MGCOA, the Belvedere Club met all four criteria for the award, starting with the quality of the course.

Designed by famed architect William Watson, the management at the Belvedere Club has kept the course true to its roots and it's stood the test of time, with several memorable holes and a layout that's challenging enough to host championships (including the Michigan Ama-

CHARLEVOIX — New faces and a new coach have the Charlevoix boys basketball team taking on a different look heading into the 2016-17 season.

Gone are all-state post Austin Putman and all-area guard Walker Drost, who provided the bulk of the team's scoring the last two seasons, as well as four other senior contributors and coach Bret Erskine, who guided the team to multiple winning seasons.

In their place, first-year head coach Matt Stuck has a young and talented squad who will have to get up to speed quickly with their new roles for the Rayders to have success.

"We've got 10 juniors, so it's a pretty inexperienced team, but there's a lot of athleticism and talent in this group," Stuck said. "We're very excited about the potential this team has."

The Rayders will rely heavily on two returning starters, senior Kevin Pearl and junior Colin Smith, to provide leadership and scoring.

Both Pearl and Smith excelled in complementary roles last season, but will have to diversify their games and carry a bigger load offensively this year.

So far, according to Stuck, both have looked ready for the increased spotlight, and seniors Luke Buday, Cameron Clark and Brad Klinger all have of the night since a 2-2 game early in the first, when sophomore Megan Kolp grabbed a rebound and laid in a shot off the glass in a 31-31 game with just over four minutes remaining.

Charlevoix's Olivia Jealke responded with a basket to put the Rayders back up, then free throws by Natalie Nesburg and Beth Veenstra, and a jumper by Stuck made it a 37-31 game.

A late surge by Petoskey, led by junior guard Megan Hannah, was enough to pull back within four, but that's as close as the final minutes came for Petoskey in the loss.

Hannah scored 10 points to lead Petoskey, while Kolp added eight points and a strong night on the glass.

Isabel Anderson finished with seven points for Petoskey, while Byers and Katie Holka each scored six points.

Also for Charlevoix, Jealke scored six and pulled down six rebounds, Rachel Nesburg scored six and had three steals, Veenstra added four points and Stuck added three steals and a pair of assists.

"Everybody came in and played quality minutes," added Liz Shaw. "We had three starters in foul trouble. That's tough, but it showed we won't need to rely on one person this season. It's the team that's going to win."

Charlevoix will next travel to Cheboygan on Thursday, Dec. 1.

teur 40 times, a record) while still being playable enough to accommodate weekend golfers.

In fact, based on a recent discovery of the original plans for the course, the Belvedere is in the process of making alterations to closer reflect its original state and strengthening its link with the past.

The Belvedere matches its quality of course with the quality of management and staff, who have maintained a singular vision and kept the course running at a high level for decades.

"We're proud of our entire staff for the work they've done, but in particular our greens superintendent, Rick Grunch, who's outstanding at his job and whose experience really shows in the state of the course every year, and our head pro, Marty Joy," Gray said. "Marty is not only an excellent golfer and a teacher but also a true historian of the game and of the unique history of the Belvedere, which makes him a perfect fit for this course."

On top of its quality, the Belvedere Golf Club also earned the honor for its charitable work, which includes fundraisers for the local hospital and library, its place as a host of the nationally-acclaimed Charlevoix Junior Golf Association, and its program, now in its 19th year, to provide college scholarships for its workers.

"We're a semi-private club, but the vast majority of our members live in Charlevoix and take great pride in their community," Gray said. "We see it as a very important part of our mission to give back to our community, and we're very grateful for the support the community gives us as well."

As a part of its charitable work, the Belvedere Golf Club also does a great deal to grow the game of golf, the fourth criteria for the award.

On top of playing a big role with the CCJGA, as mentioned above, which helps youth from across Charlevoix County learn the game of golf in an inexpensive way, the Belvedere Club is also the home course for the Charlevoix Rayder high school golf teams, and played a role in helping start the Rayder girls program in 2014.

That girls squad qualified for the state finals in just its third season of existence in October.

PREVIEW

shown improvement after coming off the bench last season.

Charlevoix adds a large and talented junior class to that core, with several strong players moving up from the junior varsity.

Danny Nesburg and Josh Carlson were the two leading scorers on last year's JV squad and should see immediate playing time for the Rayders, and several other new faces will get a chance to earn minutes and make their mark.

"With as young as we are, we're not going to be able to bring these guys along slowly," Stuck said. "We're going to need them to step in and contribute right away, and so far they've looked like they're ready for that."

"It's a really good group, and they're picking up our philosophy and the way we want them to play quickly."

Last year, the Rayders had a middle-of-the-pack finish in a very tough Lake Michigan Conference, and the league should be rugged again, with a large pack of teams chasing presumed front-runners T.C. St. Francis and Grayling.

Whether or not Charlevoix can challenge the Gladiators and Vikings for the league crown will depend on how fast the squad gels as a team and how quickly its players adjust to the varsity level and to new roles.

With defending district champion Boyne City and fellow district foes East Jordan, Harbor Springs and Inland Lakes all recovering from their own heavy graduation losses, the door is also open for the Rayders to claim their first district crown since 2009 if they can put it all together.

A challenging nonconference schedule might hurt the team's overall record, but should prepare the Rayders well for that postseason run, with games against Class A Gaylord, Class D quarterfinalist Bellaire, and traditional powers St. Ignace and Maple City Glen Lake on top.

"Our goal is to get better every day, keep our players developing and making sure we're playing hard in every game," Stuck said. "I want us to become that team that no one wants to see on their schedule by the end of the year, and that'll set us up really well to chase our goals in the state tournament."

Charlevoix travels to St. Ignace on Tuesday, Dec. 6 to open the season, with home games against Bellaire on Dec. 8 and Harbor Springs on Dec. 13 to follow.

The Rayders play host to the district tournament this year, which should give Charlevoix's title hopes a boost as well.

Coach of the Year:

Brooke Groff, Pellston

The Pellston High School volleyball team has always had a long tradition of success. Long before head coach Brooke Groff took over six years ago, but in those six years, Groff has kept the program going at a high rate better than anyone. This season Groff helped lead the Hornets to their sixth straight district championship and helped them to an upset win over Brimley to begin regional play and advance to a regional final once again this season. She's coached multiple All-State, All-Conference and All-Area selections, including this season. Through district play this season, Groff's team never dropped a set, earning a clear sweep and 9-0 record through the Mackinaw City district. She also helped coach the team to impressive wins over Mt. Pleasant Sacred Heart, Cedar Springs and Reed City later in the year.

Challenge accepted Petoskey's Kartes sets up Player of the Year season

DREW KOCHANNY

(231) 439-9345 • dkochan@petoskeynews.com

Petoskey's Ashlyn Kartes has always been in search of a bigger challenge on the volleyball court.

When she was young, just beginning in the sport, she stuck to being the setter on the floor, a position that can arguably be the most critical on the court and one involved in each play.

After beginning her high school career at Boyne City, Kartes sought a higher level of competition at the high school level by transferring to Petoskey, where she took on high schools four-times the size of her previous conference.

Beyond high school, Kartes' AAU travel team, based out of Midland, became the top in the state.

Even after both high school and AAU end, Kartes will continue to challenge herself at the collegiate level at Grand Valley State University.

Seeking out the next and a bigger challenge for Kartes is just one reason the senior concludes her final year as the Petoskey News-Review Player of the Year.

"She has such a great volleyball IQ and is such a student of the game," said Petoskey coach Heather Miller on Kartes' continued success in the sport. "She's dedicated herself since a young age to making herself better. She just understands the game well."

A tough decision to leave Boyne City after her sophomore season, Kartes now knows the move paid off.

"I think in moving to a bigger school it will help me when I go to Grand Valley because that's a lot more kids too," she said. "The move just made it an easier transition for high school to college."

Added Miller on the move: "It was a big step, but it was a good step in the direction she was going."

In her final year as a Northmen, Kartes finished with 652 assists, 342 digs and 148 kills, while adding a team high 52 aces and 28 blocks.

Over the past two years she's totaled 324 kills and 119 aces, proving to be much more than just a setter against the likes of Class A volleyball power Traverse City West and Class B power, Cadillac.

The Northmen also earned a combined 61 wins over the previous two years and multiple tournament wins.

Before her senior season even took place though, Kartes was busy preparing on her AAU team, one that earned a Michigan Junior Volleyball Association (MJVBA) state championship and earned a trip to the AAU National Championships in Orlando.

Led by coach Kristin Eddy, her 17U National North team earned the 17-open division title, led by the 5-foot-11 Kartes as the team's setter of course, a position she took on from youth coach Castle Parker.

"I just stuck with that," said Kartes of the position. "I'm left handed, so that worked and she thought I would be tall and I ended up being tall. It just worked. I like how you're always involved in all of the plays."

Like making the high school jump, Kartes sees her AAU team as a big contributor to her success.

"It's really helped me," she said. "High school is only three or four months and AAU is like eight months. You're with your AAU team almost more than your high school team. The high level of play really helps."

Miller also echoed that sentiment.

"They play at a faster pace, they play with more elite athletes than she sees every day in the high school season and that's a great springboard for her," said Miller.

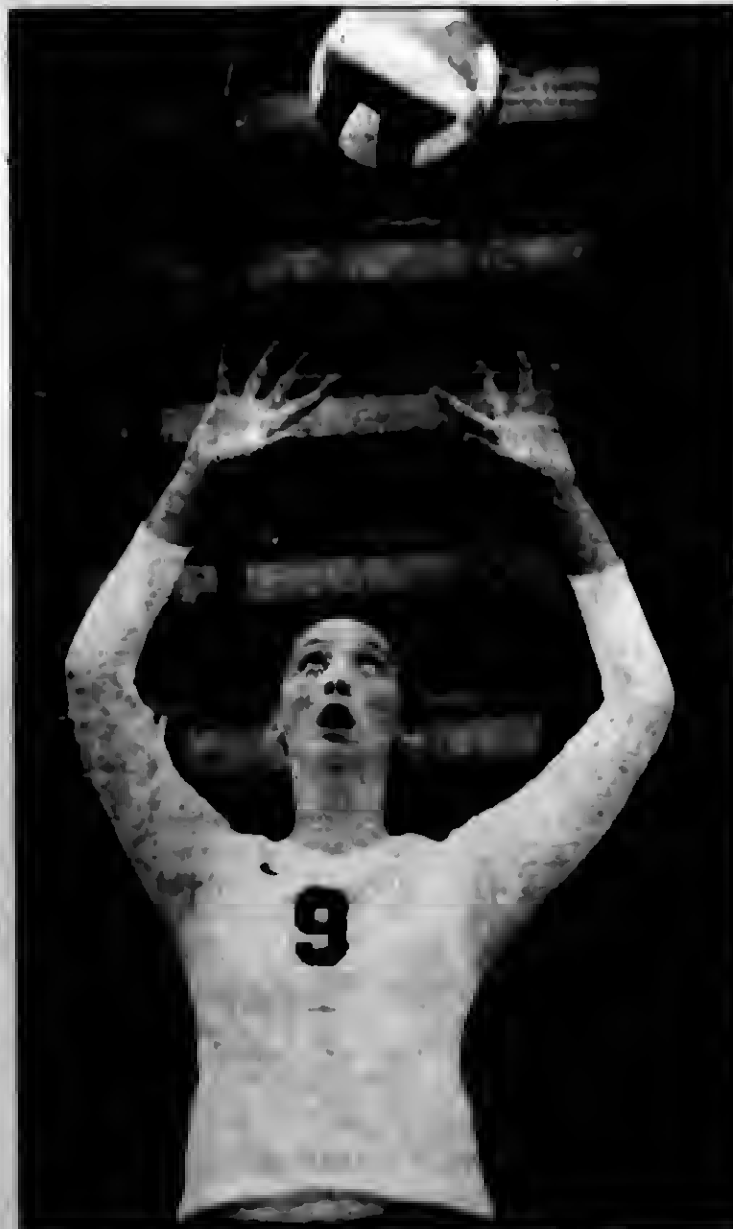

Now in between seasons, the final transition of high school to AAU, Kartes is going a bit stir crazy without volleyball at the moment.

"Right now AAU doesn't really start until January, so right now I don't really know what to do with myself," Kartes said after signing with GVSU last week. "I don't really have anything to do."

It won't be long before her final AAU challenge ends and another begins at Grand Valley, though.

Just another challenge to take on and most likely find success in on the court.

"If she continues on the same road that she's been on and dedicates herself to making herself the best she can be, I have no doubt that she'll make an impact there," added Miller.

Building tomorrow's future

Elementary school's FIRST LEGO League teams set for competition

STEVE FOLEY

(231) 439-9397 • spfoley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — More than a dozen of tomorrow's innovators and creators will be working together Saturday when a pair of Charlevoix Elementary School FIRST (For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology) LEGO League teams will travel to Lake Superior State University for a seven-team competition on Saturday.

Overseen by Charlevoix Middle High School science and honors chemistry teacher Tom Schultz, the Charlevoix Maroon Platoon and Raydemators involves 14 students who have researched a real-world problem with this year's theme slugged "Animal Allies."

Students on each team have helped in the designing, building and programming of a robot using Lego Mindstorms, and are also challenged to develop a solution to a problem animals might face.

The Raydemation team comprised of Braylen Phillips, Alaida Todd, Liam Speer, Jesse DeLaCruz, Aidan Boop, David Dhaseleer and Emmet Bergmann along with lead student coach Mario Schwartzfisher, student coaches Mikala Martincheck and Maggie Potter and coach/teacher Michelle Bowen reached out to the Charlevoix Area Humane Society and designed an organic cat tower.

The Maroon Platoon team made up of Justin Whisler, Scott Bush, Joshua Schultz, Dylan Clapp, Trevor Bonar, Landen Roloff, Sarah Wyglendowski and lead coach Thomas Lynskey, coaches Grace Ochs and Robin Lynskey and coach/teacher

Bridge closing harder for some

LONNIE ALLEN

(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The closing of the bascule bridge that crosses the Pine River Channel is tentatively scheduled for mid-March. But planning for the closures proves to be harder for some.

Michigan Department of transportation officials will notify the public and local government officials about the exact dates once the information becomes available, until then many businesses and organizations are creating plans to work around the nightly bridge closings.

"We look forward to further information as it develops," Mark Heydlauff, Charlevoix city manager, said. "We expect there will be no interruption of city services during the closures."

The $1.9 million project will begin Dec. 12 and run through Memorial Day weekend. The tentative start date for the night bridge closures is March 17. During that time the bridge will be closed from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. for a maximum of 12 consecutive nights, said Jay Gaillitis, manager and professional engineer at the MDOT Transportation Service Center in Gaylord.

"These dates are subject to change," Gaillitis said. "Contractors are only able to give a preliminary timeline to when they will begin that phase of the work."

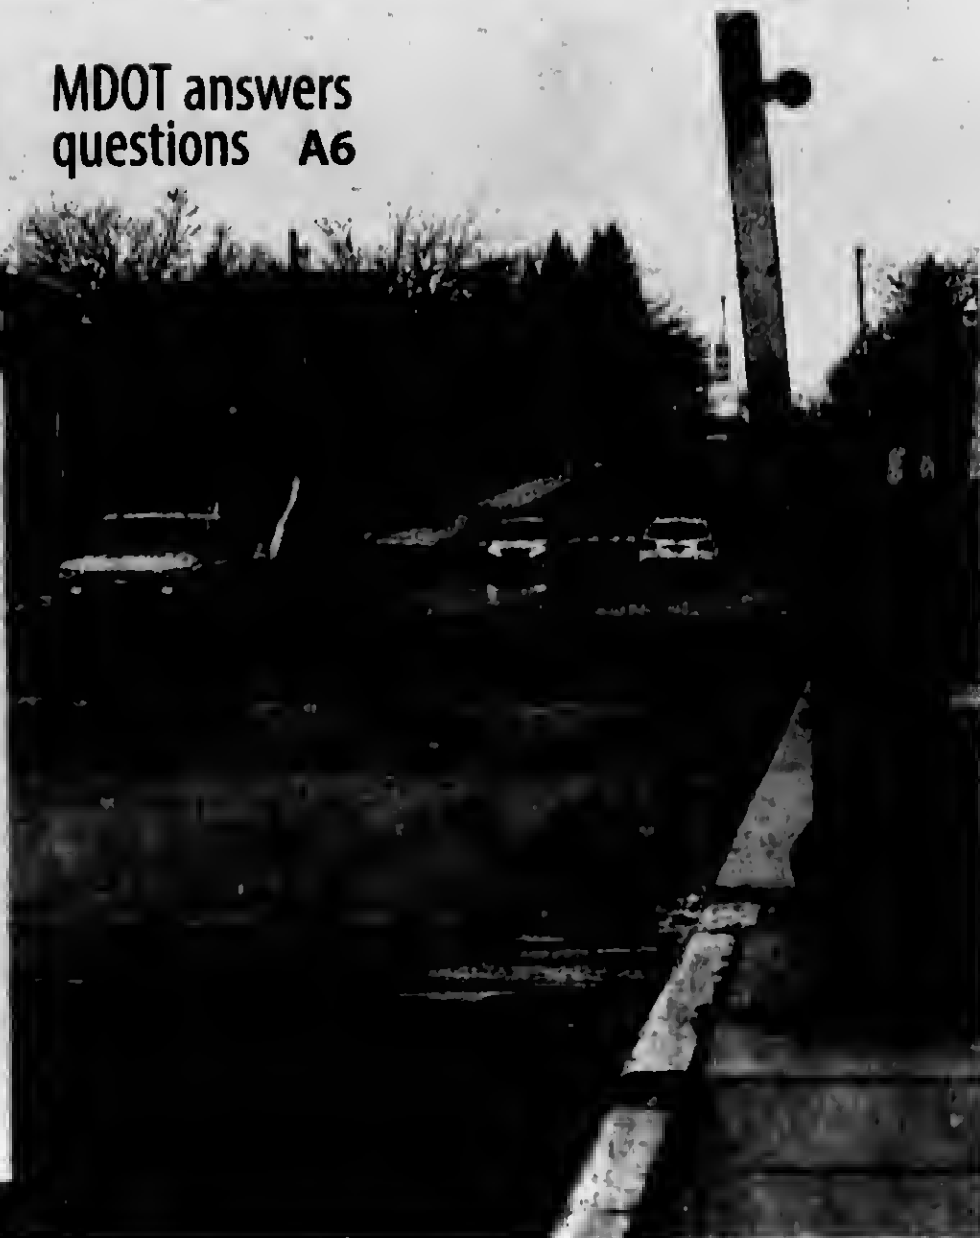

But for organizations that depend on long-term planning to operate, the uncertain closing dates leave many unknowns.

Officials from Castle Farms, which is a popular wedding venue in Charlevoix, view the uncertain timeline for the bridge closing a challenge, but the Castle events team is taking a proactive approach to the construction, said Sarah Hagen, event director at Castle Farms.

"We are doing what we can to make this work," Hagen said.

Tentative bridge closure dates in March — with only two-week notice of exact dates — makes planning difficult for Castle Farms and Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital. The two entities are taking a proactive approach to the planned closures by attending Michigan Department of Transportation meetings and remaining in contact with city officials.

CHARLEVOIX — Dwain Thola has a self-proclaimed very colored past.

He's gone to war twice as a member of the 82nd Airborne Division of the U.S. Army, been a carpenter, a general contractor, worked in a furniture shop and built fencing.

It never in his mind occurred he'd become a teacher. "I've said my entire life I will never teach and I don't want to teach," Thola said. "But apparently nature has a plan for you and it's hard for you to get out of it."

Especially when the reward is helping shape the minds of teenagers and helping them find a rewarding and often high-paying career.

Thola is a third-year autoCAD (computer-aided design) teacher.

ANNE KELLY/CHARLEVOIX COURIER

Curt Thompson stands next to the metal, five foot tall, many-drawered cabinet, which is filled with his accumulated tools of his trade that represent the nearly 60 years of his career in the business of auto mechanics. Thompson is retiring and closed Curt's Garage on U.S. 31 South on Dec. 2.

Curt Thompson, Charlevoix master auto-mechanic retires after 60 years

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — People who know Curt Thompson or have had their car serviced by him say that he's one of the nicest guys they know and is certainly one of Charlevoix's best and most ethical auto mechanics. Like a well-qualified physician at an annual physical, Thompson is known for his on point diagnoses of his clients' cars, his honest appraisals and quality work.

As of Dec. 2, Thompson set down his computer scanner, stopped making auto repair appointments and closed the doors for business at Curt's Garage on U.S. 31 South. He will take the month of December to tie up the loose ends of the automotive business that has been located there since 2009.

"I'm going to close," he said, "but I'm not going to sell my name. I have always been proud of my name and the honesty and integrity with which I have always tried to do business."

Thompson is in the process of liquidating much of his equipment with the exception of the sizeable tool chest which he holds in high regard. He shows the metal, five foot tall, many-drawered cabinet proudly and almost sentimentally. In it are the accumulated tools of his trade which represent the nearly 60 years of his career in the business of auto mechanics.

Thompson began working in his early teens.

"We lived in East Jordan," he said, "I was always interested in cars and at 11 or 12, I got my first job washing cars at Bader's Standard Service Station, a local enterprise. By age 15, I was doing gas station jobs like pumping gas and changing oil for customers."

I worked for the man who later became my father-in-law," he added with a smile. "I married, Louise, the boss's daughter."

After High School, in 1960, Thompson got married and entered the auto mechanic program at Ferris Institute (Now Ferris State University) which he attended for one year. It was one of the few trade schools in the state at that time, according to Thompson. The couple then moved to Grand Rapids where he landed a job by the recommendation of a friend who told the owner that "This boy knows how to run a gas station."

From 1961-1964 they moved to Battle Creek where Thompson worked at another gas station.

"I began accumulating automotive skills," he said. "I attended ongoing training programs sponsored by oil companies and parts stores."

In 1964 at the age of 23, Thompson moved back up north and bought his first gas station. It was an Amoco Gas Station on the corner of Emmet and Mitchell streets in Petoskey. He sold the station 6 years later and moved to Charlevoix where he worked for Amoco as a fuel oil distributor until 1977. His career refocused on his first love of working on cars after that. His associations with several area car dealerships followed: Village Car Care, Perry Sales as the Bay Buick service manager, Kusina Motors, Pontiac, Cadillac, Olds and Jeep, and Crown Motors. In 2001-2009, Thompson worked at Complete Muffler as a mechanic.

"I did everything but mufflers there," he said.

"In 2009, I was 68 and retired for the first time," Thompson joked. "My wife said, 'You're not going to work on cars in our driveway, you know.' So I opened Curt's Garage safely away from our Charlevoix house out here on U.S. 31 S where I set up shop for the past 7 years."

Thompson is now retiring in earnest, though he will admittedly tinker at his trade as an avocation; he'll have that tool box after all.

Thompson's wife Louise, a dental hygienist for many years, is also retired. The couple has four grown children and seven grandchildren.

"I would like to thank all my loyal customers from over the past 30 years, some of whom have followed me as I moved around in my career," he said. "I feel like I've made a contribution to my field, I hope I have made a difference, and certainly appreciate all the friends I have made over the years."

Thompson will be referring his customers to other trustworthy repair shops and will be in his office at Curt's Garage during the month of December, cleaning up and offering last minute automotive advice if any of his friends happen to stop in.

City updates voluntary quiet hours policy at municipal airport

CHARLEVOIX — In an effort to address a petition regarding excessive aircraft noise at the airport, city officials have revamped their voluntary quiet hours policy.

The policy was presented to the Charlevoix Airport Advisory Committee on Nov. 28, which members suggested it be presented to the Charlevoix City Council for approval at its Dec. 5 meeting.

"The committee has worked with the airport manager for the past two years on the noise issue," said committee member and 3rd Ward councilwoman Shirley Gibson. "We think the policy addresses the concerns of residents and represents the direction the city would like to take."

Council members unanimously approved posting the voluntary policy during a regularly scheduled Monday meeting. Council member Gibson was absent.

In September, the advisory committee and city council were presented with a petition regarding aircraft noise issues during the late evening and early morning after multiple requests to address aircraft noise never made it past the committee.

To address those concerns, the airport committee recommended initiating a voluntary quiet hours program for the airport because closing the airport at night would violate the federal grant assurances, according to officials at the Federal Aviation Administration.

"It's strictly voluntary, but we want to be proactive and address the concerns of our residents without violating FAA procedures," Gibson said. The policy recommends pilots consider noise when landing overnight during the voluntary quiet hours from 11 p.m. to 7 a.m., daily. During these times, pilots and operators are encouraged to limit their flights to avoid disturbing the community during sleeping hours, said City Manager Mark Heydlauff.

"Our intentions with this policy is to inform those who are not frequent users of the airport about the impact of aircraft noise has on some of our community after hours," Heydlauff said.

In addition to the policy the airport manager will reach out to pilots utilizing the airport with a letter describing the policy.

Similar language also will also be placed on the city's website on the airport page with a link to a complaint form residents to use when they have a concern about airport noise.

"The FAA felt the noise complaint form would be a good way residents to express concern to us so we could attempt to address them with pilots," Heydlauff said.

Cultural Corridor to focus on cultural arts, history

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A section of Clinton Street will soon be known as the city's official "cultural corridor."

Following efforts from the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, Charlevoix Public Library and Charlevoix Historical Society the Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board voted Nov. 30 to bestow the designation.

The corridor will be the first of its kind in Charlevoix and the goal is to turn the spotlight on the city's culture and the venues that promote and preserve that aspect of Charlevoix.

"With the Circle, Historical Society and Library it seemed like there is great opportunity for the city of Charlevoix to use the concept of a cultural corridor on Clinton Street," said Gail DeMeyere, executive director of the Charlevoix Circle of Arts.

With the designation

the three entities can market and promote each other together. The groups would work with the Main Street Initiative to create signage and build their materials that will represent Charlevoix's branding currently being developed within Charlevoix Main Street.

"Right now, every group is out on its own. But with this designation, we'll all become like a destination place," DeMeyere said. "This is about putting our forces together for the common good. It is just nice to know the three units are working to support each other and to build greater programming for Charlevoix to enhance the many offerings already here."

It is expected that in the future Clinton Street could be used for events that promote culture and art in Charlevoix, as well as possible gallery walks, historical events and other festivals to highlight what Charlevoix has to offer off Bridge Street.

"Part of the goal for each organization is to raise awareness of who we are, what we do and what type of programs we offer of a cultural nature," said Denise Fate, Historical Society president. "Creating this corridor gives us an opportunity to do much more for this community to promote the rich history and culture of Charlevoix."

The three entities already provide programming and events that bring together the community in many ways, but this designation opens opportunities to more year-round tourism, Fate said.

"I think it gives visitors to the city other interesting options of things to do when they come here," Fate said.

Main Street/DDA board member John Yaroch and the rest of the board supported the designation and hoped the future would include a performing arts venue.

"I love the concept here," Yaroch said. "I think a performing arts venue in that corridor would be critical to add and highlight the culture in Charlevoix."

The designation appears to offer limitless ideas that have the potential to enhance downtown event options with a cultural aspect, said Charlevoix city manager Mark Heydlauff.

Often when discussing downtown events the focus is to host them in the park or on Bridge Street. But with this designation there is a potential to show visitors more of the city, he said.

"What is really being outlined here is the opportunity to think of Clinton Street, maybe with a different kind of focus, to close with a strolling art market of the different kinds of (events) these three organizations offer," Heydlauff said.

Gifts with a purpose

Gift giving has long been a favorite subject for studies on human behavior, with psychologists, anthropologists, economists and marketers all weighing in. They have found that giving gifts is a surprisingly complex and important part of human interaction, helping to define relationships and strengthen bonds with family and friends. Indeed, psychologists say it is often the giver, rather than the recipient, who reaps the biggest psychological gains from a gift.

People who refuse to accept or exchange gifts during the holidays, these experts say, may be missing out on an important connection with family and friends.

But the biggest effect of gift giving may be on ourselves. Giving to others reinforces our feelings for them and makes us feel effective and caring.

We all can probably agree that we can be frustrated by crowds, traffic and commercialism, people can be tempted at this time of year to opt out of gift giving altogether. A 2013 PEW survey showed that 33 percent of Americans think the holidays are too materialistic. But while it's reasonable to cut back on spending during the holidays, psychologists say that banning the gift exchange with loved ones is not the best solution.

There is a growing global movement to increase exposure and to build support for nonprofit organization's philanthropic activities, especially during the holiday giving season. Just as the retail world had benefited from coordinating national shopping days across many brands and platforms #GivingTuesday is doing the same for giving. This event to be observed on the first Tuesday after Thanksgiving. On Black Friday and Cyber Monday, we shop for gifts to give to people we care about, but #GivingTuesday inspires us to give to causes that we care about. However, #GivingTuesday is not the only time or way to give gifts with a purpose.

Have you considered looking for a meaningful option to your gift giving habits? Are you looking for a unique gift that can make a lasting difference? Many nonprofit organizations have designed the perfect way to buy meaningful gifts for loved ones and can be accessed through their websites. You can choose to give to any of these organizations as an alternative to your typical holiday gifts. Hospice of Northwest Michigan's Gifts with a Purpose can be accessed at www.hospicenwm.org/shop.

We have a choice in everything we do. Why not choose to enhance the holiday giving experience with a new philanthropic perspective that keeps on giving right here in our own community. Choose to support these causes that support you when you need them, and ensure that they are still around when you do.

Amy Wieland, executive director Hospice of Northwest Michigan

Social Security's gift to children is security

This is the season of caring. No matter your religion or belief, December is also considered a time to focus on the children we love.

Whether we are wrapping Santa's gifts, buying Hanukkah treats, decorating the house in celebration of Kwanzaa, or volunteering for a toy drive, children add joy to the holiday season and we at Social Security definitely know a thing or two about helping children.

Often overlooked in the paperwork that prospective parents fill out in preparation for a child's birth is an application for a Social Security number and card. Typically, the hospital will ask if you want to apply for a Social Security number for your newborn as part of the birth registration process. This is the easiest and fastest way to apply. The Social Security card typically arrives about a week to 10 days after that little bundle of joy.

You can learn about Social Security numbers for children by reading our publication, Social Security Numbers for Children, available at www.socialsecurity.gov/pubs.

A child needs a Social Security number if he or she is going to have a bank account, if a relative is buying savings bonds for the child, if the child will have medical coverage, or if the child will receive government services. You also will need a Social Security number for a child to claim him or her on your tax returns.

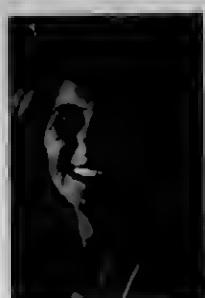

If you wait to apply, you will have to visit a Social Security office and you will need to:

- Complete an Application For a Social Security Card (Form SS-5);
- Show us original documents proving your child's U.S. citizenship, age, and identity; and
- Show us documents proving your identity.

Remember, a child age 12 or older requesting an original Social Security number must appear in person for the interview, even though a parent or guardian will sign the application on the child's behalf.

Visit www.socialsecurity.gov/people/kids to learn more about all we do to care for children. Caring for the next generation is a central part of securing today and tomorrow, during the holidays and all year long.

CHARLEVOIX
HISTORICAL SOCIETY
Bringing our past with our future

One hundred twenty-five years ago, in November, a gang of workers completed laying the railroad tracks between Charlevoix and Petoskey. Back then it was a long-desired idea was turning into a definite reality right before the eyes of the town. The train station had yet to be built, connection from the south was yet to be made from Traverse City up through Bellaire and Ellsworth. But it would all come together the following June 26, 1892, the day when Charlevoix's first train arrived. No one was more excited during this period than Charlevoix Sentinel editor Willard Smith, who had doggedly championed for a train to come to Charlevoix for several years. Petoskey has had theirs for almost two decades. Why not us? Here is what Smith had to say in late October of 1891 when he took an inspection jaunt on the Chicago & West Michigan Railway construction locomotive (pictured above): "The Sentinel Scribe (he is referring to himself) occupied the foreman's seat in the cab of 'No. 105' Sunday morning in a run up to 'the front' by invitation of Major Sullivan (the railroad contractor in charge). It seemed like a dream to be shooting by objects (stagecoaches) so familiar—objects by which these many winters we have been dragged through mud and snow drifts. Even 15 miles an hour beats the 'covered stage'... Tonight the steel will be laid to within three miles of Petoskey and in sight of its domes and minarets." Once the train did arrive on that Sunday in June, the travel and economic picture of Charlevoix changed overnight forever.

Charlevoix County Community Foundation approves $201,691 in local grant funding CHARLEVOIX — The Board of Trustees of the Charlevoix County Community Foundation recently approved $201,691 in grants during the fall 2016 grant cycle.

"Awards include more than $15,000 in timely assistance for food pantries and emergency fuel and utility payments to help neighbors keep warm and well-fed through this winter season. Many folks are employed, but may be having a hard time making ends meet. All donations — big and small — given through the community foundation will help fill local needs," said Maureen Radke, Charlevoix County Community Foundation program officer.

The grant awards included $28,077 in funding for projects that will impact Charlevoix County youth in a positive way. The grants were recommended by the foundation's Youth Advisory Committee (YAC).

"The YAC members interview the potential grantees that are proposing youth programs and ask many thoughtful questions regarding outreach, sustainability, collaboration and more," said Mishelle Shooks, who coordinates the Youth Advisory Committee on the foundation's behalf. "The YAC put a lot of time and thought into the details of each proposal and use the foundation criteria as well as results from their peer survey to determine the merit of each grant.

"They have to continually make tough decisions regarding their funding recommendations; however, they handle the process professionally and continually impress us with their ability to cohesively agree in the end while respecting each other's divergent viewpoints," she added.

In addition to grants to benefit youth, the recent grants support programs in the arts, education, community development, the environment, human services, health and wellness, recreation and more.

"Grant proposals from area non-profit organizations keep us informed of community needs. We connect issues with donors who want to help. In that way, the community foundation provides a unique niche," Radke said.

A charitable organization dedicated to improving and enriching life in the area, the Charlevoix County Community Foundation accepts gifts from individuals, families, businesses and civic groups and manages them as permanent endowments. While a portion of the funds are utilized to support grant making, the principal of the endowment continues to grow, providing perpetual charitable capital to benefit Charlevoix County's residents—now and in the future.

Since it was founded in 1992, the community foundation's net assets have grown to $30.5 million. Grants and scholarships totaling more than $20.6 million have been distributed to enhance and enrich the quality of life for all those who currently live in Charlevoix County—and for generations to come.

The foundation welcomes inquiries and grant requests. The next deadline for submitting a grant request is Wednesday, March 1, 2017. For a complete list of the recent grant awards, visit the foundation's website at www.ccf.org.

MDOT answers question about bridge construction

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 - allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — With the start of a long-planned rehabilitation project of the U.S. 31 bascule bridge over the Pine River Channel in Charlevoix nearing, there are still many people with questions about the 12 consecutive night closures slated for late March and early April.

Michigan Department of Transportation officials hosted an informal meeting this week allowing Charlevoix residents and city officials to speak to project engineers and representatives from the Anlaan Corporation of Grand Haven about the project.

"This meeting gives us the opportunity to explain various parts of the project with more specifics," said Jay Gallitis, manager and professional engineer at the MDOT Transportation Service Center in Gaylord.

The $1.9 million project will include substructure and steel repairs as well as electrical and mechanical upgrades. The project also includes replacement of the traffic warning gates and the electrical switches needed to ensure the bridge operates smoothly and properly.

Contractors are expected to begin equipment staging and preliminary work on Dec. 12 with completion of the project by Memorial Day weekend.

The tentative start date for the bridge closing is March 17. Once that phase of the work begins the bridge will be closed from 11 p.m. to 5 a.m. for 12 consecutive nights, Gallitis said.

"These dates are subject to change," Gallitis said. "Contractors are only able to give a preliminary timeline to when they will begin that phase of the work."

Construction also will be done to repair and seal concrete sidewalks along with reconstruction of bridge roadway approaches and painting the steel superstructure.

Gallitis added most of the work will be achieved while maintaining two-way vehicle traffic on the bridge, shifting traffic to each side as work progresses.

"There also will be some flag traffic control as they repair the paved bridge approaches," he said.

Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Dan Thorp said there have been informal talks with city officials about the closures. But he has offered stationing firefighters at a hotel coinciding with those 12 nights.

"Anything on the north side we wish to offer coverage for," Thorp said. "Much of the talks are unofficial, but what we have discussed with the city is designed to help with north side fire protection during the closures."

Thorp also said he has spoken to Boyne City Fire Department and Resort Bear Creek for additional help if needed for the north side of the bridge during the closure. His one concern is MDOT officials are unable to give exact dates about the closures.

"The main issue we have now, is not knowing exactly when the closures will take place," Thorp said. "It is very hard to make plans without having the dates set in place."

Bob Roloff, assistant fire chief and EMS director said the city already plans to deploy an ambulance and police cruiser to the north side when bridge closures take place.

"If the closure happened tomorrow we would be ready," Roloff said. "We just need to know when the closing dates happen and we will have EMS coverage."

As soon as bridge closure dates are confirmed city officials and the public will be notified, Gallitis said.

"Once we know exact dates we will notify the public and other officials two weeks in advance," he said.

City staff was pleased with the information provided by MDOT officials during the meeting, said city manager Mark Heydlauff.

"We appreciate the update we got from MDOT officials and look forward to further information as it develops," Heydlauff said.

"We have notified all of our brides and planners of the planned construction in March and early April. We have given them options to work with if the wedding happens during a closing date."

One of the challenges Castle Farms faces — which is on the south side of the bridge — is many of its guests stay at lodging on the north side of the bridge. This poses a particular problem if a wedding ends during the scheduled closing time between 11 p.m. and 5 a.m.

The short notice is the main problem. MDOT officials are unable to give exact dates until two weeks before the closings begin.

"Obviously (two-weeks) doesn't work for weddings because they have to have all their invitations and the RSVPs by that point," Hagen said. "We decided it would be best to leave it up to the couples. We have let them know these are the dates (MDOT) is planning. It might change and we can't get a definite date right now, but if they are concerned about it there are options available."

Castle staff also is informing any new bookings of the planned bridge closures.

"We haven't had too many (planned weddings) concerned," Hagen said.

"We are still in a good spot because we received notice of the actual bridge construction and closings a year in advance. We were able to get ahead on this and attend the meetings to keep our patrons informed."

Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital also is watching the closure dates closely, said Cathy Fischl, hospital communications coordinator.

"Patient safety comes first and we will continue to provide quality care throughout the hospital," Fischl said.

Currently the hospital is in a fact-finding mode on how the bridge closing will impact staffing arriving or leaving at 11 p.m.

"We are trying to determine how many employees it will affect during the closing times," Fischl said. "We have looked at temporary housing and other options when the bridge is closed."

Department heads are also meeting to make sure all scenarios are covered when the bridge is closed.

"The hospital is prepared for any scenario to make sure each patient receives the same quality care on any given day," Fischl said.

Continued from page A1 sign), machine technology and mechatronics teacher at Charlevoix High School where he came to the school from Baker College in Cadillac.

His three classes continue to grow in popularity at the school, where his 77 students receive plenty of hands-on experience with manual and CNC (computer numerical control) lathes and mills, building a variety of tools, special projects and gadgets.

"I'm a project-based teacher," said Thola. "When we do something, there's a project at the end of that and every year I use a theme. This year's theme is superheroes, so we're doing something with superheroes every time."

"They are actually designing their own superhero character," Thola said. "They're also designing superhero suits and our machine tech class will be building one or two go-carts. We'll put a fiberglass suit over it and turn it into a Batmobile."

Freshmen students start the program with a mechatronics class, which gives them a little bit of everything, Thola said, beginning with computer programming where they can build and program robots. At the end of the year, those same students build and program unmanned aerial vehicles, or drones.

Inside Thola's classroom sits around two dozen new computers with new flat-screen 27-inch monitors that were recently updated.

"In previous years, we were teaching hand drafting with pencil and paper, but we also teach computer drafting," Thola said. "We had to have two desks per student for this, but the new desks we purchased this summer is a two-in-one. A drafting desk and computer desk allows me to fit twice as many students in this class."

The computers also run popular CAD programming available including SolidWorks and Autodesk Inventor, programs Thola plans to soon upgrade.

"Programs businesses are using, I am teaching," Thola said. "The classes that I teach are also Baker College classes, so they are able to sign up and get Baker College credit for the classes they take."

Thola added a program called early middle college allows juniors and seniors who take his machine tech class may finish a final year at Baker College and earn an associate's degree in either CAD or CNC advanced manufacturing.

Over the past three years, Thola's class size has tripled.

"Students know we make really neat things in here and we have fun," Thola said. "On top of the fun they're learning math skills, science skills and English skills. We have readings we do every couple of weeks and I make them write a paper."

"What is required of them in the real world or a job, I expect that from them here."

Thola also works with a variety of local businesses and has an advisory board that meets twice a year to discuss what he's teaching and if it's on track with local trends. Businesses such as Michigan Scientific Corporation, DCL Inc., Precision Edge in Boyne City, ALP Lighting Components and Olive Racing Parts all sit on his board.

"One of my recent graduates is working at DCL right now, which is here in Charlevoix," Thola said. "There's a lot of positions the students can go into from understanding these classes."

Students operate and are required to understand how a manual and CNC machine such as a lathe or mill works, and are required to pass a safety course before even touching the machines.

"To teach them how it all works, we start with manual machines where they are actually doing the cutting of metal, turning the handles, working with sandpaper and files and saws," Thola said. "They get a lot of hands on work which is what a lot of businesses around here are looking for."

Safety is also a top priority in Thola's classroom and lab.

"If we cannot do it safe, we cannot do it,"

Thola said. "That's how it works here in my shop and how it works in a business setting. Safety is stressed here every day and is everybody's job. They all know this."

Mike Davis, a senior at Charlevoix High School, transferred into the program his sophomore year and has enjoyed the class and the real-life skills he's picked up from Thola.

"I stuck with it because this is the stuff I like to do," Davis said. "He (Thola) makes it a lot of fun for one, and two we're out there learning real life skills. You can make a lot of money just having the experience we do."

Davis, who earlier designed and produced a stainless steel adjustable bar stool, said Thola treats his students like adults.

Senior Jake Archey said he and classmates in the machine tech class have been doing assembly line projects such as designing key chain hammers.

"Once I got started I really enjoyed it and there's a lot of jobs available for machinists, and it's really good money," Archey said. "I just enjoy being in the shop."

Kevin Edick, also a senior, said being able to machine objects by hand is his favorite aspect of the program.

"I'm very hands on and like to work on things and make stuff," Edick said. "It's a lot of fun."

Thola said he and his students have a lot of fun in the three different classes, and it's his hope the program will continue to grow. Thola is currently looking into virtual reality programming to go along with a pair of 3-dimensional printers which will create prototypes for a variety of designs.

"The school board here and school, I can't say enough nice things about them," Thola said. "I love working for Charlevoix High School. They gave me a new lab and I've got a third-year teacher, it's amazing."

"We're already looking at upgrading and expanding our machines in the back because I have so many students interested."

Jayne Lynskey conducted a bee alliance to help save the declining population of honeybees.

The team also designed and constructed several bee houses and distributed them throughout the community and had a local beekeeper come and explain why pollinators such as bees are so vital to our survival.

"Albert Einstein said if bees disappeared off the face of the earth, man would only have about four years left," Bonar said. "No bees, no pollination, no plants, no animals, no man."

Bonar said he and his teammates collected more than $100 in donations, made a large display at school to advertise what they were attempting to do and gave away bee houses for free to interested people.

"We got wood from builders and we built them and gave them away, that was our plan," Bonar added. "Pollination is such a big thing. Bees are just a tiny little aspect, but they are key. It's amazing."

Liam Speer said he never realized how important bees were, and he and all the other team members are excited about traveling to Lake Superior State University for Saturday's competition.

"This originally started as a FRC, first robotics competition, for our older high school group but we started noticing a drop in numbers," said Schwartzfisher, a senior at Charlevoix High School. "We wanted to influence the younger kids to STEM (Science, Technology, Engineering and Math) activities and it's important to them to have that opportunity they may not have in like sports or athletics."

Schwartzfisher said the FIRST LEGO League's core values are key to the program. By embracing the core values, participants learn that friendly competition and mutual gain are not separate goals, and that helping one another is the foundation of teamwork.

"Tom (Lynskey) and I started a FIRST LEGO group and we had one team last year with nine or 10 kids," Schwartzfisher said. "We did really well and won the core award and Tom and I won the mentor award, we did fabulous and we want to carry that on."

"This year there were so many kids interested we wanted to split it up into two teams."

Lynskey, also a senior at Charlevoix High School, said he's watched as students have grown from being nervous about building a robot to having confidence working as individuals and with their teammates.

COURTESY PHOTO

Members of the Charlevoix Elementary School FIRST LEGO League robotic teams look over an assortment of parts.

"On Saturday, the kids are judged on the design of the robot where they'll talk to engineering students about why they built it a certain way, then they're judged on their project where they present a skit to three judges who may own businesses around the area," Lynskey said.

"They're also judged on teamwork skills and those core values," Lynskey added. "We instill in the kids that's (core values) what they're looking for."

They challenge the kids and see how well they work together and are communicating and their professionalism."

The competition will also feature six matches in which each team's robot will score points on a table-top playing field.

"I think it's a great thing for young students to get into and we're hoping to start a middle school program which gets even more involved with the robot," Lynskey said. "It's something we want to make available from fourth grade all the way up to 12th where if you're interested and by the time you graduate, you love the STEM field."

Schwartz said the FIRST LEGO League helps kids find their niche.

"We kind of joke and say in this sport, you really can go pro," Schwartz said.

The benefits to the program are multifaceted, Schwartz added, with aspects of problem solving, working together, practicing gracious professionalism and respect are of most importance.

"The other aspect is we have high school kids now in the role of mentoring and that's a special thing for them," Schwartz said. "For them, maybe they find out they like teaching or doing service. At that age, it's easy for kids to be wrapped up in their own world, this allows them to step outside their box and to be able to give to kids that are so excited."

"It's a neat program because of all the multifaceted benefits we do."

Schwartz said working with children from the fourth through sixth grade, he's hoping the FIRST LEGO League program creates an interest and an enthusiasm to be successful.

"We want them to feel successful and know what it feels like to work hard and reap the benefits of that hard work," Schwartz said. "When you can come to a place with kids and make it challenging and they are able to taste the fruit of that success, they'll want more."

The FIRST LEGO League also provides students interested in STEM a chance to be rewarded, much like others in school involved in athletics, music or even a valedictorian normally would.

"We're building little engineers and professionals, and that's what this is all about," Schwartz said.

Rayders roll to road win over Cheboygan, 60-32

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHEBOYGAN — Last year, the Charlevoix girls basketball team didn't pick up their second win until Feb. 9, part of a 3-19 season.

How quickly things can change, as the Rayders got their second win of this season in the first week, following up an impressive win over Petoskey in the season opener with a 60-32 victory over Class B Cheboygan on the road on Thursday to start 2-0.

Charlevoix jumped on the Chiefs early, taking a 16-4 lead, and scored 22 second quarter points to put the game away by halftime.

Those 39 first-half points were more than the Rayders scored in 17 of their 22 games last season, and their total of 60 was the highest score Charlevoix has managed in a game since the 2014-15 season.

Freshman Ellse Stuck again led the way for Charlevoix with 18 points and 11 rebounds, and sisters Rachel and Natalie Nesburg each scored in double figures as well.

Rachel finished with 13 points, four assists and four steals, and Natalie added 12 points, two assists and four steals, while Olivia Leake and Beth Veenstra each chipped in six points and Veenstra added five rebounds.

Stuck's presence on the court has helped open things up offensively for the Rayders this season, coach Liz Shaw said.

"Ellse definitely helps because she's a player who can score in a lot of different ways, but her presence also creates opportunities for others," Shaw said. "She has the defense's attention, and that creates space for

Rayders strong defensively in 65-37 win over St. Ignace to open season

ST. IGNACE — Hard work at the defensive end in practice paid off for the Rayders as they rolled past St. Ignace for a 65-37 victory in their season opener on Tuesday.

Charlevoix used its athleticism and speed to jump on the Saints early, and a solid defensive effort meant the Rayders were able to shut down any hopes of a comeback in new head coach Matt Stuck's first time at the helm.

"Defense has been a focus early on in our practices, and just making sure our players are on the same page and understand what we want at that end," Stuck said. "I thought we did a pretty good job at that end, and offensively we had a lot of players get involved and showed a lot of balance."

Senior Kevin Pearl finished with a 17 point, 10 rebound double-double to lead the Rayders, and Cam Clark chipped in 10 in the victory.

Several other players scored five to seven points for the Rayders, an encouraging sign for a team replacing most of its scoring from last year's squad and looking for contributors on that end of the floor.

"We've got a lot of young players, guys who don't have much varsity experience, and it did show at times tonight," Stuck said. "Because of that, it was good to see Kevin (Pearl) and Colin (Smith), our players who do have varsity experience, coming out strong tonight, carrying the load early and setting an example for our

Six Rayder fall athletes, two coaches earn all-state honors

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — The Rayder athletic program kicked off the school year with a successful fall season in every sport.

Success inevitably leads to awards, and Charlevoix is bringing home plenty of them as a result.

Six athletes and two coaches brought home all-state honors in various sports for the Rayders this season, led by quarterback/safety Brad Klinger in football.

Klinger, a senior, was named second team all-state in Division 5/6 at line-backer, and made the Detroit Free Press all-state team for Division 6 as a defensive back to cap a strong final season for the Rayders.

Klinger picked off two passes and finished with 35 tackles while also starting at quarterback for Charlevoix, guiding the Rayders to a 7-3 finish that was the team's best in a decade.

While Klinger was the only athlete to earn multiple all-state honors, the boys soccer team had the most members bring home an all-state honor after a historic run to the Division 3 state semi-finals this season.

Defender Kevin Pearl brought home first team all-state honors in Division 3 from the Michigan Interscholastic High School Soccer Coaches Association in his final season with the Rayders, high-scoring midfielder Christian Matye brought home second-team honors, and junior defender Danny Nesburg earned honorable mention honors to Charlevoix wrestling hopes for encore to best-ever season

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 - jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — With two state qualifiers and an all-state wrestler back from last year's district title-winning squad, the Charlevoix wrestling team is hoping to repeat its best season in program history.

Even with a strong returning core, duplicating last year's success won't be easy, however, as the Rayders move up a division thanks to an enrollment change, and into a much tougher district.

"It's a one-year thing, but it's going to make our path a lot tougher this season with Grayling and Gladstone in our district, who are always tough, and Boyne City which is an up-and-coming her teammates to get open looks and get involved.

"Our team is meshing and the hard work they've put in this offseason is really paying off. Our players are more confident with the ball and they're looking to create opportunities for each other, not just themselves."

Defensively, the Rayders again struggled with foul trouble early, a problem that also showed in the Petoskey win, but made adjustments in the second half that helped Charlevoix play much better at that end.

"It's not something that was going to cost us the win tonight, but it's the little things that are going to matter if we want to get where we want to be by the end of the season," Shaw said. "We have to be able to play defense without fouling, and I thought we improved in the second half and looked a lot better at that end."

Charlevoix (2-0) will look to match last season's win total next Friday at home against another tough opponent, Bellalre, before opening conference play on Dec. 13 at Harbor Springs.

Charlevoix (1-0) takes on Bellaire on Thursday in its home opener for its next contest.

The Rayders will be looking to clean up a few mistakes and keep the momentum building ahead of the team's Lake Michigan Conference opener on Tuesday against Harbor Springs.

Along with three players, Charlevoix boys soccer coach Jon Boss also brought home regional coach of the year honors in Division 3 from the MHSAA after guiding the Rayders to their best season in program history in his first year back on the job after a leave of absence for personal reasons.

In volleyball, the Rayders brought home a district title and advanced to the regional final round for the second time in three years, led by a strong senior class and prolific freshman middle hitter Elise Stuck, who brought home honorable mention all-state honors in Class C from the Michigan Interscholastic Volleyball Coaches Association.

The Rayder volleyball team also stood out in the classroom, posting a combined 3.61 GPA to earn academic all-state honors as a team from MIVCA, with four players, Becca Moon, Ali Jaroma, Julia Doskoch and Beth Veenstra bringing home academic all-state honors as individuals.

On the cross country course, both Rayder squads posted strong finishes, with the girls taking 9th in Division 3 and the boys 14th at the state final on Nov. 5.

The lone Charlevoix runner to bring home all-state honors was junior Michelle Bollini, who repeated her all-state finish as a sophomore with a 14th place finish individually this season.

Bollini also earned academic all-state honors for Charlevoix from the Michigan Interscholastic Track Coaches Association, along with teammate Isabel Hess and boys runner Noah Carson, both seniors.

As teams, the Rayders also earned academic all-state honors in Division 3, finishing 10th on the boys side with a 3.505 GPA and 11th on the girls side with a 3.816 GPA.

Finally, in girls golf, a season that ended with Charlevoix's first berth in the Division 4 state finals also helped coach Jennifer Sell bring home regional coach of the year honors in Division 4 from the Michigan Interscholastic Golf Coaches Association.

WRESTLING

program," Charlevoix coach Mike Hinkle said. "We're going to have to put in the work and keep improving every week to compete."

Charlevoix has two wrestlers the team can count on as seniors, Cam Alden and Tyler McCallum, both returning state qualifiers.

Alden made his second trip to the Division 4 state final last season, placing eighth at 135 pounds to earn his first all-state honors, while McCallum went 1-2 at 130 in his first appearance, and losing to the eventual third place finisher.

"We're hoping that our two returning state qualifiers can lead by example, both on and off the mat," Hinkle said. "It's always good to have two guys of that caliber back to anchor your lineup, and especially with a young team."

Among the other 13

wrestlers on the roster, the Rayders also have two more strong returners in brothers Jordan and Jeremy Chernauckas.

Jordan, a regional qualifier at 119 who came up one win short of a state finals berth of his own, will look to earn his first berth in his final chance as a senior this season, while Jeremy, who lost in the blood round in districts, will look to join him as well.

"Jordan, it's his senior year, so it's his last shot to get it done, and both him and Jeremy are really motivated by that fact," Hinkle said. "Those two guys are part of our core group of older wrestlers coming into the season, that attended camps over the summer and really put the time in to get better."

Around those four, the Rayders are looking for younger wrestlers to step to fill the voids left behind by state qualifier Mick Hinkle and regional qualifier Jake Seger, among others.

Elliott Bartelli, Max Hinkle and Trevor McCallum are three wrestlers who gained valuable experience last year and will look to make a bigger impact on the mat this season.

With 15 total wrestlers, the Rayders should be able to fill all but the two smallest weight classes, giving them a shot to compete as a team, but the improvements of their young talent will determine how competitive they can be.

"We've got some freshmen who are pretty green but their work ethic so far has been outstanding," Hinkle said. "Some of them have wrestling experience and are trying to transition to the workload and intensity level of being on the varsity, and others are brand new to the sport entirely."

"They lifted weights all summer, are working on their technique, and they've shown the toughness required to make it through the season. I'm pretty proud of where they're at."

Charlevoix always wrestles a tough schedule but has beefed up the competition this year with two chances to compete against Division 2 Petoskey, first at their assembly dual on Dec. 14 and later at the Northmen's home invite on Jan. 14.

Added to invites at Manton, Rudyard, T.C. West, Kingsley and Mio, as well as a rugged conference schedule, and the Rayders will be battle tested entering the district tournaments at Boyne City on Feb. 8 and Grayling on Feb. 11.

Charlevoix opened the season on Wednesday, Dec. 7 at Mancelona, and also wrestles at the Manton Invite this Saturday.

The Rayders' first home match is that Dec. 14 Assembly Dual, where Charlevoix takes on Petoskey and Boyne City at 2 p.m. in front of the entire school.

$45,000 IN PRIZE MONEY

Nathan Davis wins (Uncle) Ben's Beginners Contest

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — A 14-year-old Charlevoix eighth-grader celebrated his cooking skills with more than 500 students and community members in attendance at the Charlevoix Middle/High School on Wednesday, Dec. 7.

The assembly was called to honor Nathan Davis, a student at Charlevoix's Middle/High School who entered a cooking competition this year called the Ben's Beginners Cooking Contest put on by Uncle Ben's.

After months of photo submission and votes, Nathan was named one of the top five grand prize winners in the country, which means he won a $30,000 kitchen makeover for his school.

This is the fifth year of the Ben's Beginners Contest, which is open to children from kindergarten through eighth grade. In the fall, participants, including Nathan, submitted original recipes using Uncle Ben's Rice along with photos introducing themselves and explaining their entries.

Contestants were narrowed down from more than 2,000 to the top 25 by a panel of judges. Then on Oct. 24 through contact by phone Nathan was notified he was among those top 5. Besides the school cafeteria makeover, Nathan and his family also received a check for $15,000.

The cheers and applause of Nathan's teachers, family, friends and fellow Charlevoix

Forestry plan: Keep parks pristine

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A forestry management plan is being proposed for Lake Michigan Beach Park and Mount McSaubia Recreation Area.

The proposed plan continues the city's ongoing goals and emphasis to keep the beauty and aesthetics of its natural forests, dunes and lake views.

The draft presentation was given by Anna Boruszewski, a forestry student at Michigan State University, during the Dec. 5 Charlevoix City Council meeting and was addressed by the shade tree commission during its meeting on Dec. 15.

"The tree commission wants to refine a few things before this plan comes back to city council," city manager Mark Heydlauff said.

"The forestry plan looks at how to protect and preserve trees and other natural areas in those parks."

Janet Kalbfell, councilwoman for the 1st ward in Charlevoix, said the presentation was very well done and helped clarify many of the terms used in the draft plan given to council members.

"It was a very good study and draft plan that gives us a starting point to work with," Kalbfell said. "I look forward to seeing the final plan."

Kalbfell, who asked many questions to understand more about the plan, said the information about maintaining current tree growth was helpful, but gives council a lot to think about moving forward.

"I found it interesting to learn about the types of trees that are affected by invasive species, disease and how we manage forest going forward," Kalbfell said. "Once we remove the dead ash and other dead trees, do we replace them and with what trees or do we let it be the area come back naturally? These are the questions we are looking at now."

Firefighters train in real-life fire scenarios

SEAN MILLER/NEWS-REVIEW

Firefighters with the Charlevoix Township Fire Department host a training exercise where firefighters practiced on putting out a controlled fire on Saturday, Dec. 10 at a house on the corner of Waller and Martin roads.

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • allen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — A Charlevoix Township house is doubling as a training ground for Charlevoix County fire departments in an effort to sharpen fire and rescue response skills for real-life emergency calls.

The Peterka family sold the property to Charlevoix Township because the township plans to construct a new fire department at that location.

But before the Peterka house is removed, firefighters will be conducting training exercises complete with real-world scenarios that test their professional knowledge and skills.

The home also is being used as a training location for Charlevoix County's basic fire school, said Jesse Silva, school director and safety officer for Charlevoix Township Fire Department.

"We have been holding classes in this house since October," Silva said. "The house has been a great teaching tool."

Silva led the township firefighters through different scenarios and used different parts of the home for practice efforts, including extinguishing some furniture fires and kitchen fires.

Surgeon helps treat newborn's prenatal gunshot wounds

STEVE FOLEY
(231) 479-9797 • foley@charlevoixcourier.com

BALTIMORE — On a late June 19 evening, Dr. Dylan Stewart, director of pediatric trauma at The Johns Hopkins Hospital in Baltimore, was home in bed.

Being on call, Stewart, a 1989 Charlevoix High School graduate who also earned his bachelor's and medical degrees from the University of Michigan, received a phone call from one of his residents at the hospital.

"There's someone in house all the time who fields calls and I got a call in which she said you're not going to believe this, but we're about to deliver a baby and they think the baby has a gunshot wound. They think they want us to operate on it," Stewart said.

Stewart, who has performed hundreds of operations during his tenure at Johns Hopkins Medicine since 1996, quickly got out of bed, jumped in his car and "came flying downtown."

As it turned out, 21-year-old Vanessa Sims — who was eight months pregnant — was walking down North Avenue in Baltimore with a craving for fried rice.

She then heard the crack of what sounded like fireworks, which she then realized were gunshots. A crowd including Sims scattered as gunshots burst from behind a wall. Two men were wounded while one bullet struck Sims near the small of her back.

The stray bullet tore through Sims' stomach and rested in her abdomen. That same .40-caliber bullet also tore into her womb and smashed the collarbone of her unborn son. The bullet entered into his chest.

"It's so incredibly rare," Stewart said. "I've taken care of gunshot wounds, but not that frequently. A gunshot wound to a kid that hasn't even been born, I'm thinking there's no way this kid is going to be able to survive."

"That's the first thing," Stewart added. "There's so many things that can go wrong. This kid wasn't even full-term. He was so fragile, he was 34 weeks and had a good six weeks before being ready to be born."

At Hopkins, an emergency team gathered with Dr. Kent Stevens, who ran the trauma unit, along with medical residents, obstetricians, anesthesiologists, CT scan technicians, neonatologists and then later Stewart.

Round Lake Gallery building online presence in wake of fire

DOUBLE DEVIATION
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Local artists are trying to put back the pieces after a November fire in downtown Charlevoix destroyed much of Round Lake Gallery and the work within it.

While the aftermath and cleanup of the fire last month is wrapping up, local artists and gallery owner, Kathy Ackerman, have been working to find ways to continue to support the artists and provide an outlet for sales. Currently, Ackerman has teamed up with local artist, Candace Klooster Speck, and Tim Salmonson, of Artvark Studios, to help create an online space and social presence for artists to sell their works.

Together the three have created YouTube videos, a Go Fund Me site, and an online storefront to help educate the community on how to help and where to buy prints from the artists once located within Round Lake

Gallery. Salmonson, through his business, helped digitize the prints for existing artists so all was not lost while looking at ways to start another funding campaign to help artists recoup some of the costs of cleaning their artwork damaged in the fire. "A friend is setting up a separate fund that will be for a gallery rebuild/restart since the process is long," Ackerman said.

"The collaboration with Artvark is growing as people are starting to Facebook about it more. The prints are beautiful. The two fundraisers for the gallery's artists are so much appreciated."

While the group is still waiting for approval to remove prints and other artwork from the building they have established a website for people to buy prints from the artists that once were available in the gallery. They can order this art online at www.squareup.com/store/RoundLakeGallery-Artists. The site was created to support the artists of the November fire at the Round Lake Gallery and is hosted by Artvark Studios and Gallery.

Through purchasing prints on this site, Artvark will be donating the proceeds from the sale of each artist's work back to the artists. Each order should be fulfilled by Dec. 21.

While this is just a temporary selling space, Ackerman is in hopes that this summer will bring new things on the horizon.

"I'd like to get into a space for the summer in order to keep my family of artists and vendors" said Ackerman. "We can develop the building over and above what insurance will pay, so that it's a downtown jewel."

Those looking to purchase prints, or donate to rebuilding the gallery, can find more information at the following sites: www.gofundme.com/roundlakefire; www.youtube.com/KORQdBhCHES; and www.squareup.com/store/RoundLakeGallery-Artists/.

Township seeks to build stronger relationship with city

Supervisor to open fire coverage discussions with city officials

RONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558
ralen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Working together and being good neighbors is a goal the Charlevoix Township Board of Trustees hopes to continue moving toward with the City of Charlevoix.

On Monday, during their regular meeting, township board members gave permission to supervisor Chuck Center to begin discussions about fire coverage.

The discussions are preliminary and Center believes the time is right to open this dialogue with Charlevoix City Manager Mark Heydlauff.

"I'm not sure what the type of coverage means, but we want to continue our great working relationship with the city," Center said. "I believe the timing is good to build on what we have already done together."

As the township fire department continues to grow in staff and coverage areas, officials see an advantage in building partnerships with the city, which struggles to find volunteers for its department.

The rising costs of equipment, firefighter training, vehicle maintenance and replacement are more reasons to begin the talks, said Charlevoix Township Fire Chief Dan Thorp.

"We have two departments so close to each other that could see financial benefits for each other and our residents. If we looked at ways we could do more work together," Thorp said. "The main goal here is to begin discussions and see how each of us can help one another move forward."

Township officials also approved spending $7,651 to repair one of their tanker trucks.

"We need to replace all the emergency lights and some other minor maintenance to the truck to keep our fleet up to date," Thorp said. "By doing routine maintenance we can keep our trucks on the road longer before complete replacement is needed."

New website has Northern Michigan weddings covered

Wedding bells are a familiar refrain in Northern Michigan, with picturesque communities like Petoskey, Harbor Springs and Charlevoix beckoning brides and grooms from across the state and region.

NorthernMIWeddings.com, the newest site from Northern Michigan Review, looks to connect the dots for those getting married in Northern Michigan through an attractive and extensive listing of wedding vendors and venues in the area.

"The new site is essentially a wedding search engine for just Northern Michigan, which is huge for this area because you can now find everything you need to plan a wedding up north in one place," said Molly Hauxwell Currier, special publications editor of Northern Michigan Review and one of the key members of the site's implementation team. "Our area gets mixed in with the rest of Michigan on some of the national wedding sites so this is much more convenient to use to find everything from a venue to dress alterations."

The free-to-use website is broken down into helpful categories. For instance, within the "venues" category, those planning weddings can search for rustic or vintage, waterfront, resort or country club venues.

"It's especially helpful for those planning weddings from out of the area because it will introduce them to a number of locations they couldn't just find through Googling the area, and NorthernMIWeddings.com can match them to the type of wedding they're interested in," Hauxwell Currier said.

"The website helps to ease the challenging task of planning a wedding through visually appealing listings and categories, and the opportunities to save information on favorite vendors."

"I think Northern Michigan is a beautiful location for a wedding," Hauxwell Currier said. "I got married here while living out of state a few years ago and it was hard to plan because not all Northern Michigan businesses are online, and it took a lot of digging to find vendors and information."

The website ties into the newly created Northern MI Weddings magazine, whose first issue was printed in October, and information from the latest edition can be found on the website. The issue, which can be picked up at the Petoskey News-Review office, 319 State St. and the Charlevoix Courier office, 411 Bridge St., features a variety of content such as collaborations with local experts like William Santos, co-owner of Monarch Garden and Floral Design, and Kris Rundblad, owner of MerryMakers. The next edition of the twice-a-year magazine comes out in April 2017.

Follow NorthernMIWeddings.com on Pinterest at <https://www.pinterest.com/northernmiweddings/> on Instagram at NorthernMIWeddings and on Facebook by liking Northern MI Weddings.com.

The site has Northwest Michigan covered — from Mackinac Island to Charlevoix, from Gaylord to Petoskey, from Boyne City to Harbor Springs.

"The natural beauty of the area and its resort feel really feels like a destination without the extra cost of travel and marked up prices," Hauxwell Currier said.

Family receives Christmas blessing

Editor:

Hi, my name is Jody and I am the office manager here in Charlevoix at Northern Family Dental. I wanted to share a story with you that happened at our office yesterday (Dec. 5). We had a young family come in with their six children to get their teeth cleaned and X-rays. They have no insurance so they always pay cash for the services twice a year. They are farmers in the Upper Peninsula and don't have a lot of money, but the mom and dad and six small children always come twice a year to keep up their dental health.

When they were finished and standing at our front desk making out a check for $1,280 to pay for their bill; a patient standing behind them had been observing them and their children while he was having his dental work done and handed me his credit card and paid their whole bill for them and wished them a Merry Christmas.

It was the nicest thing I have ever seen. The look on the faces of this mom and dad was priceless it was like a weight had been lifted off the shoulders for the holiday season. The magic of the season was here in our office yesterday.

day. What a great community with have here in Charlevoix.

Thank you Schuilings and community

Editor:

The Community Food Pantry Board of Directors and pantry volunteers wish to extend a very grateful thanks to Bill and Karen Schuilings for their recent and very generous donation to our food pantry. We also want to thank the Schuilings for their pledge to make an annual donation to our pantry over the next 15 years which will eventually total $375,000.

We are very fortunate to live in the wonderful community of Charlevoix with so many caring citizens and organizations who help us in accomplishing our mission to assist our local families with their monthly grocery needs. We serve more than 300 adults and children each month and their needs continue to grow as the cost of living rises, numbers which never seem to go down. We thank all of you for remembering our clients this holiday season and throughout the year.

Love My Neighbors

When you choose a new home, one thing you don't get away in is who your neighbors are—that is pure luck—and luckily the fates were in our favor. We are flanked by Carla and Gary and Mary and Gerry, which sounds like the title to a 1970s movie, but helped us remember the new names.

Our one neighbor always stops and praises my kids on their bikes as she comes home from work; our other neighbors stop to let us pet their wonderful dog as they take their nightly walk. We have really gotten to know our neighbors to the north, Mary and Gerry, who are two of the nicest people you could meet.

As time has passed, we have really gotten the chance to know this wonderful couple, and they constantly amaze me. Gerry is in his 80s, but his mind is as sharp as ever, and he is up early each day, working on endless projects. He built a beautiful staircase in their backyard, as well as a deck/porch, fence and dock. He shares with me that he has more in common with his grandchildren than his children because they have more energy and he relates to them better.

Each morning, they are always out walking — sometimes with other neighbors and their dogs, sometimes just the two of them. They eat healthy, have a sparkle in their eyes for each other, and are always up for an adventure. Through the summer months, they have a lot of family that come to visit them, and we have become friends with them as well.

Mary and Gerry are the unofficial adopted grandparents of our street; baking cookies and brownies and greeting the kids with huge hugs and forehead kisses, spending summer afternoons in the backyard playing and watching the colorful dragonflies land on everyone, and sunsets on the dock, searching for critters with all of the kids hanging their heads over the side, straining to see the huge bullfrog, crayfish, or fast moving garter snake.

We watched turtles lay eggs in our yards together, admired breathtaking sunrises and sunsets, went treasure hunting at a local barn sale. We celebrated

TRUE NORTH

Julie Collard

4th of July together; our visiting family members gathered in our yards, sparklers, cock-tails and fireworks complete.

During the winter months, the adventures travel to visit family and find warmer climates. This has become our bittersweet see-you-in-the-spring farewell. The night before leaving, Mary and I met on my back patio in the chilly dusk air, with a cold bottle of white, bundled in our cozy robes, and we talked and stargazed (in between my kids popping in and out to listen and cuddle) until the night air started to make our teeth chatter, prompting our goodbyes. We have truly been given a special gift to have such exceptional individuals become our extended family.

Do any of you, dear Charlevoix neighbors, have amazing neighbors? I would love to hear about them. Share your stories with me on Instagram and Facebook.

Julie Collard is a community columnist from Hayes Township. Staying healthy on the move

As you know, we get around a lot. The meaning of "wanderlust" ... we are always on the move, especially around the holidays.

We love to go all around the state and see our relatives and join them for holiday meals. Being healthy eaters, it's a real struggle for us sometimes. Avoiding certain dishes is key to feeling good, no matter if it's Christmas or not. We take it to the extreme most times by bringing our own food. But I've got a tip for those just trying to keep the pounds off during this holiday season.

It's one of the things we suggest to those who still want to enjoy desserts, but not the side effects that come with certain choices. So here's a real tip for surviving the holidays: Don't buy preservative-filled, overly processed desserts. It might sound impossible, but there are other options. Make something from scratch to enjoy and it's fun. Or if you are short on time, there are plenty of cafes downtown that serve up delicious home-cooked treats. Scovies, Smoke on the Water, That French Place, and Harwood Gold all have delicious desserts to offer. A lot of items are ready to go out the door, or you can place orders for specialty items... just ask.

On a general note about health. How much would you pay to feel better? What if I told you just by switching what you eat you could feel like a million bucks? And you wouldn't have to spend much more than you do now. There's a trade-off when it comes to food. You might pick what seems like a cheaper option, but you will pay more for conventional food in the long run.

With the high costs of prescriptions, medical insurance, visits to the doctor taking up your precious time, and sick days spent at home with a cold. Choosing organic options is much more cost-effective, even though it seems like you're paying more. The small difference between conventional and organic is just an investment in your health.

When you eat healthy, you are more productive and happy, and you will be paid back ten-fold in life. When you aren't bogged down by processed food, you will also save on the cost of coffee and other sources of caffeine. And a healthier body doesn't need as much maintenance, so you save a ton on health and beauty products.

The Wellness Workshop classes downtown are a great way to learn about new methods available to bring about some much needed lifestyle changes in our culture. There are yoga classes, support groups, Walk Fit sessions, food classes and "Ask the Dietitian."

Learn how to do easy exercises that you can do in the comfort of your own home. And as always, choose your groceries wisely. Eat lots of fresh fruits and vegetables, buy organic if possible, and stay away from processed food.

Five ingredients or less, they say, is a good rule to live by. There will be a new grocery service starting soon for citizens of Charlevoix. If you need anything from the Grain Train, or the Petoskey/Boyer City Farmer's Market, you can place an order and pay upon delivery.

LOOKING BACK...

The recent tragic loss of the Round Lake Gallery of Art and Johan's Pastry Shop is a reminder that many buildings on Bridge Street, especially those getting up in age, have long been vulnerable to fire. Not too long ago, the popular Whitney's restaurant, where today's East Park Tavern is located, was a total loss. Murdock's Fudge, now Harwood Gold, also had a recent close call. The Palace movie theater, located on the current site of the Rocking Horse Toy Company, burned in 1945. The Charlevoix County Bank at the Clinton Street intersection, now the North Seas Gallery, burned in minus

20-degree weather in February of 1924. Its three-story brick walls collapsed into the streets. The corners of Bridge Street and Park Avenue were also hit. Jim Simonson's Truffles café building was Burnett's Dry Goods, Carpets, Foods & Notions store around the turn of the 19th century when it was gutted. On the opposite corner once stood Floyd Fessenden's Pills & Things pharmacy; next door to it was the Ivy Drugstore. These two, plus another store beside the Ivy, constituted the so-called Bartholomew block, named after the builder who installed a high quality hardware store on the corner. Apartments and a 600-seat auditorium spread across the second story. In March of 1925, a fire broke out that destroyed the entire structure, as shown here. In the middle of the photo hangs the Ivy's sign, broken loose from its anchor in the wall to become suspended over the store's entry. The apartment occupants were able to evacuate safely. But the building was a ruin. When it was rebuilt, the auditorium was not replaced, having served as a community meeting space for many years. In the meantime, Mr. Fessenden moved his pharmacy south to the corner of Bridge and Mason Streets where the Subway store is today.

COMMUNITY

Volunteers: 'We wanted to help'

Dwain and Christina Abramowski of Charlevoix believe, "the world is run by the people who show up." The couple take this to heart particularly in the midst of the hustle and bustle of the holiday season. How they care about the world is reflected in not only what they do, but how they give.

"We all have a special place in the world where we do the best we can to increase the quality of life on earth for all living things in our own way," Abramowski said.

One particular passion for the couple started more than 30 years ago in a classroom at Shawnee Park Oral-Deaf School in Grand Rapids. As a teacher, Christina met 6-year-old Julia Bohl and developed a lifelong friendship with the Bohl family of Otsego. Jerry and Judy Bohl, Julia's parents, are founders of Clean Water for the World, a nonprofit that provides water purifiers at no-cost to rural communities around the world.

In less than 15 years, the organization has installed more than 250 clean water purifiers in nearly 20 countries. One water purifier provides water for 600 people. Annually, more than 150,000 individuals in remote rural villages receive access to water, free-of-charge thanks to generous donations and collaborations within the organization.

The Abramowskis became involved with Clean Water for the World after the devastating earthquake hit Haiti in 2012. Wanting to help, the Bohls invited them to learn more about the nonprofit and the impact the water purifiers made in Haiti.

"We watch what is going on around the world with droughts and disasters in Haiti and New Orleans," Christina said. "We wanted to help."

While they cannot go with the nonprofit on delegations to Haiti, El Salvador or Guatemala where a majority of the water purifiers are, they help financially and promote the organization in their community. They say to others, "if you're going to donate to an organization, this would be the organization you trust."

Christina spoke highly of finding an organization that uses money responsibly.

"I can't do what they do. I have a different life, right now. But I am grateful to donate to them," she said.

It's important for people to know, she said, exactly how much of each donation goes to the work they do.

"When I donate $850, I know all of it goes to help the people of Haiti."

She further commented that not only do people get free access to clean water, they receive education on sanitation and how to maintain the purifier system.

Jerry, co-founder of Clean Water for the World, explains that the total cost of the water purifier covers all wholesale costs of the purifier including costs to transport them and installations. Purifiers are built by volunteers in the Bohls' garage in Otsego. The network of people involved in the organization get involved in a variety of ways ranging from participating in delegations that transport purifiers to other countries, visiting the workshop in Otsego, joining the Walk for Water in Kalamazoo and Toledo or donating directly.

The Abramowskis donated to Clean Water for the World after the most recent hurricane that hit Haiti, which left hundreds of thousands homeless, yet again. Having access to the most basic of necessities—clean water—is so important, officials said.

Rare area maps on sale at local museum

CHARLEVOIX — Historic Northern Michigan maps have been restored in vivid, original detail and are now available for the first time through the Charlevoix Historical Society.

Maps of the Charlevoix, Petoskey and Traverse City area, created in the 1930s, and one of Mackinac Island from 1955, were collaborations between local artist Irene Harsha Young and her renowned builder husband, Earl Young, who helped with research. Earl Young is known for creating 30 local iconic boulder homes and buildings, with Irene often assisting artistically.

In addition to the three Irene Young maps, an original of the illustrated 1889 map of downtown Charlevoix by artist Frank Lubow was recently discovered and has also been restored. This 18-inch by 24-inch colored aerial view of Charlevoix was originally done for fire insurance purposes. Lubow was so taken with Charlevoix when he arrived to draw the map that he returned, bought land on north Michigan Avenue, and displayed his artwork downtown.

The hand-drawn and painted Irene Young maps are in many Charlevoix and Traverse City homes and businesses, and have become collectors' items over the years. Some were updated and there are few originals in existence. This is the first time the Mackinac Island map has been available to the public.

The original maps were painstakingly restored and printed recently for the Historical Society by Paul Casciani of Great Lakes Maps Company using a specialized full-color giclee printing process.

"It really brings the artwork to life in splendid detail," Casciani said.

Irene Harsha Young grew up in the Harsha House, at 103 State St., in Charlevoix, with her parents and four siblings and often visited the Traverse City region and Mackinac Island. Her future husband was raised across the street and traveled Northern Michigan widely in search of glacial boulders for his structures.

"Each Irene Young map indicates significant areas of nature, heritage and local landmarks researched by Irene and Earl. The couple treasured the beauty of the entire area," said Jennifer Harsha-Carroll, Irene Harsha Young's grand-niece.

The Harsha House, built in 1891, was donated to the Charlevoix Historical Society by the Harsha family in 1979 and now serves as museum and headquarters. The Historical Society is celebrating the home's 125th year with a series of planned improvements and fundraising to ensure the museum is preserved and offers continued enjoyment to the community.

All of these maps are now available at the Historical Society Museum gift shop at 103 State St. or online at chshistory.com.

"My family and I are excited and proud to see the original art restored and available," Harsha-Carroll said. "The maps have so many landmarks and fascinating information on Northern Michigan and the Great Lakes. The historic detail is remarkable."

To frame the maps, the Society also can offer a piece of Charlevoix history. The frames are made of native red oak which came from a tree that dated to 1851 and towered over the Harsha House until it had to be taken down in 2012.

Denise Fate of the Historical Society adds, "We recognized its historic and sentimental significance, and that something of lasting value could come from it, so the tree's remains were saved."

Jim Tank, a local woodworker, removed the large pieces from the State Street property. The largest one, 5 feet in diameter and 10 feet long, weighed more than 3 tons and produced 800 board feet. Expert sawyers were brought in to quarter-saw it into slabs, which were then sent to an area kiln. Since 2014, specialty products have been made from the wood, including picture frames. Each piece is authenticated with a stamp from the Historical Society. Proceeds from sales of the maps and frames go directly toward preservation and maintenance of the museum.

CHARLEVOIX — BookTalkers, a group of readers who love to read challenging and different books, will gather for discussion at 8 p.m. on Monday, Dec. 19 at the Charlevoix Public Library. The group is reading "Our Souls at Night" by Kent Haruf, in the Armstrong Conference Room.

Addie and Louis have both known heartache and disappointment; sharing their stories brings late-in-life happiness to them both. When Addie's 6-year-old grandson arrives for the summer, their relationship is tested, but ultimately strengthened. Addie's adult son's judgment, however, is not so easily overcome. This tender novel about the conflict between duty and love was the last book written by award-winning author Haruf.

"All the Light We Cannot See" by Anthony Doerr will be the topic of the book discussion at 6 p.m. on Monday, Jan. 16. Blind since age 6, Marie-Laure is compelled to flee Paris with her father when the Germans march in during World War II; they end up living with Marie-Laure's great-uncle in Saint-Malo on the Brittany coast. Meanwhile, orphaned German boy Werner proves to be a whiz with radios, which leads him to an exclusive military school and, eventually, to tracking the Resistance. This lyrical novel by Doerr travels both backward and forward through these characters' lives as they move closer and closer to each other until they are, finally in the same place at the same time.

The winter BookTalkers schedule ends with "Before the Fall" by Noah Hawley. The discussion will take place at 6 p.m. Monday, Feb. 20 in the community room. On a foggy August night, a private plane flying from Martha's Vineyard to New York City crashes into the ocean. Miraculously, two of the 11 passengers survive: Scott Burroughs, a struggling middle-aged artist and accomplished swimmer, and 4-year-old J.J. Bateman. As news of the disaster spreads, Burroughs is hailed as a hero. The National Transportation Safety Board questions him with respect, but then a hostile FBI agent sniffs terrorism and suggests that Burroughs might have somehow caused the crash. Rich with a compelling narrative, suspenseful plot twists and engaging characters, this novel by award-winning producer and screenwriter Noah Hawley has been acquired by Sony Pictures.

The BookTalkers meet at 6 p.m. on the third Monday of each month. New members are always welcome.

For discussion questions, visit the book discussion page on the library's website at www.charlevoix-library.org/books-movies-music-book-discussions. For more information, call (231) 237-7340.

Surgeon General releases report on addiction in America

The Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration announced the release of "Facing Addiction in America: The Surgeon General's Report on Alcohol, Drugs, and Health."

This report was developed as a collaboration between Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration and the Office of the Surgeon General.

U.S. Surgeon General

Vivek H. Murthy published a landmark report on a health crisis affecting every community in the country. "Facing Addiction in America: The Surgeon General's Report on Alcohol, Drugs, and Health" is a comprehensive review of the science of substance use, misuse and disorders. The report is available online at Addiction.SurgeonGeneral.gov.

Nearly 21 million people in America have a substance use disorder involving alcohol or drugs, a figure that is comparable to the number of people in the country with diabetes and higher than the total number of Americans suffering from all cancers combined.

But in spite of the massive scope of this problem, only 1 in 10 people with a substance use disorder receives treatment.

The societal cost of alcohol misuse is $249 billion, and for illicit drug use it is $193 billion. What cannot be quantified is the human toll on individuals, families, and communities affected not only by addiction, but also by alcohol and drug-related crime, violence, abuse and child neglect.

Mental healthcare workers are hopeful because there are known solutions to the problem. Prevention works, treatment is effective and recovery is possible. Organizers do not believe that incarceration is a way out of the situation; instead, they hope to apply an evidence-based public health approach that brings together all sectors of society to end the crisis. Report evidence supports that addiction is not a moral failing. It is a chronic illness that must be treated with skill, urgency, and compassion.

Previous reports of the Surgeon General, including those on tobacco (1964), AIDS (1987), and mental health (1999), have helped to create understanding and urgency to address critical public health challenges. Building on this heritage, the Surgeon General's Report on Alcohol, Drugs, and Health will equip clinicians, policymakers, law enforcement, community leaders and families with the evidence and tools they need to take action.

OBITUARIES

Roger P. Davis, 90

Roger P. Davis, 90, passed away in Grand Rapids, Mich., on Sunday, Dec. 4, 2016.

He was formerly of Pearland, Texas, at Country Place and a summer resident of Mystic Village, Charlevoix, Mich. He was born Nov. 1, 1926, in Sioux City, Iowa, the son of Perry L. Davis and Bess Taylor Davis.

Roger was a U.S. Navy Seabee veteran of World War II, having served in the Pacific Theatre of Operations. He participated in the Okinawa Campaign, the last battle of World War II, and the occupation of Japan. He was a 1951 graduate of Morningside College in Sioux City, where he earned a B.S. degree.

Roger has resided in Grand Rapids since 2011. Prior to moving to Grand Rapids his career had spanned 25 years as the Chief Executive Officer of Goodwill Industries of El Paso, Goodwill Industries of Philadelphia and Goodwill Industries of Chicago. He had also served as a consultant to the United States Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

At both the Goodwills in Philadelphia and Chicago, Roger took institutions in financial distress and turned them into thriving organizations "helping people to help themselves." During this time, he helped to redefine and expand the mission of Goodwill and the positive perceptions of the abilities of the physically, emotionally and economically challenged in our society. A lesson he learned while at Goodwill and put to good use in leadership problem-solving was discussed in his book, "Seeing the Obvious."

In 1980, he joined R.F. Dini & Associates of Houston as a Fundraising Consultant, managing financial campaigns for major education, cultural and health organizations. Following his retirement in 1990, he became active in the Brazoria County, Texas, Republican Party serving as an election judge, precinct chairman and in 1995 was appointed by the Brazoria County Commissioners Court to fill a vacancy as a Commissioner of Brazoria Drainage District No. 4. He was later elected in 1996 and in 2000 for two, four-year terms of office.

Roger was a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, American Legion, National Rifle Association and a student of the Limbaugh Institute for Advanced Conservative Studies, and a former member of Rotary. He had previously served as a Trustee of The Saint Agnes Academy Foundation, Houston, Texas, and a Trustee of the Country Place Foundation. He was a member of the Great Books Society, and an active golfer, enjoyed biking, rafting and sailing model yachts.

Roger will be remembered by his family not as a perfect man, but as one who, at a critical time in his life, turned his direction and chose forgiveness and life. He constantly affirmed his children and grandchildren, taking great pleasure in their accomplishments large and small. He had a deep and hearty laugh and loved a great "yarn." He was a voracious reader who never stopped learning and always, always looked forward.

He is preceded in death by his parents; and a brother, Perry LeVere Davis.

A life member of the Methodist Church, Roger is survived by his partner of 30 years, Elaine W. Gordon; his five children, Dallas Davis Hancock (Joe) of Peoria, Ill.; Thayer Davis (Pamela) of Palatine, Ill.; Taylor Davis (Pamela) of Bettendorf, Iowa; Grant Davis (Rachel) of Leesburg, Va.; and Galen Davis (Delphine) of Eccles, France; and eight grandchildren.

Following cremation the family will set a later date for a Remembrance Service.

In lieu of flowers, gifts may be sent to one of choice or to Goodwill Industries International, Rockville, Md., or Saint Agnes Academy, Houston, Texas.

Char-Em United Way office to move in January

PETOSKEY - Char-Em United Way is moving its office. The organization has been leasing space in the Red Cross building on East Mitchell Park Drive for more than 7 years.

"We have enjoyed having space in the Red Cross building, where Big Brothers Big Sisters is also located," said Lorraine Manary, CEO of Char-Em

The new location is at 480 W. Mitchell St. in Petoskey, above the H&R Block offices. Volunteers assisted with the move on Dec. 12. With a small staff of three, Char-Em United Way is grateful for the volunteer help. Board members, individuals from Harbor Hall and others also were on hand to help with the move.

Char-Em United Way conducts worksite and other fundraising campaigns to raise funds to support many local health and human service agencies.

Anyone interested in helping with the campaign, would like a presentation to their business or organization, or would like to help Char-Em United Way as a donor or volunteer, call Manary at (231) 487-1006 or email info@charemunitedway.org.

students when the contest results were announced by Matt Hurst, a representative from Uncle Ben's, were affirmative recognition for the prize as well as for the three years Nathan has persevered in attempting to achieve his goal of winning the contest. Nathan first entered the contest two years ago, while a student at Northwest Academy in Charlevoix.

That year he made the top 25, but was not a finalist. Last year, he tried again but didn't make the cut. This year, Nathan won with flying colors due to what his mother and main advocate, Shella, attributes to his perseverance, the support of his family, his teachers and the votes of everyone who participated in the online voting. Charlevoix superintendent Mike Ritter, principal Suzanne Klinger, Nathan's teacher, Courtney Kretovic, Chad Foster, Nathan's support person in Kretovic's special education-community based program at school, Charlevoix Deputy Police Chief Scott Hankins and several other community persons of note were on hand to honor Nathan with their presence and several offered words of praise on his behalf.

Nathan has autism and his win was a personal victory for himself.

"Cooking is my favorite thing to do. I always love cooking," Nathan said.

Courtney Kretovic spoke, in an emotional tribute, about the Davis she works with in every day in class.

"These are the things that we love about Nathan," she said. "You have awesome dance moves (here Nathan showed a few) ... you know every single word of 'Life is a Highway' (here Nathan sang out a few bars) ... You show caring and concern for your classmates ...

you have a sense of humor ... you never give up ... you have awesome cooking skills ... we are super, fabulous, fantastically proud of you."

Principal Suzanne Klinger told Nathan that he was perhaps the most polite person in the school. She told him that although the transition to the middle/high school had been a difficult one for him, that everyone was happy that he Davis had joined the Ryder family. She also praised the student body for their displays of acceptance, affection, votes on his behalf during the contest and "high fives" that seemed to light up his days at school.

Hankins added the following comments about Nathan.

"We need to celebrate difference," he said. "We need people to take their talents and stand out to be different in a way that will enhance all of our lives."

Perhaps Nathan's mother Shella said it best as she addressed the assembly.

"Nathan has autism and a lot of people will say that's a disability and so he can't do things like other people. Guess what? That's true," she said. "He can't do things like other people because he can only do things like Nathan, because that is who he is. He can't ride a bike, he can't play chess and he might not go to college. But you know what he can do? He can drive a tractor, he can shoot hoops and he can win an Uncle Ben's cooking contest. You see Nathan has different abilities, just like each of you. Some people do sports, others are great readers and others can paint and draw. Nathan enjoys cooking and he loves Uncle Ben's rice."

Nathan and Uncle Ben's representative Matt Hurst, then donned their chef hats and aprons and recreated Nathan's winning recipe, "Taco boats for everyone" on stage to conclude the program.

PLAN

The draft forest management plan also informed council about the effect that disc golf has had on the dunes and natural forest at Mount McSaub.

The plan proposes reducing the disc golf course from 18 holes to 12. By doing this it will reduce the amount of destruction in the forest, but still allow the public to enjoy the current recreation activity.

recreation activity.

Kalbfell said she was told that the course could be reconfigured instead of reduced to keep it at its current level of holes. "(Council) doesn't want to see continued dune erosion and damage to the forest and clearly we want people to stay on the trails, but it is a recreation area," Kalbfell said. "If we could reconfigure the course to limit damage to the natural areas I think that would be a better approach."

Heydlauff said once the plan is complete the proposal will return to city council for final approval. "I get the impression that council wants the forest areas to remain a well kept city asset," Heydlauff said. "(Council) recognizes the importance of Mount McSaub and Lake Michigan Beach Park to the community and wants a management plan that takes care of those areas."

uterus, was forced to deliver her son by cesarean section. He was six weeks premature and just over six pounds born shortly after 1 a.m.

He also needed help for a chance of survival.

"It's not a surgery that has a name," Stewart said. "You look at the track of the bullet, find out what is damaged and what you can repair. With this child, luckily it had missed a major artery and vein that goes to your arm."

"It had just missed it, but some branches of it (subclavian artery) were bleeding profusely," Stewart added. "I was able to tie it off and stop the bleeding. Once I got that under control that's basically all I had to do."

The bullet shattered the child's collarbone, and Stewart said there wasn't much he could do because the bone was in fragments and mostly cartilage.

"We gave him a lot of blood and performed CPR for awhile," Stewart said. "Once I got the bleeding under control and closed up the wounds, that's pretty much it. Then you let the kids' healing take over."

Stewart said premature infants tend to heal really well, and such was the case for Sims' baby.

"Their wound-healing ability is phenomenal and that's what happened to this kid," Stewart said.

The operation took close to two hours. The goal was to get him out of the operating room and into a warmed incubator, which was on another floor of the hospital, where the surgery began.

"He was very resilient," Stewart said.

He survived and was given the name Chance Ford. Today he still receives physical therapy to his left arm in which the gunshot damaged the nerves that go from his shoulder to his fingers.

Sims herself has recovered, but the shooting case remains unsolved as detectives have no suspects. Many nonfatal shootings in Baltimore, like many large U.S. cities, remain unsolved.

"It's horrible and it's our society, there's guns everywhere and it's so commonplace," Stewart said. "It's so different coming from a more rural place to being in an inner city."

"It's really discouraging."

The one positive Stewart took away was the way the entire trauma team worked together, many of whom have never worked together before or rarely see each other.

"The adult trauma team, they don't really know what to do with a 3-kilogram baby about to come out," Stewart said. "Everybody just performed really well together, made it work and we had a great outcome. It made you proud to be part of the team."

Stewart said he certainly hopes he will never have another similar situation, and would never want parents to have to deal with gunshot fetuses.

"I think we learned a few things about how our trauma center is run and how things work," Stewart said. "I feel for these people who live in this environment here. I live in a safe part of Baltimore and not near where this woman was shot. It makes me feel for my patients. This is something they have to live with everyday and this woman is lucky she survived."

"There's about 300 homicides in Baltimore every year," Stewart added. "It's not Charlevoix and not like being a kid growing up in Charlevoix. I miss it."

Stewart, the son of longtime Charlevoix family physician Dr. James Stewart, who recently retired, said he and his family and two sons return to Charlevoix at least once a summer to visit his father.

"Charlevoix is not that far away and it's always worth the trip, it'll always be home," Stewart said. "I appreciate Lake Michigan every time I take a swim."

He's also extremely appreciative of his father, who he said he learned everything about being a good doctor.

"He's phenomenal," Stewart said of his father. "He's probably the most caring and dedicated physician I've ever met. Even though I went into an entirely different field, there's lessons about being a good physician that I learned from him as a little kid."

Stewart is also vice president and co-founder of The Healing Hands Foundation, a nonprofit organization committed to providing medical, dental and surgical care to people in need around the world.

As part of the organization, Stewart has led groups of fellow doctors and volunteers to some of the most impoverished parts of the world including parts of Guatemala to deliver medical care to those who otherwise may never receive the care they desperately need.

"Hopkins is a really well known place and a really good job for me," Stewart said. "I'd like to move back to Michigan at some point and my only regret in my field is I can't live in a place like Charlevoix. There's just not enough kids in a small town that need surgery in this particular surgical field. You need a fairly large medical center."

That French Place wins hot cocoa contest

CHARLEVOIX — Congratulations to That French Place, the winner of the 2016 Charlevoix Hot Cocoa Contest that took place during the Holiday Merchant Open House on Saturday, Dec. 3. It was a tight race with Scovie's Gourmet taking a close second and The Landing Restaurant taking third place.

More than 500 votes were cast between the eight restaurants competing for the cocoa championship.

"We are so thrilled to hear that we won the hot cocoa contest," said Emily Freund, proprietor of That French Place. "We were really happy as we simply served our European hot cocoa that's on our menu everyday with the addition of vanilla mint whipped cream. The event was great and we loved to see the town bustling with people going from door to door to visit all of our fellow merchants."

The 2016 Charlevoix Hot Cocoa Contest offered a wonderful variety of delicious cocoa for all to sample and enjoy. Those that followed the Cocoa Trail were treated to traditional deep rich chocolate, peanut butter, mint cocoa recipes and more.

"Thank you to everyone that shopped local and supported our local businesses during the Merchant Open House and Cocoa Contest," said Alison Hubbard, president of the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce. "The community really came together this year to help us offer a great event. We are looking forward to next year's festivities."

The scenarios are presented to firefighters as they would be on a true emergency call.

The training exercises will continue through early March.

"We paired the new guys up with veterans to give them the opportunities to gain more experience in a house fire," Silva said. "Nothing replaces this practical in-the-field experience like the exercises we are doing today."

Firefighters participating in the training also appreciate the opportunity to hone their skills for a real emergency situation when it occurs, said Dan Thorp, Charlevoix Township Fire Chief.

"This type of training is essential; if we aren't getting hands-on experience there is the chance we can lose those skills. This makes us far more efficient and helps us work better with neighboring departments," Thorp said. "As far as training goes, this is as close as it gets to the real world."

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix girls basketball team never needs extra motivation to play well against rival Harbor Springs.

But with two of their own leading the way after a family tragedy over the weekend, the Rayders looked inspired in a 56-35 win over the Rams on Tuesday at home.

Siblings Rachel and Natalie Nesburg were playing in honor of their mother, Annette, who passed away on Sunday, and combined for the best defensive game either has had in their careers with the Rayders.

As the lead guards on Charlevoix's full-court press, the Nesburgs helped force 31 Rams turnovers and keyed a 15-2 third quarter that helped CHARLEVOIX — Just two games into his varsity career, Harbor Springs junior Cole Ketterer is proving to be a quick study.

Ketterer led the Rams with 16 points, knocking down three 3-pointers as part of a big third quarter run that helped Harbor Springs beat host Charlevoix for the first time in three seasons, 54-44, on Tuesday.

The junior was part of a big shooting night for the Rams, who also got three 3-pointers and 11 points from fellow junior Nick Bonter to help put Harbor Springs over the top.

"Going into the year, we knew we had at least two shooters, and both those guys did the best we've seen from them so far tonight," Harbor Springs coach Adam Wood said. "Cole, for a guy his size and for someone who's never played varsity basketball, he's come in and gained a lot of confidence in these first two games.

"We don't have a lot of size, so we have to shoot the ball well, and that was huge for us tonight."

Chris Erickson added eight points inside and Noah Erxleben chipped in seven for the Rams, who held the Rayders in check offensively and got out to an 11 point lead midway through the fourth quarter that helped seal the win.

"Defensively, we weren't perfect, and we were lucky that when we had breakdowns Charlevoix wasn't hitting more of those shots, but in the halfcourt, our man-to-man has been pretty good so far," Wood said. "Our players really get after it in practice, and I think that the way we play offense helps us practice that every day."

Colin Smith and Josh Carlson each scored 10 points to lead Charlevoix as the Rayders played well defensively to stay in it but struggled to

Charlevoix sweeps competition at Mancelona Tri to open season

MANCELONA — Though the Charlevoix wrestling team enters the season shorthanded due to injuries and other issues, it didn't seem to affect the Rayders in a season-opening tri on Wednesday in Mancelona.

Charlevoix beat Onaway 42-18 and host Mancelona 42-27, with several wrestlers going undefeated on the night in a strong performance.

Returning senior and state qualifier Tyler McCallum won both of his matches at 145 pounds for the Rayders, as did junior Jeremy Chernauckas at 135 and 140 and junior Jake Petrosky at 285.

Stepping up to 215, sophomore Max Hinkle also had an undefeated performance for Charlevoix, as did senior Elliot Bartelli at 189 and new wrestler Collin Turkleson at 171.

Senior Jordan Chernauckas went 1-1 at 135 and 140 pounds for the Rayders, his only loss coming in an exciting 10-9 decision to Mancelona state qualifier Aris Morgan, and freshman man Eric Staph also went 1-1 at 160 pounds for the Rayders. The Rayders also finished fourth out of eight teams at Saturday's Manton Invite, beating out Lake Michigan Confer-

Charlevoix hosted its annual assembly dual on Wednesday, the results of which will be in the Dec. 23 edition of the Courier, and will travel to Rudyard for the Bridge Brawl on Friday before heading into the Holiday break.

the Rayders put the game away.

"I think the strength and the mental fortitude both of them have is so incredible, and I'm just so proud of them," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "Their defense tonight was outstanding, and the discipline and composure to be as aggressive as they were without fouling was something to see."

"They're just special people and they showed that in every way tonight."

Natalie Nesburg finished with nine points and six rebounds, while Rachel clipped in seven points for the Rayders, who got another big night from Elise Stuck at the offensive end.

The freshman finished with 25 points and eight rebounds, including 14 first-half points to help the Rayders take a 27-17 lead into the half.

"Elise, she's everything that people said she was and more," Harbor Springs coach Tom Brogger said. "We don't have the size to match up well with a player like that, and they showed tonight that they've got a nice team around her as well."

Libby Garver led the Rams with 14 points, and Madi Bezilla chipped in eight, but the Rams struggled to get their offense going against the aggressive Rayders.

"We haven't really seen a team that's as athletic and brings the kind of consistent, aggressive full-court pressure that Charlevoix did tonight," Brogger said. "We didn't handle it as well as we should have, and even when we were able to break it, we weren't able to slow ourselves down and take our time on our shots.

"I thought the effort and the energy level were good, but we didn't have the execution we needed in any phase of the game tonight, and that has to get better."

Olivia Jaakla added six points and five rebounds for the Rayders, who rallied around the Nesburgs and got help from Harbor Springs to move tonight's game to Charlevoix so Rachel and Natalie could play on the same court as their brother, Danny, a guard on the Rayder boys team.

"There's definitely a strong bond with this team," Shaw said. "They're there for one another, no matter what, and it's great to see the community rally around this team as well, and to receive the help that we did from Harbor Springs to get this game moved here tonight."

"It's the great part about living in this area, the way everyone in all these communities steps up and helps when someone needs it, and that makes me proud as well."

In the JV game, Charlevoix won 49-17 over Harbor Springs, led by Lily Curtis' 12 points and Haley Coss' eight points and six rebounds.

Now 3-0, Charlevoix (1-0 LMC) hosts Bellaire on Dec. 21 in a make-up game from last Friday in its final contest before the holiday break.

CHARLEVOIX — A big third quarter propelled the Charlevoix freshmen girls' basketball team to a win over rival Boyer City on Monday night.

Down 9-4 after the first half, the Rayders scored 10 points in the third to pull away and eventually take the win.

Cheyenne Sprague and Emoneyah Ford each led with five points, with Ford adding a pair of steals and Sprague, four rebounds.

Also for Charlevoix, Chloe Jensen had four points and three rebounds, Emily Graham had four points, Krista Dorst had two steals and two rebounds and Ella Gaffney knocked down a free throw and had a steal.

find consistency at the offensive end.

For a young team that's spent more time on defense than on offense in practice, that's not surprising, Rayder coach Matt Stuck said.

"With a young team and a new coaching staff, we made a conscious decision to focus on defense and on installing our system early, and just trying to get by offensively until we could get to the holiday break and work more extensively on it," Stuck said. "Right now, we're not where we want to be offensively, but our goal this season is to keep getting better and be the best team we can be at the end of the season, and we're still working hard to get there."

Danny Nesburg added nine points for the Rayders, playing well with the support of his team just two days after his mother, Annette, passed away.

"He's a good kid and a strong kid, and he's doing the best he can," Stuck said. "His teammates have done what they can to be there for him, and the support from not just this community but the Harbor Springs community in moving around their schedule and helping us tonight has been really special to see."

Charlevoix (1-2, 0-1 LMC) has all of holiday break to work on its game, and is hoping to take a big leap forward when the Rayders travel to Grayling on Jan. 6 for their next contest.

Bellaire 52,
Charlevoix 50 (OT)

CHARLEVOIX — The Rayders led by four with 30 seconds to play, but mistakes down the stretch prevented Charlevoix from closing out a second straight win.

Bellaire tied the game on free throws with less than 10 seconds, then outdueled the host Rayders in overtime for a 52-50 victory on Tuesday night.

Colin Smith scored 14 points and Kevin Pearl added 13 for Charlevoix, which battled back from a 10 point deficit in the third quarter to take the lead late, but couldn't hold on.

"We put ourselves in a position to win, but we're a young team and we made some youthful mistakes in the final minute that came back to bite us," Charlevoix coach Matt Stuck said. "It's a learning experi-

CHARLEVOIX — It will likely be another week or two before fire investigators will have any idea what caused the fire that destroyed two downtown Charlevoix businesses in November.

Michigan State Police Spl./

Sgt. Daniel Drew said after his initial walk-through of the building in November the next phase was of the investigation required working with the different insurance companies cause and origin investigators. "The investigation is moving right along," Drew said. The fire is believed to have started in the basement of Community-wide effort helps bring Christmas to local families

CHARLEVOIX — Christmas is truly a time for love to be shown one to another especially when that love is all about giving. On Dec. 16, volunteers stood ready to assist in giving to those among us who struggle with life's most basic needs the many donated gifts and goodies as part of the annual Charlevoix Community Christmas Project.

The multiple volunteers and organizers that come together from all different backgrounds to joyfully conspire together for good of the community felt the excitement and happiness of the children and families in line eagerly waiting to pick up donated items, such as decorations, clothing, toys and a box of food that includes a turkey to make the each client's holiday complete.

"Community donations are the result of a wide-group effort from organizations, churches, and private donations," said John Coolman, who keeps track of the numbers. Coolman and his wife Diane have been helping with the project for many years.

Charlevoix Middle/High School's National Honor Society students also assist with the spirit of the season by lending a helping hand during distribution day. This year more than 230 families along with 330 children and 68 seniors were served at the Bethany Lutheran Church in Charlevoix on U.S. 31 N.

Students took the gifts out into the cold and snow for people, helping them load the boxes and bags into their cars. They assisted the clients while

Christmas program proclaims hope, peace, joy, love

ANNE KELLY
Special to the Charlevoix Courier

CHARLEVOIX — Hope, peace, joy, and love ... just when we need it. These were the tidings proclaimed on Dec. 14, as the students of St. Mary School in Charlevoix performed their annual Christmas program. Directed by Jane Winchester, the children grades preschool through 7 gave praise in song, dance and with instruments, telling the story of the birth of the Christ Child, through the eyes of the animals of the nativity scene, in poetry.

The children performed in original and beautifully made costumes sewn by Beth Egger and others volunteers: Mary and Joseph, angels, the hopeful camels, the peaceful sheep, the joyful donkeys and the loving cows all played integral parts as the program played to a near capacity crowd at St. Mary Church. Narrators and soloists were featured as the story unfolded. Outstanding vocal performances were given by soloists River

Pease, Kathryn Hayes and Mikayla Sharrow. St. Mary instrumentalists who participate in the Charlevoix Middle/High School School band program added an additional dimension on trumpet, trombone/baritone, flute and saxophone in separate ensembles. Accompanying the students on hammered dulcimers was guest musician, Paul Gelderblom who gives of his time to instruct the children on this instrument. A group of girls performed on bells. "The most fun I have in putting together these programs," Winchester said, "is that the students add their own ideas along the way. They often ask questions like, 'Can we have the host of heavenly angels fly through the passage while it is being read?' ... or 'Can we add a dance to this part of the song or maybe change the dialogue to say this?' The answer is always 'Yes.' ... Congratulations to everyone I work with at St. Mary: the teachers, parents and staff, and to the students for a wonderful performance."

City changes property lease agreements at airport

New policy expected to spur private hangar construction

LOUISE ALLAN
(231) 547-6558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The city is banking that hangar development will increase at the Charlevoix Municipal Airport to turn the airport's books from red to black.

To do this city council approved a new lease policy Monday, Dec. 19, that allows private hangar owners to retain ownership of their hangars.

Traditional hangar leasing programs run for 20 years, after which all improvements revert back to the airport or tenants remove their improvements and turn the land back to its original state.

"In our previous lease agreements the city would become owners of the hangars built by tenants after 25 years," said City Manager Mark Heydlauff. "The airport advisory committee suggested we change our practice currently used to lease hangars to lease the land and allow private hangar ownership on the land."

The hope is the changes will spur more private hangar growth at the airport to increase revenue for the city from an airport that barely breaks even each year financially, according to city documents.

"We have been working on this plan for a few months now," said Mayor Pro Tem Shirley Gibson "I am glad to see this before city council. It is a much needed change at our airport."

Mayor Luther Kurtz recused himself from this agenda item because of a conflict of interest.

A new lease policy will allow private hangar owners to build on airport property and retain ownership of their investment.

Kurtz operates a skydiving business at the airport.

Councilman Tom Oleksy said this was a good plan and a win-win for the city.

Airport advisory committee member Don Seeley praised city council members for approving the new lease arrangements.

"I had a hangar for 25 years and it reverted to city control and that was a hard thing to swallow," Seeley said. "I think what this city will see is some much better hangars being built. I think the city will see a flurry of hangar activity take place because of this new lease policy. This is a very good thing for the city."

Greg Stevens questioned what would happen to hangars if people decided not to renew their lease.

Leases are on a five-year automatic renewal. If a hangar owner did not want to renew the lease option, they then have the option to sell the building or dismantle the hangar because walking away from the lease the building then becomes city property, Heydlauff said.

"There would be a significant disadvantage to the owner to simply walk away from the lease," Heydlauff said.

Charlevoix airport manager resigns, no explanation released

LOUISE ALLAN
(231) 547-6558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — Charlevoix Municipal Airport manager resigned from the job Monday, but city officials gave no reason for her departure.

Liz Myer served as airport manager for more than two years. During her time in Charlevoix Myer oversaw the rehabilitation of the main runway and expansion of the apron.

"I appreciate Liz's service to the airport," said City manager Mark Heydlauff in a statement. "We were able to make some nice capital improvements during her time in Charlevoix."

The release gave no explanation or reason for Myer's sudden departure.

In her resignation letter to the city manager Myer wrote, "Please accept this letter as notice of my resignation from my position of airport manager. My last day of employment will be Jan. 3, 2017."

Myer was unavailable for comment and Heydlauff said because she had leave time planned and owed to her she could end her duties immediately and still receive planned compensation until Jan. 3.

Her resignation came after her special meeting with the airport advisory committee to discuss updating the airport's minimum standards to bring it in line with the airport ordinance, which committee member and councilwoman Shirley Gibson said requires attention.

"The minimum standards are not complete and vague," Gibson said. "When they were implemented it was more like an agreement than actual rules that guide the proper operation of the airport."

"After the skydiving in-

surance issue a few summers ago we have had aviation attorneys bring us more in tune on how we should run our airport. That is the direction the committee wants to take," Gibson added.

Gibson said Myer's resignation was a good deal for the city and the airport.

"She was a bad hire right from the start," Gibson said. "She was very difficult to work with and I am glad she is gone. She lost us money and was very disrespectful. With her gone we can move the airport forward and implement much needed policies that will make the airport a more valuable and viable resource for the city."

Scott Woody, who chaired the meeting, said Myer's resignation was a surprise to him. According to Woody, Myer did receive a vote of no confidence by the committee because the last two years the airport has lost more than $2 million in federal grant money, but they didn't expect a resignation.

"It was unexpected and caught us off guard," Woody said. "We would like to continue the work we had advised the former manager on. The committee will continue the work to move the airport forward."

According to the release, the city has not said when a search for a new manager will start. Heydlauff stated Matthew Wyman will assume the role of Interim Airport Manager and will oversee daily operations at the airport.

"Matt is well known to our users and customers at the airport and I'm confident he will step in and keep the facility running smoothly as we plan our next steps," Heydlauff said.

OPINIONS yours & ours

Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

What is your story?

If you had the opportunity to author your own story what would it tell? Would your story be outrageous and keep readers on the edge? Would you write a safe story or one that has been written and lived by many before you?

What if I told you my story? Would it be what you expect?

I have thought about this a lot. Especially this time of the year when I know how my story changed who I am 23 years ago, one Christmas Eve on a beach in California.

To understand my story you need to understand my faith in a loving God and how God's grace changed my life.

This chapter of my life begins as a homeless addict, crying out for salvation that finds the hope and peace of God one night in the pouring rain.

It was 1993 and I was 26 years old when I landed on the streets. My parents back in Michigan stopped taking my calls because they'd had enough of my lies. It was rock bottom.

But that chapter wasn't the end of my story. It was only the beginning.

Like the song, "If I told you my story" by Big Daddy Weave, there is a hope and love that takes over the narrative of my life.

Like my grandfather before me, addiction had destroyed everything I loved, but through recovery I found redemption.

I love Jesus and the grace and peace that comes from my relationship with my savior. I still have trouble with Christianity because most Christians I know are the worst at spreading the message of Christ.

I attribute that belief to a quote by Christian author Brennan Manning who said "The greatest single cause of atheism in the world today is Christians, who acknowledge Jesus with their lips and walk out the door and deny Him by their lifestyle. That is what an unbelieving world simply finds unbelievable."

That is not the story I want to tell. I would like to say that I never used drugs or alcohol again after that night, but my life is far from perfect.

I stumble and fall, but I never give up because I know so many years ago, in my deepest despair, I was held and comforted by a loving parent full of a grace greater than any sin.

My story is raw, unpolished and I don't pretend to have it together. You won't get a sugarcoated version from me because what is written on these pages represents a hope and joy found in the story of a baby wrapped in swaddling clothes in a manger.

My story is about a love that never gives up and a life that is not mine. It represents victory, kindness, peace and love found in Christ my King.

That is the story I share each Christmas. A story that tells of Jesus and what He's done.

Merry Christmas and Happy New Year everyone.

SCRIBE'S VIEW

Finding light among troubling times

Hate is strong and mocks the song, of peace on earth and good will to men.

Amid the Civil War, Henry Wadsworth Longfellow penned those very true words for the time. The poet's son was gravely wounded fighting in the war and his wife died in a tragic fire. War raged and divided the nation. Families were torn apart. An entire race was held captive as property. In despair, he bowed his head. There is no peace on earth he said.

Hate is strong and mocks the song, of peace on earth and good will to men.

In our own day, we see hate in the world. The country is divided over politics. War rages in many parts of the world. And still, persons live in slavery and poverty whether in camps on the other side of the globe or in the hidden corners of beautiful northwestern Michigan.

Hate is strong and mocks the song, of peace on earth and good will to men.

Many traditions celebrate light at this time of year. The Hanukkah candles burn brightly in late December. Christmas trees dot our homes throughout this month, and many marvel at the beauty of the northern lights on the crisp winter evenings as the seasons change. Light changes us and fights against the darkness we feel in us and see around us.

We all know the challenges our community faced in recent weeks. There is no need to dedicate more ink to the retelling. Let us instead find the light in our community.

From chicken dinners to pizza, there were countless donations of food and supplies to emergency responders on a dark day in our downtown. This was followed by volunteers who cleaned out basements, threw away lost inventory, and gave the all-important hug to our friends and neighbors.

We saw the joy on Nathan's face at Charlevoix Middle/High School upon learning that he had won a national contest focused on cooking together as a family—a contest that would yield new resources for our school and a special prize for him and his family.

MARK'S MUSINGS

Mark Heydlauff

Even more heartening was hearing Nathan's mother thank the assembled students at the high school for their encouragement of Nathan. When bullying seems to be the norm, it is nice to know high-fives and support for another student make a difference.

And finally, let's recognize the outstanding donors—large and small—who preserve community institutions such as Munson Healthcare Charlevoix Hospital who raised nearly $200,000 earlier this month to fund the critical medical care provided in our community.

Let us continue to share the light this holiday season. Longfellow didn't finish his thought with hate and dejection and neither should we.

Then pealed the bells more loud and deep, God is not dead; nor doth he sleep!

The wrong shall fall and right prevail, with peace on earth, good will to men!

LETTERS to the editor

Better watch out

Editor: Isn't it interesting that Candidate Trump preached how he would bring back jobs and increase employment "so great you'd never believe it, believe me." Yet, he has asked the new Airforce One and the F-35 fighter jets productions be canceled. It seems to me that canceling them puts people out of work.

Is this the beginning of going back on all the promises Trump made? We know he got a lot of Pinocchios during his campaign. Were all his promises lies too?

I think, we people better watch out.

Thanks Schneider for conscientious years of service

Editor: As the Michigan director of Fight Crime: Invest in Kids, I would like to publicly congratulate Charlevoix County Sheriff Don Schneider on his retirement, and thank him for his 16 years of public service as sheriff. I especially want to thank Sheriff Schneider for his membership in Fight Crime: Invest in Kids and dedication to Michigan's children. Sheriff Schneider received our organization's 2014 "Crime Fighter" Award.

From his years on the front line, Sheriff Schneider understands that wise public investments in high-quality programs for Michigan's youngest children pay out the greatest benefits. Sheriff Schneider was instrumental in providing support for efforts to ensure that all eligible 4-year-olds in Michigan have the opportunity to attend preschool.

He has been a strong supporter of home visitation programs for new, young parents because he knows parents who participate in such educational programs are less likely to engage in abuse or neglect. Sheriff Schneider is a champion of high-quality early learning in Michigan—because his experiences have taught him that when young children participate in programs such as Early Head Start, Head Start, or pre-K they are more likely to be successful academically and socially. This leads to successes throughout school and into adulthood. He also knows that high-quality child care is needed not only for a child's healthy growth and development, but also so their parents can go to work without the stresses of worry about the care their child/children receive.

Sheriff Schneider has been a great community leader and spokesman for our kids. I would like to thank him publicly for all he has done for our children.

LOOKING BACK...

"Flying without benefit of wings."

That was how ice boating on Lake Charlevoix was described in the last century. This literally breathtaking sport that gave its participants the sensation of actually flying a couple of feet above the surface of the ice was once a very big component of our usually long, hard winters. Early in the 20th century, Charlevoix's fleet of iceboats and their racers were considered to be the finest in the state. But the activity died out over the Great Depression/World War II years and never regained its former popularity. Only the occasional boat was built and usually had the lake to itself. Elmer Gibson, father of Charlevoix City Council member Shirley Gibson, constructed a one-man iceboat in the early 1950s called a Class E racing model that weighed approximately 250 pounds. On perfect ice and in perfect conditions, it was capable of reaching a speed of 90 miles per hour in a 15 mile per hour wind. Or, as the Charlevoix

Courier reported, "less time than it takes to tell about it." In other words, it could beat an automobile hands down to either Boyne City or East Jordan, capable of reaching either town from Depot Beach in a little over ten minutes. But ice boating was not strictly for racing. It was also a social event. Pictured is Charlevoix fisherman Dan Swartz with his wife and three friends in a larger multi-passenger boat, out for an exhilarating, sunny afternoon of just whizzing around Lake Charlevoix in February of 1916.

Bridge Drop activities for New Year's Eve

CHARLEVOIX — It's time to make plans to celebrate the New Year in downtown Charlevoix during the New Year's Eve fifth annual Bridge Drop. Beginning at noon on Dec. 31, there will be a variety of both family-friendly and adult-focused events hosted throughout downtown.

All New Year's Eve events will lead up to two, world-class fireworks shows; one at 9 p.m., followed by a final firework display and the Bridge Drop at midnight. There will be a DJ and live entertainment featuring Tommy Tropic prior to both fireworks.

There will be horse drawn wagon rides, s'mores and hot cocoa in East Park, a snowman making contest sponsored by the Charlevoix

Public Library from noon-4 p.m. There will be arts and crafts at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts from 2-4 p.m. and at 4:30 p.m. a free movie will be played at the local movie theater.

Back by popular demand, local artist Linda Boss has created a brand-new holiday ornament. This year, each of these one-of-a-kind, hand painted ornaments features the iconic draw bridge facing Round Lake with the fireworks. These ornaments can be purchased at Elements Gallery for $100. Proceeds from ornament sales help fund the firework displays and the free kid's activities.

Mary Wieter-Hord is Char-Em United Way's volunteer of the month. She volunteers for the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan, the Gold Mine Resale Shop and at the Safe House.

Mary Wieter-Hord named Volunteer of the Month

Mary Wieter-Hord believes that the gift of time through volunteering is one of the most important things when trying to make an impact in a community. It's the season of giving and Wieter-Hord puts many hours into volunteering and expects nothing in return besides the satisfaction of being able to help others. Wieter-Hord is a passionate volunteer at the Woman's Resource Center of Northern Michigan and is Char-Em United Way's Volunteer of the month for December.

The Woman's Resource Center of Northern Michigan is a full service domestic and sexual violence agency. The center offers counseling, outside employment education services, violence prevention and sexual assault awareness, a safe house for victims, resale shops and many other services. Wieter-Hord has been with the resource center for five years now, doing retail work at the Gold Mine resale shop, volunteering at the safe house and currently serves on the board of directors.

Wieter-Hord credits her education and professional background for bringing her to the Woman's Resource Center. One thing that Wieter-Hord says she's always loved is education; she completed her undergraduate degree in medical technology at Southern Illinois University, has her Master's Degree in marketing and management from Drake University and also has a Master's Degree in lay ministry from Ursuline College. After retiring, Wieter-Hord knew she wanted to keep busy and that's when she found the Women's Resource Center of Northern Michigan. She was impressed by the center's commitment to helping victims of domestic violence and wanted to get involved.

She was able to use her marketing background at the resale shop and also found a special interest in the safe house. Wieter-Hord's goals align with the agencies, which is being committed to equality, justice, and the well-being of women.

"The WRC has come far on this journey, but there is still so much needed to be done regarding awareness of domestic violence and sexual abuse of women," she said.

One of Wieter-Hord's favorite parts of volunteering is being able to see women and children smiling. Knowing that they feel safe and watching women gain a new level of confidence that they did not discover until after staying at the safe house is very special to her.

"The women no longer have to worry about finding food, shelter and safety for themselves and their children," she said. "They can now focus on other important things like finding a job or a new place to live." Her advice to young kids is to look for something they're passionate about when exploring volunteer options. "If you like dogs then check out the Humane Society and volunteer to walk a dog, or if you are interested in nursing then try to volunteer at a hospital, hospice, or a nursing home. These interests and passions can lead to career options and can also impact in the community in a huge way."

There are plenty of opportunities to volunteer in the community. Char-Em United Way's Volunteer Connections matches volunteers with needs. It is through volunteer efforts that people "Live United" and create welcoming communities.

The Charlevoix School Foundation, originally created back in 1987, by Gordon VanWieren, former superintendent of Charlevoix Public Schools was the first of its kind in Northern Michigan, Ritter said.

The grant requests that were approved this fall are: preschool play structure at Charlevoix Elementary School; K-12 science materials; FIRST Robotics; Next Generation science standards literature; PA system at Charlevoix Middle/High School; 3-D art center; books to enhance the middle school library section; multi-level texts for classroom supports; books to enhance the Charlevoix Elementary School library.

Grant funds to help purchase orchestral risers for annual event on Beaver Island

BEAVER ISLAND — The Beaver Island Cultural Arts Association received a $7,500 grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation to acquire orchestral risers for use by the Baroque on Beaver Festival Orchestra.

The CCCF Board of Trustees announced the grant awards from the October 2016 grant cycle on Dec. 2. "We are grateful to have received this CCCF grant," said Frank D'Andraia, board chair of Beaver Island Cultural Arts Association. "The Baroque Festival is our association's signature event, and we are delighted to have the opportunity to enhance the performance experience for both the audience and musicians."

In order to accommodate growing attendance, Beaver Island Cultural Arts Association began moving festival performances to the Beaver Island Community School Gymnasium in 2015.

In 2016, Beaver Island Cultural Arts Association purchased acoustical panels to enhance the sound and now in 2017 the association will acquire risers to make the full orchestra visible to all audience members, not just those sitting up front, D'Andraia said.

"We are pleased to make the risers and acoustical panels available for use by other Island groups. Charlevoix County Community Foundation grants are powerful catalysts for projects that benefit communities in all regions of Charlevoix County," said D'Andraia. "They help us sustain a robust nonprofit cultural sector that drives tourism, the Island's pre-eminent 'industry' and one of Charlevoix County's key economic drivers."

The grant to Beaver Island Cultural Arts Association is one of many grants awarded to arts and culture organizations throughout Charlevoix County as follows: the Preservation Association of Beaver Island received $6,000 for technology to improve sound for the hearing impaired; the Great Lakes Chamber Orchestra was awarded $4,000 for a third year of an organizational capacity building project; the Charlevoix Circle of Arts was granted $4,000 for various computer system updates; and the Charlevoix Historical Society was given $2,150 for a projector, table and chairs for programs at the Charlevoix Depot.

Cecil Dorton Gibbard, December's Veteran of the Month

The "Veteran of the Month" for December 2010 is Cecil Dorton Gibbard. Born on June 8, 1917, in East Jordan, Idaho, he resided most of his life in Gibbard. He attended Central Lake public schools where he completed the 10th grade.

Leaving school in 1933, at the age of 16, he went by train to Saint Anthony, Idaho to work as a farm hand on various farms assisting in planting, cultivating and harvesting crops of potatoes, peas, wheat, hay and he tended livestock, drove horses and wheeled tractors. In 1937, Gibbard attended Michigan State College taking a 13-week course in dairy testing and herd improvement. Gibbard went to work for C. W. Daw in Saint Anthony, Idaho on a potato farm.

On Oct. 22, 1942, Gibbard enlisted in the Army in Detroit. Following basic training at Fort Lewis, Washington, he attended Parachute Field Artillery School at Fort Sill, Oklahoma, Tank Destroyer School for Orientation Basic, at Camp Hood, Texas, Parachute Jump School at Fort Benning, Georgia, and was promoted to 2nd Lt., after graduation from Officer Candidate School, and was assigned to the 603rd Tank Destroyer Battalion, Air Borne Unit, as its commander.

On Feb. 18, 1943, while home on leave, Gibbard married Dorothy Purdy in Central Lake and on April 29, 1943 Gibbard departed the U.S., shipping out of New York and on June 3, 1943, he arrived in the European-African-Middle Eastern Theater of Operations, landing in Casablanca in Morocco and participating in the Sicilian campaign.

While on an assignment his jeep driver lost control on a rain drenched slippery road just as a duce hit them head on and Gibbard broke his right femur. After spending time in field hospitals, on March 7, 1944 he departed and arrived in the U.S. on March 18, 1944, and was hospitalized in Charleston, South Carolina.

After six months Gibbard received orders to report to the Advanced Paratrooper Training Regiment at Fort Benning for limited duty as the supply officer of a training company. Gibbard put in for a promotion to 1st Lt. that was approved and he went before a retirement board for a disability discharge.

On Sept. 7, 1945 at Headquarters and Service Company, 2nd Parachute Training Regiment, Army Hospital, Fort Benning, Georgia, Gibbard was relieved from active duty and was awarded a Campaign Ribbon with one Bronze Battle Star, America Defense Service Medal.

Returning home he moved his family to the Clarence Daw farm in Idaho as Daw had offered Gibbard year-round work and a house for his family. Returning to the Michigan family farm, Gibbard raised Hereford cattle, hauled the Pleasant Valley Ski Tow in the late 1950s with a warming cabin, snack bar, three rope tows with weekly slalom races and an ice skating rink. Gibbard served as president of Beef Breeders Association, director of the East Jordan Chamber of Commerce, was a member of the American Legion and was awarded Father of the Year in 1961, by the Rotary Club. In 1969 he and Dorothy retired to Las Vegas, Nevada.

On June 2, 1994 Cecil Dorton Gibbard answered the final call of duty and was interred in Fort Logan Veterans Cemetery in Denver, Colorado, and is being honored by his children Carol, James and their families.

To honor a veteran, call the program chairman at (231) 588-6067 between 3:30-8:30 p.m. and call (231) 582-7811 on Tuesdays. The ceremony may be witnessed at 6:15 p.m. on the first Thursday of each month in front of The American Legion Post located on the corner of South Lake and Main streets in Boyne City.

OBITUARY

Anna Olmstead

Former Charlevoix resident Anna Milada (Higman) Olmstead passed away suddenly but peacefully on Tuesday, Dec. 6, 2010.

She was born in Charlevoix on May 30, 1920, of William Higman and Milada Volter Higman, and grew up at 109 E. Upright. She graduated from Charlevoix High School in 1937.

During the war, she worked at the Charlevoix Courier and at Charlevoix City Hall, and covered local stories for the AP and UPI news services. She once had an article published in Better Homes and Gardens, which laid out the plus-ses and minuses of being a "cherisher" (not a pack rat — please!). Copies of her work have been digitized and stored at the Charlevoix Historical Society.

She was known by many names over her long life. At various times, she signed herself as Anna, Anne or Annie. Being the youngest of four, her siblings knew her as Babe, so she is Auntie Babe to their children and grandchildren. At the Courier, her co-workers dubbed the ace reporter "Scoop."

Anna married Miles Franklin Olmstead on Aug. 9, 1950. The two of them had been neighbors and friends since kindergarten. They had three boys, Gary, Jeff and Clay. In 1958, they moved to California and settled in La Crescenta.

In the boys' younger years, she was a stay-at-home mom, cooking amazing desserts, helping the kids with their homework and inspiring the boys with great books. When the boys were old enough, Anna took the perfect job for a book lover, working at the Glendale Public Library for 17 years, the last nine of those as head of Circulation.

When they retired, Miles and Anne bought a motor home and hit the road. They toured southern California with a like-minded troupe of vagabonds in the Lazy Daze Caravan Club. They also visited family and friends all over the country, passing the time talking about all the people they knew from a life spent together. Eventually, they visited 46 of the 48 contiguous states, and all the southern Canadian Provinces.

She was predeceased by Miles in 2009.

She is survived by her sons, Gary, Jeff and Clay; by Gary's wife, Jane; Clay's wife, Maggie; her dearest nieces, Anne Puffpaff of Charlevoix and Sue Breidenstein of Boyne City; and many other relatives, mostly in Michigan and Arizona.

In lieu of flowers, donations can be made to the Friends of the Glendale Public Library. The donations will be put toward an engraved leaf, acorn or stone on the Tree of Friends sculpture at the Glendale Central Library.

Please send donations to Friends of the Glendale Public Library, Attn: Annie Olmstead memorial, 222 E. Harvard St., Glendale, CA 91202.

to New York City in April 2017.

Charlevoix Public Schools Superintendent Michael Ritter mentioned the facilities study committee recently conducted a meeting and has reached a decision regarding the future of the school system's three properties. They plan on making a recommendation to the school board in January.

Ritter also said he was impressed with Brian Whiston, State of Michigan Superintendent, who made a recent visit to the Charlevoix school district.

"He (Whiston) was very impressed with our district and we had great leadership in both buildings," Ritter said. "The tours were outstanding. It was enjoyable to have him here and showcase what we're able to do."

School board president Dick Joseph also addressed the board as Monday's meeting was the final meeting with Joseph serving as president.

"Growing up in my family, the underlying thing was to give back to the community and it's one of the reasons why I'm on this board," Joseph said. "It's been such an honor to be on this board, especially the last two years, and to work with this particular board. I'm grateful and honored and humbled to have been the president for the past two years and work with such a great group of people and work with Mike (Ritter) as he transitions into his job."

"I think he's (Ritter) done a wonderful job and he's getting better every minute," Joseph added. "It's an honor and privilege to work with the board and our administrators are great. I think this is the best school district in Northern Michigan and we'll continue to do great things moving forward."

A new school board president, vice president and two trustees will be chosen at a Jan. 16 meeting.

Board trustee Matt Peterson and vice president Valerie Snyder both commended Joseph for his service and also highlighted Charlevoix eighth-grader Nathan Davis, who recently won the Ben's Beginners Cooking Contest put on by Uncle Ben's.

Davis received a $15,000 check for his family and $30,000 went to the school for a cafeteria makeover.

"Everywhere you look something great is going on," Snyder said. "I'm very proud to be on this board and it's been a fantastic start to the school year."

Monday's meeting concluded with a presentation by three of Jenny Glass' Spanish students.

Allison Jarema, Hudson Elowsky and Mackenzie O'Leary, who presented a slide show of the Spanish Club's recent trip to Spain.

United Methodist Church. Third Day Ministries is directed by pastor Ginger Stevens, who has assumed this position as a personal calling.

"God called me to missions right here in my own backyard," she said. "What I do is street level ministry."

Ordained as an Assembly of God minister, choosing ministry as a second career after one in the business world, Stevens started the Third Day Fellowship in 2011 as a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization allowing it to operate in collaboration with all the Charlevoix-Emmet County programs in the continuum of care. She is dedicated in helping women in crises along with their families. Stevens is capable and compassionate, the "house mother" at Joppa House where she lives.

In 2014, she founded Joppa House to provide a 6-18 months transitional shelter for women who need a safe home while they are establishing themselves back into the community during a life crisis. Stevens also oversees the lunch program upstairs at the Methodist Church and leases space for the emergency homeless shelter where women and their children who are temporarily homeless can find shelter from 8 p.m.-8 a.m. during the winter months in the lower level of the church.

"We depend on volunteers to operate all the programs," Stevens said. "We don't turn anyone away."

For the two-days-a-week soup and salad lunch, volunteers are involved with cooking and serving. For the homeless shelter, volunteers may donate food, gas money, laundry service, and bus passes. Others take turns on rotation spending the night when families are housed in the shelter.

"The volunteers tell us their availability and we put them on a master calendar," Stevens said. "Right now we have 15 active volunteers at the shelter and could use twice as many. In the month of November alone, we served 56 people here, 39 of whom were children, so you can see there is a need in our community. We provide beds and bedding, personal items, food and a comfortable safe place to spend nights."

The Third Day Fellowship executive board is made up of seven community members. Georgeann Lindburg, a local designer, who serves on the board, likes to think of herself as a voice for the cause. As with all those who serve, she is committed to the mission. She quoted the recently canonized saint who worked with the poorest of poor in India and is renowned throughout the world for her selfless service.

"Mother Teresa (the saintly nun who worked with the poorest of poor in India) said it best, when she said, 'Find your own Calcutta,'" Lindburg said. "You don't have to leave the country or even your hometown to find your mission."

Organizers are encouraging anyone with the community who wants a free meal and a social experience, she said.

"We really want people to come in and have a social event," Lindburg said. "It's not anything like a soup kitchen. You come in, sit down, talk with your friends and enjoy."

"To volunteer or for more information about these programs, call Ginger Stevens at (231) 547-8040 or visit www.3dfellowship.org or www.joppahouseministries.org.

PROJECT

each client took time to select gifts and stocking stuffers for their children. The annual distribution day is a culmination of many months of planning coordinated by Rebecca Jeakle and Mary Eveleigh. The two oversee and work with the multiple volunteers who in their own part help make the project happen.

"We have a huge number of volunteers that help with this project from the early planning stages until the day of distribution," Jeakle said. "The kids, as well as the adults in the Charlevoix community provide donations, but they add labor and youthful excitement to the project. It truly is a community-wide giving project."

From the 100 fleece blankets provided by Charlevoix Elementary School third grade children, and the second grade students who shopped at Kmart for toy gifts to donate to the multiple donations from churches and organizations that collect coats, hats, mittens, toys and more throughout the season for the project.

Joan Lemerand, who coordinates the coat room, said the community did well supplying coats most clients.

"All went well and the weather held out for us to distribute this year," Lemerand said. "We were good with our kids jackets and ski pants thanks to a St. Mary's parishioner who collects kids winter items throughout the year for us. And thanks to our coat drive and the businesses who sponsored this year's Christmas Project Coat Drive, we did very well in supplying coats to teen girls and women, but the teen boys and the men's supply was low this year."

Mary Helen Riggie,

Rita Orłowski and Lucy Martin, started the project — that has grown into what it is today — many years ago to bring Christmas help to the less fortunate of the Charlevoix community.

Eveleigh and Jeakle who had previously coordinated the family giving tree gifts and other aspects of the project, now run the program.

"People are just so grateful for what they receive," said Eveleigh. "We all feel so blessed to help."

For more information about the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project and/or to volunteer, call Mary Eveleigh at (231) 547-5548 or (231) 330-1478, or Rebecca Jeakle at (231) 547-3588 or (231) 675-3588.

excavator and crane was used to clear debris to reach the basement.

The process that took place on Tuesday was part of the origin and cause investigation, said Detective 1st Lt. Jerry Carter, of the Michigan State Police fire investigation unit.

"There is a lot of interest to get a look in the basement," Carter said. "The purpose is to find where and why the fire started."

State Police entered the building with a K-9 unit before the excavator began removing debris from inside of the former Johan's Café.

The K-9 unit was sent in the building to determine if accelerants might have fueled the fire, investigators said.

Besides the basement the investigators are also looking at roof and walls.

"We have to look at every area of this building," Carter said.

Once each unit completes their investigation each of them will make their own determination to the the origin and cause of the fire. Several electrical engineers also were on the scene helping with the investigation.

It is expected the investigation may require some lab work as the process moves forward. "We don't know what each investigator has planned," Carter said. "They each could take something back to a lab. It all depends on what they find. It will take time completing the investigation."

Student sections around the state gearing up for MHSAA's 'Battle of the Fans VI'

JAMES GEMSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343
jgemsterblum@petoskeynews.com

A good student section is one of the most special things high school basketball has to offer.

And, from the blue and white-clad legion that inhabits "Starkville" and cheers on Petoskey, to loud and proud supporters at LMC schools like Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan, and even to the small but still formidable sections at the area's Ski Valley and Northern Lakes schools, this area has its fair share of memorable ones.

Now, in the Michigan High School Athletic Association's upcoming Battle of the Fans, now in its sixth edition, those student sections have a chance at recognition.

The MHSAA is looking to honor the top high school student cheering section in the state, based on the criteria of "positive sportsmanship, student body participation, school spirit, originality of cheers, organization of the group, student section leadership and fun," according to an MHSAA press release.

Last year's winner was Northern Michigan school Traverse City West, while Beaverton, another school not far from the area, won the award in 2014.

Petoskey is one of the schools that is already in the process of submitting an entry in the contest, and expects to be a strong contender.

The Northmen have had consistently strong student section support over the years, but increased student involvement has helped take the section to another level in the last two seasons, with better organization, an emphasis on turnout and sportsmanship, and costume theme nights highlighting recent efforts.

"One of the things we've found is that student sections are at their best when they're student-led," Petoskey athletic director Dave Smith said. "Obviously, there's always going to be some adult oversight, but you get the most passion and creativity when the ideas and the direction are coming from students."

The student section at Charlevoix's games are always packed and ready to cheer on their Rayders, especially when basketball season starts.

On the court, the energy that the student section brings helps create a special atmosphere night in and night out at Petoskey boys and girls basketball games.

"It seems like the stronger the cheering section, the higher the impact it has and the more our players get fired up by it," Smith said. "To have your fellow classmates and community cheering you on is what makes the game special, and I think it's definitely part of the success of our teams."

That energy is something that smaller schools are familiar with as well.

While schools like Boyne City, Charlevoix and East Jordan can't match the numbers of Petoskey's student section, they still make their presence felt at games and provide a big boost for the teams on the court.

"Everyone takes pride in themselves, but it's seeing their classmates in the stands that reminds players that they're really playing for the name on the front of their jersey," Boyne City boys basketball coach Nick Redman said. "They recognize that they're representing their school and community on the floor and they really feed off that connection."

A great student section, whether at Class A Petoskey or 40-student Boyne Falls, helps tie basketball teams, fans, and the larger community together, Redman said.

"High school athletics, it's bigger than just the kids on the floor, and by getting together on game nights, cheering hard and having fun with it, every kid in the school becomes part of it and can have fun with it," Redman said. "I talk to former players and they tell me that some of the best memories they'll ever have were getting to play in front of a great crowd and being a part of that experience."

To become part of the Battle of the Fans experience, schools are invited to submit a video through YouTube between 90 seconds and 3 minutes long showing the student section and explaining how it meets the criteria listed above of sportsmanship, participation, organization, school spirit and fun.

The deadline for those video applications is noon, Jan. 7, with five finalists being selected to receive a visit from MHSAA staff and Advisory Council representatives at a home game later in the year.

The MHSAA will produce a video based on that visit, and the Student Advisory Council will select a winner based on those visits and social media activity to be announced on Feb. 17.

The winning school will receive a banner and recognition at halftime of one of the boys basketball state finals scheduled for March 24 at the Breslin Center in East Lansing.

More information on contest rules, directions for submitting the video and links to coverage of the finalists for the last five years can be found at mhsaa.com/BOTF.

Rayders finish with winning record at Bridge Brawl

RUDYARD — Charlevoix's trip to the Upper Peninsula on Friday was a fruitful one, as the Rayder wrestling team brought home a 3-2 record and some individual hardware as well from the annual Rudyard Bridge Brawl.

Senior Tyler McCallum, a returning state qualifier, led the way for Charlevoix, going 5-0 at 145 and 152 pounds and earning the meet's Outstanding Lower Peninsula Wrestler award.

Jordan Chernauckas also went 5-0 at 135 and 140 for the Rayders, who beat Newberry, Rudyard and Sault Ste.-Marie in duals while failing to Munising and Manistiquie in the event that pits five Lower Peninsula schools against five Upper Peninsula opponents.

Sophomore Max Linkie finished 4-1 at 215 pounds for Charlevoix, and seniors Collin Turkleson (171) and Elliot Bartell (189) each went 3-2.

Freshman Eric Staph (160) won two matches for the Rayders, and sophomore Shelby Richards won one.

Charlevoix is now 5-2 overall in dual meet matches and has the next week off for the holidays.

The Rayders will return to competition on Saturday, Dec. 28 at the Traverse City West holiday invitational, and open Lake Michigan Conference action on Jan. 4 in a quad meet at Boyne City.

How are you doing? I wonder what is going on at the north pole. Are the reindeer doing well? One thing I want for Christmas are breyer horses and minis because I love them. I also want a bigger phone but I get one when I'm ten. One more thing I want is a girl house because I only have one girl pony and the rest are boys. Happy Christmas!
Your Friend,
Ella

Dear Santa,
What have you done this year? I hope you the reindeer and the elfs are having an awesome time. I think I have been behaving okay this year. I hope you visit my house even though we don't have a chimney. This year for Christmas I would like a chocolate brown labrador retriever. Because I really want a dog, my parents are always working, and I don't have any brothers or sisters. I hope you have a great rest of the year!
Merry Christmas!

Investigators probe blaze that caused major damage to Cherry Republic

LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — An investigation into the cause of a fire that resulted in major damage to the Cherry Republic store in downtown Charlevoix on Christmas Eve and then rekindled again on Christmas Day is scheduled to continue after the New Year.

SPL/Sgt. Daniel Drew of the Michigan State Police Fire Investigation Unit was on site Saturday and again on Tuesday to assess damage to the building.

"We have no answers yet," Drew said. "This investigation will take some time to complete."

Before Drew can complete his investigation he will need to coordinate with the different insurance companies that represent the multiple building tenants and the building owner as he did with the downtown Charlevoix bakery fire that happened in November.

Drew also made contact with DTE Energy because gas meters were located near the building.

"The earliest DTE can send Schneider ready to hang up badge after 35 years in sheriff's department

STEVE FOLEY
(231) 439-9397 • spfoley@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — Over the past 35 years, Don Schneider has not once called in sick to work.

With just over a week left on the job as the Charlevoix County Sheriff, it's highly unlikely Schneider will be using any of those sick days.

"You have to figure for 55 years, 20 years in the Coast Guard and 35 years here, all I've ever known is public service and getting up and going to work every day," said Schneider, who on Saturday, Dec. 31, will work his final day as Sheriff of Charlevoix County.

"In 35 years I've never called in sick," Schneider said. "That doesn't mean I don't feel bad sometimes, but what am I going to do, lie around the house?"

Remembering the top news stories in 2016

COMPILED BY LONNIE ALLEN
(231) 547-6558 • lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — As we prepare for our transition into 2017, there is much talk about the top stories or the top newsmakers in our community. With the divisiveness of political campaigns and conflicts around the world, it can be a challenge to remember we live in a great community and beautiful state.

There are many, many stories among us that highlight our community. With that thought in mind, the Charlevoix Courier would like to share the top five stories from 2016 that kept the community conservation going.

5. Charlevoix Municipal Airport Runway 9-27 friction improvements

The 2016 runway project rehabilitated runways that installed runway guidance system along with grooving and overlay along with updated electrical work. The project impact on the community improved the overall safety and operations of the airport, which will spur greater economic activity in the local region. During construction operators at the airport also had to deal with nightly closures, but through community con-

The number one story of 2016 in the Charlevoix Courier was the loss of community icon Dale (Doc) Dees. Best known as Mr. Petunda, Dees left a lasting and positive impact on his community, so much so that a community celebration was hosted in his name after his passing complete with a parade.

Spirit of giving

Students at St. Mary School in Charlevoix brought in monetary donations, gift donations and one child even helped her father shovel snow to earn money to donate for the Charlevoix Community Christmas Project. Amy Baldwin's Pre-K class at St. Mary School also sponsored a 3-year-old girl for the project. The students discussed things they would like for Christmas. Baldwin and assistant Catey Kerr wanted to teach the children that Christmas giving was all about helping others.

Hungry hatchlings

Todd Werner stands next to a sculpture he created for a client's wife, who lives in Cincinnati. The couple drove up to Biar Art Gallery in Charlevoix on Dec. 22 to pick up the creation titled "Mouse Breath". The sculpture features three young hatchlings waiting on mother owl to feed them. Werner used cedar twigs from a tree damaged few years back. He cut and shaped those to complete the nest.

FIRST LEGO League teams earn awards

STEVE FOLEY
(231) 547-3397
sfoley@charlevoixcourier.com

SAULT STE. MARIE — It was a successful weekend for a pair of Charlevoix-based For Inspiration and Recognition of Science and Technology (FIRST) LEGO League seven-team competition at Lake Superior State University earlier this month.

Overseen by Charlevoix Middle/High School science and honors chemistry teacher Tom Schultz, the Maroon Platoon and Raydernators teams consisted of 14 students who researched a real-world problem with the team being "Animal Allies."

Students on each team also helped in designing, building and programming a robot using LEGO Mindstorms, and were challenged to develop a solution to a problem animals might face.

The Maroon Platoon team, comprised of Justin Whisler, Scott Bush, Joshua Schultz, Dylan Clapp, Trevor Bonar, Landen Roloff, Sarah Wyglendowski, lead coach Thomas Lynskey, coaches Grace Ochs and Robin Lynskey and coach/teacher Jayne Lynskey won the competitions' core values award, which is presented to teams that embody the values of working together, learning from one another, helping other teams and holding a team dynamic that serves as a role model for other teams.

The Maroon Platoon

team also conducted a bee alliance to help save the declining population of honeybees.

The other Charlevoix-based team, Raydernators, comprised of Braylen Phillips, Alaida Todd, Liam Speer, Jesse DeLaCruz, Aidan Boop, David Dhaseleer, Emmet Bergmann, lead coach Marlo Schwartzfisher, student coaches Mikala Martlncheck and Maggie Potter and coach/teacher Michelle Bowen, was awarded the teamwork award.

Also at the LSSU competition, coaches Lynskey and Schwartzfisher won coaches awards that were presented to "the coach or mentor whose leadership and guidance was clearly evident and best exemplified the FIRST LEGO League core values."

The Maroon Platoon team also qualified for the state competition following the LSSU competition, which took place in Flint. The Maroon Platoon team was one of 50 teams from across the state who participated in the state meet.

"Our team impressed the judges with our core values session," said Tom Schultz. "The students were given a task that had to be completed in seven minutes. Judges look for great teamwork and an innovative solution to the problem."

Schultz added the judges at the state competition were extremely impressed when students were asked if they would be willing to share their solutions to problems they had solved with other teams which may be experiencing the same issues.

"Students not only said 'of course,' but gave impressive, genuine reasons such as, 'we would know what it feels like to be in their shoes and would not want them to go through that when we had a solution that we could share with them,' as well as, 'we would want to practice gracious professionalism — treating them the way we want to be treated.'"

"It was an impressive and proud moment for the coaches and parents that were present."

Schultz added during the robot competition the Maroon Platoon bested their numbers from the LSSU competition, beating several other teams and proved not giving up pays off.

"Overall we came away with no trophies, but a valuable experience that left us with a feeling of accomplishment and pride, realizing that when you keep trying and working as a team, you get better," Schultz said.

Cause of downtown fire undetermined

LOUISE ALLEN
(231) 547-4558
lallen@charlevoixcourier.com

CHARLEVOIX — The cause of the fire that tore through two downtown Charlevoix businesses Nov. 13 has been ruled as undetermined by the Michigan State Police Fire Investigation Office.

Michigan State Police Spt./Sgt. Daniel Drew said the investigation wrapped up on Dec. 22 between state investigators and the different insurance companies.

"We determined the fire did start in the basement of the bakery, but we could not say what the caused the fire," Drew said.

Firefighters were called to Johan's Café, 327 Bridge St., at about 2:15 p.m. where it eventually spread to the Round Lake Gallery, the business that is located immediately to the north of Johan's.

On Dec. 20 the team of insurance investigators along with state fire investigators gathered at the scene for an origin and cause investigation. During the investigation the State Police entered the building with a K-9 to determine if any accelerants might have fueled the fire and an excavator and crane was used to clear debris to reach the basement.

Estimates about the fire damage are yet to be determined, but it is known that Johan's and the Round Lake Gallery are a complete loss and Charlevoix Wear has vacated the storefront it once occupied. The structural integrity of the building will be decided later, Drew said.

"We turned the property back over to the owners," Drew said. "It appears that the structural integrity is very poor, but that final determination will come from the building owner and engineers."

Now that the investigation is over and building owner Kathy Ackerman has gained access to the properties she can move forward.

"It's time to move ahead," she said. "Our next step is to determine whether the 329 and 329a buildings are structurally sound. We know the other two are not. All other decisions will stem from that determination."

Ackerman is not abandoning Charlevoix and its beautiful location, she said.

"The plan is certainly to rebuild, probably again with three storefronts, possibly with housing above," Ackerman said. "There's lots of interest, because the views are gorgeous from that vantage point. Right now, it's a blank canvas."

Ackerman continues her work with local artists who lost much of their work in the gallery fire while she waits on a final report about rebuilding in downtown Charlevoix.

"I'll continue to work individually with our artists," Ackerman said. "We were pleasantly surprised to find a great many intact canvases, and are working with a restoration company to see about cleaning them."

REBUILDING INCENTIVE

One thing that could help Ackerman rebuild in downtown is the advantages of possible tax abatement she could apply for through the Commercial Redevelopment District (CRD).

The district awards tax abatements on a point system. The tax break is authorized under the Commercial Redevelopment Act, Michigan P.A. 255 of 1978. A business can apply for a tax abatement on new investments made within the district.

"This is something (Kathy) and I have talked about," said Charlevoix city manager Mark Heydlauff. "Through the district she can apply for different abatements depending on her rebuilding plan."

The Main Street Economic Restructuring Committee has been working to help the city become more proactive in encouraging new development and business growth in the community, Heydlauff said.

"The CRD will allow us to have the method in place for a business to apply for tax abatement," Heydlauff said.

"Through our CRD we encourage more mixed use development in our downtown with tax abatement incentives," Heydlauff said. "The point system in place gives points for the Main Street standard of historic preservation and mixed use structures that encourage second story housing along with installing energy saving devices."

For more information about the Charlevoix Commercial Redevelopment District, contact Heydlauff at city hall.

Chicago firm to develop visual message for Charlevoix

CHARLEVOIX — The Charlevoix Main Street/Downtown Development Authority board has hired a5, a brand and digital consulting firm out of Chicago, to develop community branding for the city.

Two years ago, the Charlevoix Main Street Steering Committee identified the importance of establishing a brand strategy for the community, a common visual messaging plan that could be used by stakeholders to promote Charlevoix. Services sought from a5 include research, development of logos and branding for specific events, strategies for successful implementation, key messaging and templates for marketing materials.

The Main Street Promotions Committee has been working closely with the city, the Charlevoix Area Chamber of Commerce and the Charlevoix Visitors Bureau to establish branding goals, realizing that this partnership plays a pivotal role in successful implementation.

The a5 firm kicked-off their work in November, meeting and calling on several community members of Charlevoix including Main Street volunteers, city officials, school administrators and board members, the Historical Society, library, Castle Farms, Circle of Arts, local developers and more. The firm is expected to finalize their research in January culminating with the administration of surveys and holding two community engagement events.

All members of the community are invited to brainstorm and provide input during the community engagement event from 7-8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 18, at the Charlevoix Public Library.

"We want to engage as many people as possible in the research process, so that we have a thorough understanding of your story," said John Harris, principal of a5.

With a brand standards manual expected to be finalized by May 2017, Lindsey Dotson, the new Charlevoix Main Street director said this is great timing.

"Main Street volunteers are also working on new city wayfinding signage," Dotson said. "Graphic standards for the design of signage and the design of four refreshed event logos will be the first ways the brand will be implemented."

To RSVP for the community engagement event at the library at 7 p.m. on Jan. 18, contact Lindsey Dotson, Charlevoix Main Street director at (231) 547-3257 or email lindseyd@cityof-charlevoix.org.

Upcoming winter activities in Charlevoix

Winter is a beautiful time of year in Charlevoix, but with the winter scenery comes a quieter time when less visitors flock to the area.

While some people enjoy this reprieve, most of the retailers, restaurants and lodging properties would like to see a steady increase in the number of visitors during the winter months. With so many wonderful winter trails and activities going on, residents and visitors have numerous opportunities to enjoy the snow.

To encourage winter tourism in the area, there have been several great events that have popped up in recent years. (This is totally under exaggerated because volunteers have donated countless hours into the creation of these events.)

The upcoming Bridge Drop will kick off 2017 and it's the best way to celebrate New Year's Eve in Northern Michigan. Beginning at noon on Dec. 31, there will be a snowman making contest sponsored by the Charlevoix Public Library, s'mores and hot cocoa in East Park and horse drawn wagon rides at the corner of Mason and Bridge streets. From 2-4 p.m. the Circle of Arts will host wintertime arts and crafts and at 4:30 p.m. the Charlevoix Cinema invites kids to a free movie, "Finding Dory."

Charlevoix restaurants and bars will have specials and entertainment during the evening hours. And yes, you may have heard right, there will be two fireworks shows this year. Watch the fireworks from East Park at 9 p.m. and midnight. Proceeding each firework show, Tommy Tropic will perform his one man circus routine.

Make sure to get your seats in East Park for a live DJ and the Bridge Drop at midnight. This year, we are dropping a replica bridge from a crane for the midnight countdown. For more information, visit www.bridgedrop.com.

Other exciting winter events to check out include:

- Jan. 21 — Live from Charlevoix series — Joshua Davis
- Jan. 28 — Snowman Wonderland Story Time at Castle Farms

Lake Charlevoix Association participates in watershed septic project

The Lake Charlevoix Association recently participated in the Septic Question Project that was conducted for the Lake Charlevoix Watershed. This project was a partnership between the Tip of the Mitt Watershed Council and the Health Department of Northwest Michigan.

The goal of the project was to closely examine septic system policies for the entire Lake Charlevoix Watershed, identify any problems and examine potential ways to solve them — the rural areas of the Lake Charlevoix Watershed rely on on-site septic systems for storage treatment.

A committee consisting of county and township officials, lake association representatives, health department officials, realtors, contractors and private citizens convened to be advisory to this project. A final report was published by the committee that includes specific policy options for decision makers to consider.

Most septic systems in the state of Michigan are never inspected again, once installed. In most counties in Michigan, after a system is installed, the counties do not follow up to insure those systems are functioning properly. Because this follow-up is non-existent in most counties, it creates a potential threat to public health and water resources.

To further support this point, in June 2015, new research was published in the proceedings of the National Academy of Sciences. The study, published by Michigan State University used microbial source tracking tools to show that pollution resulting from septic system discharges is likely much more severe than previously thought. Results suggest that human fecal contamination is affecting all of the river systems in Michigan's lower peninsula.

The final report includes a simple analysis that demonstrates that potentially one third of the aging septic systems within the watershed have not been replaced. Considering that typical septic systems usually have a lifespan of 25-30 years, those older systems still in use may have failed or could be on the verge of failing soon. Policy changes could be adopted that require additional oversight to ensure that problem systems are discovered before they fail. Research and data collection point to warning signs that can be taken into account, in support of making changes to oversight requirements.

The intent of the project was to consider change that is positive and effective, not burdensome for property owners, businesses or local governments. Research was conducted as to what is working in other areas of Michigan and other states throughout the country. Individuals were interviewed who are in charge of implementing and administering these policies.

The report summarizes each selected policy option, provides interview responses and outlines the advantages and disadvantages for each of the following selection options:

- Maintaining the status quo (current policies)
- Time of transfer inspection ordinance
- Mandatory pumping ordinance
- Mandatory inspection ordinance

The "Septic Question Report" may be viewed online at www.watershedcouncil.org/septic-systems. On review of the report, readers are urged to complete a short survey at www.surveymonkey.com/fr/chixsepticcitizens.

Larry Levensgood is a board member of the Lake Charlevoix Association and each month a member of the association will submit a Lake Charlevoix Association column that is intended to educate and inform residents about the watershed. For more information, visit www.lake-charlevoix.org.

LETTER to the editor

Curt Thompson, a man of ethics

Editor:

I read with interest and honesty, great sadness, your article on Curt Thompson. I only met Curt once, but your assessment of his honesty was spot on. My family and I have been coming to Charlevoix for years (my wife and I actually came there for our honeymoon over 20 years ago) and recently bought a place at Foster Boat Works. Last month, I drove to Charlevoix in my more than 10-year-old, pick-up truck. The morning after I arrived, I got in my truck, started to drive, and immediately noticed my clutch was not working right. It was Veteran's Day weekend and I had thoughts of at least multi-hundred to thousand dollar repairs, if I could even find someone to look at it. I walked across the street to ask my friend Mike Miller (owner of the Hearts to Holly quilt shop) where I could bring it and he suggested Curt Thompson. I immediately called Curt to see when I could bring it in but Curt told me before I did anything to make sure that the brake fluid in the master cylinder reservoir was topped off. I had no idea what that meant so he explained on the phone exactly what to do. I drove to the auto parts store, bought a $3 bottle of brake fluid, poured it exactly where he told me, and everything has worked perfectly since then. I drove over to Curt's shop to try to pay him, but he wouldn't take any money for this. I really appreciated him being such an honest and ethical person.

LOOKING BACK...

According to the most recent government records, the level of Lake Michigan is currently 22 inches above what it was last year at this time, and eight inches above the normal monthly mean. This increase, after many years of troublesome low water levels, resulted from the amount of heavy snow received over two consecutive very hard winters three and two seasons ago. It often takes as much as two years for the final impact of any melting snowpack of substantial size to be felt. Should the current winter prove to be another snowy one as predicted, and the snow accumulates and lasts until the spring thaw, Lake Michigan will go even higher. The last record high occurred in the mid 1960s, when Lakeshore Drive along Boulder Park out to the cement plant was almost washed out. The city had to construct docks on top of docks in the East Park Yacht Basin to allow mariners to get off their boats and onto the grass. Damage all over the Great Lakes stretched into the billions. Here the gigantic amount of incoming water that elevates the lake level can be seen at Kitchell's Landing, the "Big Rock" at Big Rock Point four miles north of Charlevoix. The earlier photo was taken in the 1950s, the one showing only the top of the boulder in

COMMUNITY

Charlevoix to ring in New Year with new bridge drop event

SEAN MILLER

(231) 439-9378 smiller@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — This year the annual Charlevoix Bridge Drop will once again celebrate the end of one year and the start of a new. Due to construction on the bascule bridge in Charlevoix, this year the city has made a replica of the bridge that will be lowered from a crane to keep the bridge drop traditions alive.

Leading up to the bridge drop at midnight, family friendly activities will start at noon and will continue throughout the day and into the evening.

"It's all going to be very exciting. It's on a Saturday this year so we are hoping a lot of people will come out to enjoy all the activities and celebrate with us," said Amanda Wilkin, executive director of the Charlevoix Convention Visitors Bureau.

Activities will kick off at noon in East Park with a snowman contest, s'more making and hot cocoa. Throughout the day, other activities will include arts and crafts at the Charlevoix Circle of Arts, horse wagon rides, and more.

From 4:30 p.m.-6:15 p.m., "Finding Dory" will be shown for free at the Charlevoix Cinema and following the movie from 8:30-11:30 p.m. the Tommy Tropic Show will take place in East Park.

"Everything that we are promoting for the bridge drop is free. All the kids activities and even the movie is free," Wilkin said.

Wilkin said that a highlight of the day and evening will be the two separate fireworks shows overlooking Round Lake at 9 p.m. and midnight.

"Along with the bridge drop, the fireworks are a highlight of the evening. They will overlook Round Lake so the best place to view them will be from East Park," she said.

Shortly before fireworks works and the bridge drop, restaurants throughout downtown Charlevoix will have live entertainment and bridge drop specials on food and drinks.

"Also, if there are people out there who want to participate and help the event or donate money toward it, we have bridge drop ornaments that are hand painted. They are $100 at Elements Gallery. It's a donation and in return you get the beautiful hand painted ornament commemorating the bridge drop," Wilkins said.

To close the night and celebrate the start of 2017, Charlevoix will celebrate its annual bridge drop. According to both Wilkin and Dan Barron, a bridge drop committee member, this year there will be an alternate plan for the bridge drop.

"We have something planned that we think the people will really love," Barron said. "We will drop the bridge in another location. This year the traditional New Year's Eve bridge drop activities will take place in the heart of Fireworks will shoot over Round Lake in Charlevoix at both 9 p.m. and midnight Saturday, Dec. 31, to celebrate the New Year.

East Park."

The plan is to lower a replica of the bridge in a fashion similar to how the ball drops in New York's Times Square each New Year's Eve.

"It's the same concept of the ball drop," Barron said. "The bridge will lower as we count down to the New Year."

Wilkins said that the bridge replica being dropped was made by the Carlson's Home Improvement and the Boogie Carlson trades construction class at the Charlevoix High School.

"They've built this replica which is probably 12 to 15 feet big. It's really big and cool and I look forward to seeing it drop to bring in 2017," Wilkins said.

Murdick's Fudge celebrates the holidays

Despite being closed for the past weeks by smoke damage from the downtown Charlevoix fire in November, staff from Celeste Murdick's Fudge, in Charlevoix, gathered for a holiday celebration luncheon at Scoville's Restaurant on Dec. 18. Clockwise (from far left) are: Josie Ciesielczyk, her mother Nikki Ciesielczyk, co-owner Celeste Murdick Perron, Miranda Stiegitz, Lily Smith, Chase Stiegitz, Kelsey Robinson, Kelsey Crandall-Marfuta, Tanner Drost, Maggie Potter, and co-owner Leon Perron. Missing are employees Sara Seeger, Matt Batdorf, and Madison Palmer. Although the shop has been closed since the fire, they plan to reopen in January.

One of the key initiatives of the committee is planning and hosting the annual Youth Grantmakers Summer Leadership Conference, a youth philanthropy leadership event. In addition, the committee advises on development and promotion of tools for youth philanthropy, such as best practices, regional trainings for youth committees, training for committee advisors and other web and social media opportunities to promote the work of youth advisory committees and youth philanthropy. There are 1,500 young people in Michigan serving on 86 such committees. Youth grantmakers across the state collectively give $1.5 million in grants per year.

Hopkins said he looks forward to the opportunity to continue his participation in philanthropy after his service on his local youth advisory committee.

"I'm most looking forward to having the opportunity to enhance so many of my fellow 'YACers' view of philanthropy during the summer conference," Hopkins said. "And, being part of a statewide committee filled with awesome, passionate people is a huge perk."

Crossroads resale keeps fundraising for new location

EAST JORDAN — Crossroads Ecumenical Resale Shop continues fundraising for a new, expanded facility located in the former VFW Post No. 7580 building, at 6710 M-32 in East Jordan.

The center will include expanded space for Crossroads Ecumenical Resale Shop and the East Jordan Care and Share Food Pantry. These organizations serve the community by providing access to food, grocery items, quality used clothing and household items at affordable prices or no cost. In addition, satellite offices for both the East Jordan Ministerial Association and Salvation Army will be located in the same building to serve clients in the area.

Rounding out the expanded facility is a community room that will be open to local organizations for meetings, classes and small events. The expanded facility will provide more than 10,000 square-feet of multi-purpose space. Groundbreaking for the construction of the new center was Nov. 23.

During the last 10 months, the Crossroads project has received financial donations for the acquisition and construction project from many donors and businesses in the community, including a grant from the Charlevoix County Community Foundation.

"We are so grateful to the Charlevoix County Community Foundation for their support of the expansion," said Laura Kenny, Crossroads board president. "Additionally, we would like to thank everyone who has donated to the Crossroads building fund. Their generous support will help to ensure our success."

Crossroads and the Care and Share Food Pantry will continue to serve customers at their current location, 205 West Water St., East Jordan, until the construction is completed.

Anyone interested in assisting Crossroads Resale Shop with this project can help by donating new and gently used items, including furniture, housewares, tools, toys and clothes; becoming a volunteer; and making a financial contribution to the building fund. Check or money orders can be mailed to P.O. Box 937, East Jordan, MI 49727.

Local Comfort Keepers franchise owners receive excellence award

TRAVERSE CITY — Local Comfort Keepers franchise owners, Russ and Leslie Knopp were recently awarded the Operational Excellence Award by CK Franchising, Inc., franchisor of Comfort Keepers in-home senior care franchise network, at the National Comfort Keepers Leadership Conference in Las Vegas. The Operational Excellence Award recognizes consistent delivery of exceptional service to clients, employees and the community.

Award recipients are selected based on overall client satisfaction for service and quality of care, which requires compliance with strict quality standards. Their level of local community involvement also comes into play.

"This is a real honor," said Russ Knopp. "It's great to be recognized not only by our clients, but also by our caregivers who regularly provide the type of personal care that is the hallmark of Comfort Keepers, and by Northern Michigan, the area in which we serve. It just doesn't get any better than this."

At the same time, the Knopps were honored as part of the Comfort Keepers' President's Club. The President's Club Award is presented to the top 25 Comfort Keepers franchisees whose local franchises have generated the highest revenue in the previous year within a single territory.

"To be recognized at the national level is a special achievement," said Leslie Knopp. "I am proud to accept this award, and it's a real honor to own a local business that can help seniors realize the best possible quality of life. We work hard to help keep seniors happy, healthy, independent and living exactly where they want to be — in their own homes. It is also quite satisfying to have a growing business that contributes to the local economy."

The third award that the Knopps received was the Top Performance for a Single Unit Office Owner. This award honors one franchisee that owns a single Comfort Keepers franchise territory, generated the highest revenue for the previous calendar year and was in compliance for that year.

Comfort Keepers, a growing franchise offering in-home care and services for seniors and other adults needing assistance, allows clients to live comfortably in their own homes and maintain their independence. Their care packages can include companionship, meal preparation, light housekeeping, grocery shopping, incidental transportation, laundry, recreational activities, and more. All Comfort Keepers caregivers are employees who undergo criminal, driving and credit background checks that ensure dependability and reliability. The Knopps have owned the Comfort Keepers Northern Lower Michigan franchise for more than 11 years.

Comfort Keepers is a leading franchise network in the in-home care market for seniors and other adults needing care. Since its founding in 1998, the network has grown to more than 700 franchised locations around the world by staying true to the founders' goal of providing quality, caring in-home care services that allow clients the opportunity to age in place. In August of 2009, the brand was strengthened when the franchisor, CK Franchising, Inc., was purchased by Sodexo, a global leader that delivers quality of life services to more than 75 million consumers in 80 countries each day. In addition to providing services that focus on health care and senior markets, Sodexo's integrated offerings encompass more than 45 years of experience in reception, safety, maintenance and cleaning, food services, facilities and equipment management, and concierge services. Ski Academy to host race training sessions in January

This year the Northern Michigan Ski Academy, a nonprofit organization that is run by a volunteer board of directors and coaches designed to teach area youth the fundamentals of ski racing is celebrating its 38th anniversary. The nonprofit announced race training sessions from 8:30-8:30 p.m. on Wednesday, Jan. 4, at Boyne Mountain in Boyne Falls and Boyne Highlands in Harbor Springs. This year both locations will practice on Wednesday nights at the same time.

Training sessions are for nine weeks beginning in January. During the Wednesday night sessions, skiers ski in small groups with a Northern Michigan Ski Academy coach. Skiers practice the fundamentals of ski racing with racers of their own age and capability. Friday nights are open gate nights at Boyne Mountain and Boyne Highlands with courses set that the skiers can run as they wish. Coaches are available at the top and bottom of the courses to provide feedback to the skiers.

At 1:30 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 8, a practice race will take place on Tournament Hill at Boyne Highlands. From 2-4:30 p.m. each Sunday, races will take place.

All of the Sunday club races bring together the Highlands and Mountain skiers for combined racing. Throughout the season, club races are scheduled at Boyne Highlands and Boyne Mountain. This year two all-day races will be held at Boyne Highlands. Racers are ranked for participation in the Northern Michigan Ski Academy Racing Team that participates in the Northern Michigan Junior Racers Cup which brings together skiers from across Northern Michigan. The championship race will be on Sunday, March 5, at Boyne Highlands.

sociation.

"We can not wait for the 2017 Garage Build season to begin," said Eric Leister, executive officer of the Home Builders Association of Northern Michigan. "We have discovered new ways to open this project up to more potential bidders and improve efficiency. If you want to add value to your home, community and school districts – come to the Northern Michigan Home Show in 2017 and see the quality work these students are capable of."

The building trades students, with the supervision of their instructors and association volunteers, frame, roof, enclose, secure and electrify the garage for the winning bidder in the spring prior to the conclusion of the school year.

"Garage Build gives students a real world experience in the building trades," said Carl Wager of Wager Builders and longtime chairperson of the Garage Build Program. "Many students first discover an interest in building through this program that may directly lead to a career. Our building trades instructors are training the future of the industry and the HBA of Northern Michigan has a duty to support that."

For more information about the program, call (231) 348-9770 or email info@HBAnorthernmichigan.org or visit the Garage Build Booth at the Northern Michigan Regional Home Show on March 10-11 at Petoskey's North Central Michigan College campus.

OBITUARIES

Lawrence "Larry" Porath, 67

With loved ones by his side, in the home he built, Lawrence (Larry) P. Porath of Charlevoix, Mich., passed away on Thursday, Dec. 22, 2016, after a courageous battle with cancer. He was 67 years old.

Larry was born on Sunday, July 17, 1949, to Warren Sr. and Rosetta (Robinson) Porath of Chelsea, Mich. Growing up in Chelsea, Larry was a good student and a standout on his high school's football, track and basketball teams, all the while working diligently for his father's construction business.

After graduating Chelsea High School in 1966, Larry attended CMU, where he earned a Master's in Education. While in Mount Pleasant he met, and quickly married, the love of his life, Linda Hadwin, on Aug. 16, 1969.

After college, Larry taught school in Central Lake for 25 years, first in special education and then fourth-sixth grades. He was also an assistant football coach for several years. In addition to teaching, Larry continued to work in construction part time.

When he retired from teaching in 1998, he went into construction, full time, with his son Jake. Together, they owned and operated i. & j Porath Construction, Inc.

Larry's free time was spent traveling with Linda, playing poker with friends, and spoiling all nine of his grandchildren. He will best be remembered by what he continually exhibited: selfless love, kindness and generosity that became the keystone in the foundation of many people's lives. If actions are truly louder than words, this beloved man, though humble and unassuming by nature, lived his life at a deafening decibel level.

Larry is survived by his loving wife, Linda; his younger sister, Shelly (Paul) Stringer; his sons, Lucas (Jane), Jake (Amanda) and Aaron (Holly); and his grandchildren, Kyle, Emma, Foster, Jackson, Calvin, Megan, Samuel, Aidan and Abigail.

Funeral services are not being held at this time; a memorial service is being planned for the summer.

In lieu of donating to a charity, Larry's family requests that you join us in honoring his memory through acts of kindness to your fellow man. Be slow to anger, be patient, help someone in need, put others before yourself, give all your love and strength to your family. In short, live like Larry.

a representative is after the New Year," Drew said.

Each investigator will need to coordinate schedules to be in Charlevoix to examine the building on the same day to preserve the integrity of the scene to determine an origin and cause, Drew said.

Once a cause is determined, the structural integrity of the building can be analyzed and a decision made on whether it will be repaired or demolished, Drew said.

Waiting a few weeks to begin an origin and cause investigation does not affect the scene or hinder investigators on making a determination, Drew added.

In the meantime, road and walking detours near the building will remain in place, according to city officials.

Van Pelt Alley to the north side of the building and the back alley way are blocked by debris and closed to the public.

The fire call came in at about 3 a.m. Saturday, Dec. 24 by a Boyne City Police Department officer who was bringing someone to the Charlevoix County Jail and noticed a large amount of smoke coming from the building at 221 Bridge St., which houses the Cherry Republic store.

Firefighters from Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township, East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey, Resort/Bear Creek and Banks Township all assisted in battling the blaze on Saturday.

Firefighters reported that the bulk of the fire was in the second floor and attic area. Crews spent several hours Saturday putting out the initial fire, said Charlevoix Fire Department Chief Gerard Doan.

No injuries have been reported and the fire did not spread to any adjacent buildings, though some did suffer smoke damage, Doan said.

The first fire took several hours to extinguish because of the roof design, Doan said.

"We were trying to put water on the flames, but we couldn't get the water to the affected area because the rubber membrane on top of the roof protected the fire," Doan said. "We ended up letting the fire self-vent — burn through the roof — to get in there and extinguish the flames."

Firefighters from Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township returned Sunday morning, Christmas Day, to battle a second blaze after the fire had rekindled in the basement rafters, Doan said.

The call came in at about 8:50 a.m. on Christmas Day. Firefighters were on the scene for another four hours making sure the flames were out, Doan said.

During each fire, traffic on U.S. 31 (Bridge Street) was being diverted one block west to State Street from Antrim to Park streets.

The fire is the second in just over a month to strike downtown Charlevoix. On Nov. 13 in the block to the south, a fire destroyed two businesses — Johan's Café and the Round Lake Gallery. The cause of that fire was ruled undetermined.

4. City Infrastructure Improvement project

In March of 2016, the City of Charlevoix approved $2.75 million Infrastructure project that was awarded to MDC Contracting LLC, of Charlevoix. The improvements helped address the frozen water main issues that caused the city more than $400,000 in costs during the winters of 2014 and 2015. The project was split into three phases. Wood and Green streets and St. Mary's Drive were completed during the first phase. The 200 block of East Upright Street and Alice Street from Belvedere to Garfield avenues, was completed during the second phase and work on Burns Street from East Dixon to Petoskey avenues and Nichols Street from East Dixon to Petoskey avenues were finished in the fall. The improvements, funded by a $6 million bond, included the new water and sewer lines, storm water and new curbs and gutters.

3. Fires in downtown Charlevoix

Firefighters from four Charlevoix County fire departments battled a fire in downtown Charlevoix on Sunday, Nov. 13, that basically destroyed two businesses and caused smoke damage in three more. No injuries occurred as a result of the fire, but Round Lake Gallery and Johan's Café remain closed as fire investigators continue to clean up. The fire affected the entire block of businesses leaving Charlevoix Wear & Go for Kids, Celeste Mordick's Fudge closed, while the Clothing Company was able to reopen before Black Friday. Fire investigators ruled the origin of the fire was in the basement of Johan's Café, but the cause of the fire is undetermined, according to officials with the Michigan State Police.

One of the top five stories in 2016 was the Johan's Café fire in downtown Charlevoix on Nov. 13. A pair of firefighters react as flames erupt from the front of the Round Lake Gallery in downtown Charlevoix, after the building's front windows broke.

On Christmas Eve, multiple Northern Michigan fire departments responded to the fire at the Van Pelt Building, 221 Bridge St., including Charlevoix, Charlevoix Township, East Jordan, Boyne City, Petoskey, Resort/Bear Creek and Banks Township. The fire call came in at about 3 a.m. and was called in by a Boyne City Police Department officer. Firefighters reported that the bulk of the fire was in the second floor and attic area. But the rest of the building sustained extensive smoke and water damage. Firefighters were on the scene most the day. Firefighters from Charlevoix and Charlevoix Township returned to the scene on Christmas Day because the fire had rekindled. The fire remains under investigation.

2. Protecting city parks with a conservation easement

The conservation easement controversy began in early February when the Charlevoix City Council hosted a public hearing about placing the question in voters if they would like to see Mount McSaubia Recreation Area and Lake Michigan Beach Park further protected by an easement. City council members were divided on the issue, but unanimously voted to place the measure on the ballot for voters to decide. But at the next city council meeting city council members flip-flopped on the previous vote with a motion to reconsider and rescind the last motion under miscellaneous business without the public being notified. Without city support to put the question in voters the measure was taken up by a group of citizens that collected enough signatures to place the measure on the November ballot.

The ballot question divided the community during an already contentious national election season. These divisions were guided by two different opinions on what was the best way to protect the parks. The side against the easement, backed by Luther Kurtz and his coalition, promised to have a better plan to protect the city parks than placing them under a conservation easement. Their argument that the city was giving away its parks resonated with voters, who overwhelmingly voted against the ballot measure. Which leaves the question to the new mayor and city council; what is the plan to further protect the parks?

1. Charlevoix says goodbye to Mr. Petunia.

In 2016, Charlevoix lost one of its most beloved citizens.

Dale Boss, 84, a local icon was a community leader, builder, business owner, mentor, friend and father, but he is most remembered in Charlevoix as "Mr. Petunia." It was in 1982 that Dale Boss saw his dream of planting flowers along the 5-mile stretch of U.S. 31 in Charlevoix come to fruition. As a result of his efforts, Charlevoix the Beautiful is well known for its petunias. Two days before Dale died he was at his last petunia planting where more than 65,000 petunias went into the ground. Dale Boss requested no public funeral service or viewing for his death. He planned one thing for his family and community that he loved dearly before his death — a party. On July 1, his family honored him just like he planned, with a parade and community celebration in East Park.

An estimated 2,000 people attended the celebration in honor of Mr. Petunia's life. The celebration included a parade, ice cream social and music. People were able to view photos and get their photos taken next to two vehicles Dale and his wife Marilyn loved, a 1919 Model T Ford and 1973 Cadillac convertible. The couple was often seen parked on Bridge Street people watching and enjoying good conversation with passersby while eating ice cream.

Schneider, 73, announced earlier this year in March he would not be seeking re-election and would retire at the end of his term (Dec. 31, 2016) after serving the citizens of Charlevoix County for more than 35 years.

"I won't know how I feel until the first of the year and I'll say to myself, 'I'm not going to work today,'" Schneider said. "I'm sure it'll be different, but I can't tell you how I'm going to feel."

Schneider, a native of Annapolis, Maryland, began his career at the sheriff's office in October 1981 as a deputy sheriff. In January 1988, he was promoted to sergeant and January 1997 was appointed undersheriff by former Sheriff George T. Lasater.

Schneider served in that position for more than 12 years until Lasater retired, then ran for sheriff in 2008 and was elected for two terms.

"It's been growing over time," Schneider said of his pending retirement. "The bottom line is I don't want to go out of this job in a body bag. I want to walk out in good health, which I have, thank the Lord, and get out and enjoy myself."

"I can wake up and say to myself you know, I'm going to Montana for a few weeks, and I can do it," Schneider said. "I don't have to worry about coming back to work or not being at work."

Before coming to Charlevoix, Schneider spent 20 years in the U.S. Coast Guard of which most of that time was in search and rescue including his last three and half years spent in Intelligence duty.

His basic training for that job was at the U.S. Air Force Office of special investigation in Washington, D.C.

"I graduated from high school and didn't have a clue as to what I wanted to do," Schneider said. "My father was a civil servant who worked for the Army at Fort Meade in Maryland, so the first four years of my life we had to live on the post because that's where my father had to be."

Schneider said he knew at some point he would be drafted, so he figured he may as well "get this out of the way."

"My brother was going to go into the Coast Guard, but his eyesight kept him out," Schneider said. "I said I'll go to the Coast Guard, do my duty and then figure out what I'm going to do."

He ended up staying for 20 years with the Coast Guard, and ended up loving what he was doing.

"A friend of mine was the chief of police in Put-in-Bay, Ohio, he'd do drug busts on boats and he sponsored me as I went to the Cuyahoga County Sheriff's Office academy at night," Schneider said. "After working all day for the Coast Guard, I went down the block and from 5 to 10 p.m. was at the academy from January to April. That certified me."

He retired from the Coast Guard in August 1981 and moved to Northern Michigan. His wife, Judith, is from Leelanau County and Northern Michigan is where he wanted to be.

"This is where I wanted to retire because I loved it up here," Schneider said.

He then went to Lansing to become certified as a Michigan Law Enforcement Officer after obtaining some books from an undersheriff at Leelanau County and studied vehicle and criminal code.

Early in his career while working for the sheriff's office, Schneider said he was offered a position as a magistrate.

"I wasn't ready to come off the road yet," Schneider said. "I then moved to sergeant and then to undersheriff and was then elected sheriff. The rest is history."

Schneider took office as sheriff in January 2009. During his entire 35 year career with the sheriff's office, he claims to have never taken all his allotted vacation time.

"Which is stupid," Schneider said. "But you don't get vacation or sick time when you're an elected official. When you're sick, you take it off, but you don't get X amount of time as an elective official."

Over the years, Schneider has seen a lot of change at the sheriff's office, one of which being technology.

"When I first started there were no computers and there were no cell phones," Schneider said. "That was 1981, a computer was a huge machine at some university somewhere. We fought over an IBM electric typewriter most of those days. The only computer was the lean terminal and we did our own dispatching."

Charlevoix County Sheriff

He's also seen the jail grow from back when it used to house between 8-12 inmates to now between 30-40. There's also been the addition to the jail in 2000, the new substation assembled in Boyne Falls and improvements to the Beaver Island substation.

"It's all about the people and the staff," Schneider said. "Making sure you have a good staff, keeping them happy as best you can, caring for them and for their safety out there which today is extremely tough."

Schneider said he'll miss the people he's been in contact with both in the office and at the court house throughout the years.

"I've accumulated a number of good friendships and relationships from the judges to the secretaries and the maintenance staff," Schneider said. "They're all just great people and I love them all. I'll miss the daily contact with those folks."

What Schneider won't miss are the late night or early morning phone calls or working on holidays.

"I knew that part when I signed up," Schneider said. "But it's just time for me to step back and take care of me now. The ability to travel unencumbered, not having to worry about having to come back to work. If I decide to take off on a day trip, that's what I'll do. I'll enjoy my Corvette as much and life in general as much as I can."

Schneider's biggest concern and something he claims he wished he would've made more inroads with was in the area of mental health.

"We have too many people that are coming to jail that have mental health issues that don't belong in jail," Schneider said. "They belong in a mental health hospital and that's been a struggle for years and years. Little to no progress has been made in that respect because it's not a popular issue."

"Mental health gets little recognition or support and I've even addressed it with our lieutenant governor (Brian Calley)," Schneider said. "We're not a treatment facility, we incarcerate people and people who have mental health issues need help at a mental health hospital. That's been my biggest frustration."

it's a nationwide problem."

Chuck Vondra, Charlevoix County Undersheriff who'll move to sheriff on Jan. 1, said the best compliment he can give Schneider is every decision he's ever made was based about right or wrong.

"There was never a political component to anything," Vondra said. "If it was bad for him politically, it didn't matter. The parameters were always right and wrong and politics never played a role in his decision making."

Vondra also referred to Schneider as a work horse.

"He works a lot of hours, he's never called in sick a day in his life and he's here every day at 6:30 a.m. and leaves at 5 p.m.," Vondra said. "The man puts in his time and all things being said, he's a good guy."

Vondra said Schneider carried out a lot of aspects former Sheriff

George T. Lasater had built in, and added his twist.

"There wasn't a lot of great change, but a little twist to it," Vondra said. "He carried the legacy on for a long time with his twist, and I hope to do that same thing. I'll employ the same tactics he's employed, to do the right thing."

Schneider has gradually been cleaning up around his office and desk this week, packing away more than three decades of memorials, memorabilia, awards and photos he's accumulated.

"I've been both honored and humbled to be the sheriff of this county," Schneider said. "I'm not just saying that to say it, I mean that with my heart. To be able to do what I've done for this county, I'm honored and humbled."

Rayders have all the answers in 52-21 win over Bellaire

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

CHARLEVOIX — No matter what visiting Bellaire threw at them on Wednesday night, the Charlevoix girls basketball team seemed to have a solution.

Facing a variety of offensive and defensive sets, the Rayders calmly handled every new challenge in a dominant 52-21 victory to improve to 4-0 on the season.

Offensively, Charlevoix broke through the Eagles' half court trap, full court press and a variety of zones in an efficient night.

Against the trap, the Rayders consistently lobbed the ball to 6'1" freshman Elise Stuck, who consistently won her one-on-one matchup and got to the rim for 12 first half points, while guards Rachel and Natalie Nesburg made short work of the press with their ballhandling acumen.

The Eagles finally settled into a zone, but that failed to slow down Charlevoix as well, as the Rayders' Raligan Novotny and Hannah Solomon knocked down long-range shots to keep the points coming.

"The key for us tonight was just patience and making good decisions with the basketball," Charlevoix coach Liz Shaw said. "We've spent a lot of time in practice recently on our offense, and tonight our players really showed understanding of what was going on and the ability to adjust to what they were seeing.

"We didn't rush with the ball, and that led to better looks against everything we saw."

Defensively, the Rayders were once again dominant, holding the Eagles scoreless in the first quarter to take a 16-0 lead and never looking back.

Bellaire, normally a patient offensive team itself, probed Charlevoix's defense for weaknesses time and time again but was unable to find any, quickly falling too far behind to mount a comeback.

"The thing that stands out for me about our defense is the focus we've shown so far this season," Shaw said. "Our intensity and our energy level at that end of the floor have been excellent, and that's really carried over into every aspect of our game."

Stuck led Charlevoix in scoring with 16 points, but the Rayders also got a big contribution from Natalie Nesburg, who exploded in the second half to finish with 12 points.

Rachel Nesburg added eight points and Novotny six points as well for Charlevoix, which at 4-0 has surpassed its win total for all of last season before the New Year even hits.

"This team has come together so quickly and really developed chemistry on and off the court," Shaw said.

"They're a focused group that enjoys playing together and works really hard every day to get better and to be the best players they can be.

"It's a real blessing to have so many players with that attitude and for them to play together the way they have so far."

The Rayders have broken to work on their game, and a tough test waiting on the other side — a trip to Class C powerhouse and perennial state title contender St. Ignace on Jan. 3.

It's a chance for the Rayders to see how far they've come, and also to prove themselves against one of the state's best teams.

Looking back on the best of 2016 in Charlevoix athletics

JAMES GENSTERBLUM
(231) 439-9343 • jgensterblum@petoskeynews.com

2016 is a year that will be long remembered in history for many reasons, but for the Charlevoix Rayders it was a year of accomplishments on the court and several notable firsts.

Here's the Charlevoix Courier's look back at five moments from 2016 that fans of the Rayders will be talking about for years to come:

5. The Charlevoix wrestling team captures its first team district title

The Rayder wrestling squad has had plenty of individual success over the course of its history, with several all-state wrestlers in past years at the Division 4 level.

But putting together a team capable of beating other squads in duals and bringing home state hardware was a challenge for the program, until the 2015-16 season.

Under coach Mike Hinkle, the Rayders assembled a squad that not only contained individual talent in state qualifiers Cam Alden, Mick Hinkle and Tyler McCallum, but was also capable of filling nearly all of the weight classes with wrestlers capable of winning matches.

That combination allowed the Rayders to beat both Mancelona and Onaway to claim its first team district title in the sport in program history, and to do it on its own home floor.

4. The Charlevoix football team ends its losing streak to Boyne City in overtime thriller

In three years under head coach Ron Bindi, Charlevoix's football team had steadily improved from a 1-8 squad to back-to-back winning seasons,

COURIER FILE PHOTO

Christian Matye (7) and the Charlevoix soccer team were one of several Rayder squads to achieve unprecedented success in 2016.

but arch-rival Boyne City had proven to be a thorn in the Rayders' side.

Riding a four-year winning streak in the rivalry, including back-to-back shutout victories, the Ramblers had reason to be confident as they took to their home field on Sept. 2.

However, led by senior quarterback Brad Klinger, who scored the game-winning touchdown and two point conversion in overtime, the Rayders brought Boyne City's recent dominance of the rivalry to a screeching halt in an exciting 22-14 overtime victory.

Klinger, along with teammate Jared McLean, would go on to earn all-state honors as the Rayders finished the season 7-3, with a playoff appearance and their best record since 2006.

3. Charlevoix Volleyball completes the district 3-peat. It's tough to stay on top for long, but the Charlevoix volleyball team is proving it has what it takes.

Despite losing all-state level talent in each of the past two seasons, the Rayders keep on reloading and winning under head coach Audra Randall.

This year was no different, as a strong six-player senior class and the emergence of freshman Elise Stuck helped the Rayders to a runner-up finish behind Class C powerhouse Traverse City St. Francis in the Lake Michigan Conference.

That accomplishment was just the prelude for a tournament run that's becoming a regular thing for the Rayders, as they blitzed through their district competition dropping only one set and dominating Inland Lakes in the final for their third straight title.

The Rayders made it all the way to the regional final before, coming up short to the Gladiators, but there's no reason to think the recent run of success won't continue for Charlevoix moving forward.

2. Charlevoix's girls golf team makes its first state finals appearance

As the Rayder girls golf team took to the course at Forest Akers West in East Lansing for the Division 4 state final, it was clear they'd arrived at that point light years ahead of schedule.

Just three years prior, the program didn't even exist as more than a concept, a potential new addition to the Rayder sports offerings.

But with support from the administration, the community and Belvedere Golf Club, Charlevoix advanced quickly from last-place finishes in its first year to contention atop the leaderboard in this, its third season.

Led by coach Jennifer Sell and with strong players up front in Abbey Scholten and Emily Sabook, the Rayders served notice to Northern Michigan early this year by winning the program's first trophy in their season opener.

Charlevoix kept up the strong play all season long, resulting in a runner-up regional finish that guaranteed the Rayders a top 18 finish in the state and a chance to compete in the state finals that came quicker than anyone could have imagined.

1. Charlevoix boys soccer makes a run to the Division 3 semifinal

With a large and talented senior class that had achieved success throughout their soccer careers, many thought this could be a special year for the Charlevoix boys soccer program.

Perhaps no one fully realized how special until the squad put together a tournament run for the ages.

Having moved up to Division 3 for the first time in program history, the Rayders looked right at home in their new classification, capturing the program's third district title after a stirring comeback to beat host Elk Rapids on their home field in the district semifinal.

Advancing to the regional in Clare, the Rayders ripped through opponents Saginaw Swan Valley and Benzie Central by a combined 7-0 margin to claim the program's first regional title of any kind in its 25-year history.

While Charlevoix ultimately fell to eventual state champion Grand Rapids Catholic Central in a tight 3-1 semifinal, the Rayders were one of only four teams and the only public school to advance that far.

Led by coach Jon Boss and his staff, and all-state players Kevin Pearl, Christian Matye, and Danny Nesburg, the Rayder soccer program set a standard for excellence this season that will be tough for the program to top moving forward.
